PREFACE.

Feeling, from a business experience, the necessity for some work which shall place this important part of the growing and great West more distinctly before those who may have business relations with it, we resolved to labor to the utmost of our endeavors in the compilation of such a useful work. The task has been in measure such as we [illegible] probably ever before thought of attempting; alone. That we have labored, feeling that if this even should be our last work, and should completely exhaust our overtasked energies, that it should be well and thoroughly done.

What it is, we leave before the public; it will have its merits and demerits, as all human work have, and for its imperfections we crave the indulgence of the charitable, while the measure of praise may be in proportion to its merits.

To all those who have assisted us in giving information, or otherwise, we extend our gratitude, and hope they may feel rewarded in the benefits that may accrue to them, their neighbors, and the public generally.

EXPLANATIONS.

The system of measurement of distances of places from each other in the accounts of towns and villages in the body of this book, has been to measure in a direct line from one to the other, except on railroad lines, where their tables have been used when possible.

The following places are not entirely complete, owing either to the loss of papers or their too late arrival for insertion: Columbia, Boone county; Perry and New London, Ralls county; Cap Au Gris, Auburn and Chantilly Lincoln county; Luray, Clarke county; Fillmore and Flag Spring, Andrew county; Greentop, Schuyler county.

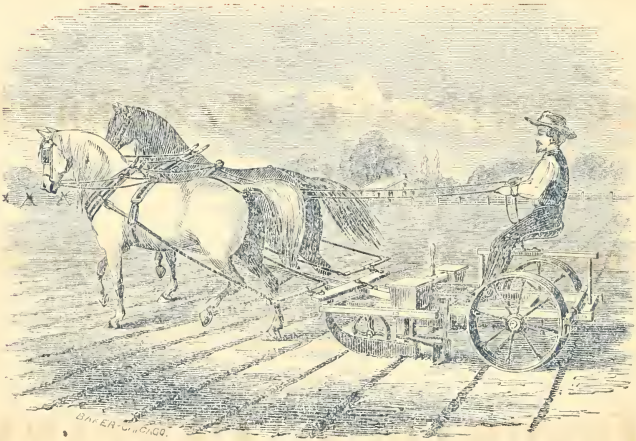
FROM FIFTEEN TO TWENTY ACRES OF CORN PLANTED in a DAY,

BY USING THE

VANDIVER

CORN PLANTER,

A Great Improvement on Two-Wheel Corn Planters.



Having greatly improved our planter for 1867, and the great reputation gained for it the past season, we unhesitatingly say, and will warrant the "Vandiver" Corn Planter to be the best and cheapest Planter of Corn, Broom Corn, Sorghum, Beans and Hemp Seed, now offered to the Farmer. A simple trial of this Machine is all we ask to prove what we assert.

Among other decided advantages of this Planter, over others, we guarantee the following:

1st. It runs on Four Wheels, consequently is lighter of draft than any other Corn Planter.

2d. The depth of Planting is regulated by the extra wheels forward, from two to six inches deep, as desired, Perfectly and with Certainty!!!

3d. With two horses, and only one person, it will plant from fifteen to twenty acres of Corn a day, covering perfectly.

4th. It will drop the Corn scattered in the hill so it can be thinned when it comes up. One great fault with Planters is their failure to do this.

5th. It will plant the toughest prairie sod, the roughest or foulest land.

6th. This Planter has separate and distinct Coverers, which never fail to cover the Corn, forming a ridge, which is pressed by concave wheels equally upon all sides, making it the only Planter that is a positive Coverer.

NORTH MISSOURI.

North Missouri is situated nearly in the exact centre of the United States, being bounded on the east by the Mississippi, and on the south and west by the Missouri river, and on the north by the State of Iowa and the Des Moines for about 24 miles at the north-east corner. The mouth of the Missouri where it enters the Mississippi is about 24 miles west of the 13th meridian from Washington, and about 27 miles north of the 38th degree of north latitude. From thence the eastern boundary follows the channel of the Mississippi river to the mouth of the Des Moines. which is 14½ degrees west of Washington and 22 miles north of the 40th degree of north latitude, whence the line follows up that river to a point about three and one-half miles above Athens, thence westward until it reaches the channel of the Missouri river, and thence down that river to the place of beginning. The greatest distance from east to west is 294 miles, and that from north to south 158 miles. The shape, though, is quite irregular, being widest in the east and north, and and more pointed in the other directions.

No part of the West is better supplied with either water or timber, the streams flowing mostly south into the Missouri until we get east of the Chariton, when the streams flow south-easterly into the Father of Waters. There are no great tracts of unwatered and desert plains in this portion of the State, but the country is generally undulating in parallel ridges and valleys, with meadows and timber on their borders, and the trees and wood and coarser vegetation follow up all the hollows and depressions of the valleys until they reach the ridges which everywhere ramify and spread out like arms to the horizon, many and most of them yet unoccupied by man, and of as rich soil and with as deep a verdure as the hand of man ever husbanded. The timber is good white oak and black walnut and various other kinds of good timber usually found in this meridian. Many forests of cottonwood and poplar, from which valuable lumber of the lighter varieties is sawed, and finds a ready market. Thrift and enterprise seems to be the watch-word of these fair fields and groves, and with peace, and charity and good will, this is destined to be the "garden Land," for it contains such a boundless variety of the requisites for the wants of man.

Besides having plenty of timber, the ground contains beneath bituminous coal and excellent varieties of building stone. The geographical and geological features of this section are dissimilar to that south of the river.

North Missouri is in no place mountainous, but either rolling or quite flat. It contains a much richer soil than the southern division, and is in a much more advanced state of cultivation. Its geological substratum is chiefly carboniferous limestone. The coal measure of Illinois extends west of the Mississippi, and is extensively worked at various points, as at Carbon and Bevier, and other places, where they have the most approved appliances for raising it. At some places where shafts have been sunk, five different strata of coal have been found. The soil is more calcareous in the east, and of an alluvial formation in the west. The central-northern counties are pretty rough, and quite heavily timbered with oak forests. That portion of the State is only at present reached by stage from points on the river or railroad. Nearly all the bottoms of the Missouri are on the north side, and during overflow accumulate much sand and drift wood.

The streams emptying into the Missouri from the north, and which drain the region which we have been describing, are the Nodaway, Platte, Fishing River, Crooked River, Wakenda, Grand River, Chariton, Bonne Femme Creek, Moniteau, Roche Perce, Cedar Creek and Muddy Creek; and the streams flowing east into the Mississippi are Dardenne Creek, Peruqua Creek, Cuiver River, Salt River, North River, South Fabius River and North Fabius River, Wyaconda Creek and Fox River.

The Nodaway has its head waters in Iowa and flows south, dividing Nodaway and Andrew from Holt county, and empties into the Missouri about 18 miles above St. Joseph.

The Platte is formed by the junction of Castile Creek, West Fork and One-Hundred-and-Two River, and flows south into the Missouri River just above Parkville, draining four counties viz: Nodaway, Andrew, Buchanan and Platte. There is something strange that this river should run such a distance so near to the Missouri, and quite parallel with it a distance of ninety miles. Very little of the land bordering the Missouri in these parts is drained by the larger river. but flows to the small side stream, and then goes so far below to find an outlet.

Grand River has many branches, and drains about thirteen counties, which are among the very best in the State. The branches all arise to the northward, and enter as follows on the west: Nearest the mouth is Big Creek in Carroll county; next above that is Grind Stone, then Wild Cat, then West Fork Main, into which Sampsons Creek and Big River flow; then Thompson' Fork and Welden River; then West Fork on the east side, and Yellow Creek. The County is diversified and beautiful.

Chariton River has for its branches Wolf Creek, Muscle Fork and Middle Fork. It has its rise in Iowa, and flows almost directly in its general course southward into the Missouri River, emptying at the south point of Chariton county, where the Missouri River takes a sudden bend to the southward.

Salt River has Spencer Creek, South Fork, Young's Creek, Elk Fork, and Middle Fork for its tributaries. It flows nearly easterly into the Mississippi just above the town of Louisiana.

The North and South Fabius Rivers enter the Mississippi nearly opposite Quincy, Ill. After flowing from the north-west a distance of about 75 miles through Schuyler, Scotland, Adair, Knox, Lewis and Marion counties. The section drained by them cannot be surpassrd for beauty or advantages of location.

ALPHABETICAL LIST OF THE COUNTIES IN NORTH MISSOURI.

ADAIR

Is in the north-eastern part of the State, being bounded by Putnam and Schuyler on the north, by Scotland and Knox on the east, by Macon on the south, and Sullivan on the west, having a length from north to south of twenty-two miles, and from east to west of twenty-seven miles, and contains an area of over 380,000 acres of land, about 170,000 of which is under cultition and improvement. It has eight townships, viz: Benton, Clay, Kirksville, Liberty, Morrow, Pettis, Polk and Salt River. It is well watered by Streams running from north to south, the principal of which is Charitan river and the head forks of Salt river. This county will be intersected by the North Missouri Railroad, and is now reached from Macon City, the nearest point on railroad, at the intersection of the North Mo. and H. & St. Jo. R. R. by stage daily.

ANDREW

Is in the western part of the State, on the Missouri river, and is bounded on the north by Nodaway, on the east by Gentry and DeKalb, on the south by Buchanan, and west by Holt counties; it also borders on the river, a distance of about twelve miles at the south-west corner, having a length from north to south of twenty-two miles, and from east to west, on the north line, about twenty-four miles, and on the south about fifteen miles; containing an area of 180,000 acres of land in cultivation. It has six townships, viz: Jackson, Jefferson, Nodaway, Platte, Rochester and Savannah; Savannah is the County Seat, and is reached by rail from St Joseph, on the Platte Country Railroad. The county is watered by the Platte and the 102 river flowing southward through it; and the western boundary is the Nodaway river, flowing between it and the adjacent counties. The country is very beautiful in this part.

ATCHISON

Is the most extreme north-western county in the State; it is bounded on the north by the State of Iowa, on the east by Nodawoy, and the south by

Holt, and the Missouri river bounds it on the south-west and west. It contains nine townships, viz: Benton, Buchanan, Clark, Clay, Nishanabotany, Polk, Rockport, Sonora and Tarkio, with an area of 105,000 acres of land under cultivation, while the whole county contains about 322,000 acres, being about the same size as Andrew county. Atchison county is reached by the Missouri river. There are very few running streams of water in this county compared with others, but the quality of the land is very fine,

AUDRAIN

Is in the central eastern part of the State, being on the line of the North Missouri R. R., and is bounded on the north by Monroe and Ralls counties, on the east by Pike and Montgomery, on the south by Montgomery, Callaway and Boon counties, and on the west by Boon and Randolph counties, having a length from east to west of forty-six miles, while from north to south it is only about twenty miles in the widest part, and six in the narrowest. The county contains seven townships, viz: Cuiver, Loutre, Mexico, Prairie, Saling, Salt River and Wilson. There are about 244,000 acres of land under cultivation, and 414,000 acres of land in the whole county. Mexico is the County Seat, and a pleasant little place it is. This connty is watered by Young's Creek, and the south fork of Salt River, and the west fork of Quiver River; there is much prairie in this county, and the number of towns in the county is not very great, but Mexico is of more importance than any point on the North Missouri Railroad between Macon and St Charles.

Mexico, the County Seat of Audrain county, one of the most promising, healthy and desirable little cities on the whole line of the North Missouri Railroad. It is situated on a high rolling prairie, in the forks of Salt river, and is thus surrounded on the east, north and west by bodies of fine timber, stone, water and coal. It is situated 100 miles from St. Louis, in the center of a fine agricultural and stock growing country, commanding not only the entire trade of Audrain county, but a large share of Monroe, Callaway, Boone and Ralls, Its citizens are intelligent, enterprising, and progressive, manifesting a lively interest in education and religion. Mexico was incorporated as a city in 1859, and during the war its rapid progress was suspended, but hostilities had no sooner ceased than it began again to improve. The energy of its citizens was again renewed, immigration invited, and it is again rapidly improving. Its citizens have well earned the good reputation awarded them by those who are familiar with their energy, business and thrift, The city has now a population of 3000, and is daily increasing. It contains six churches, two weekly newspapers, a first class female seminary, and a number of other flourishing schools, one Masonic and one Good Tempars hall, three hotels, three boarding houses, two express offices, two steam saw mills, three lumber yards, three brick yards, a foundry, a woolen factory, a tobacco factory, two marble works, two public ice houses, two butcher shops, three boot and shoe shops, three stove and tin shops, three harness shops, two barber shops, three carpenter shops, three blacksmith shops, ten dry goods and eight family grocery stores, three drug stores, three milliner shops, two hardware stores, two furniture stores, two jewelry stores, two tailor shops, one bakery, three saloons, a billiard saloon, eight doctors, nine lawyers, ten ministers, two real estate agents, three insurance agents, four notaries public, one dentist, one photographer, two war claim agents, two music teachers, one wagon shop, one gunsmith shop, and two lines of stages running north and south daily. Among the recent and most valuable improvements is a very large and fine brick hotel, now in course of erection by its enterprising citizen A. R. Ringo, private banker, A part of the building will be fitted as first class business rooms and offices, in which will be found Judge John P. Clark, Clerk of the Circuit Court, and one of the oldest, most accomodating and reliable land agents in the city.

This county is generally high and rolling prairie land predominating. The soil is mostly of a clayey loam, which is slightly retentive of moisture, but when cultivated and fall-plowed, becomes light and highly productive. The fine sand with the clay tends to make the soil warm up quick when the spring opens

There are no rivers proper in this county. The principal streams are Cuivre, Hickory creek, Littleby, Salt river, Young's creek and Saline creek. These streams are small, none averaging over a rod in width in the dry season. The current is not rapid in any of the streams. But few springs are found in the county. The water in all the streams is soft,

I believe there is not a developed water power in the county, though there are a dozen sites for mill seats. There have been several water mills in this county, but steam, being so convenient to locate, has superceded them in propelling our mills and factories.

Timber is tolerably plenty along all the streams, and most of it is of a good quality. White oak, Hickory and black walnut are the most abundant, while burr oak, elm maple, walnut, sycamore, linn or bass wood, birch, etc., are found quite plentifully, and of a size suitable for sawing. Grapes, plums, gooseberries, blockberries, strawberries, etc., are the most kinds of wild fruits and in their season, are usually quite abundant.

There are no government lands in this county, but there is a large amount of land, held by both residents and non-residents, that is in market at reasonable rates. The average price of improved farms is about $15 per acre, and for unimproved, $7.

Building lime and sandstone are abundant. Fire and potter's clay have been found. Coal of a good quality is abundant in nearly every township in the county. Most of the coal thus far mined has been by 'stripping'—taking off the dirt and then digging up the coal. So far as I know, there is but one mine worked under ground. The average depth of the veins is probably about twenty inches.

There are several small flouring and quite a number of saw mills in the county; only one woolen factory and a machine shop.

An agricultural society was organized here several years ago, and held one fair. It was a joint stock company, incorporated by special act of the Legislature. The fair held here was a decided success, with fine buildings and fixtures erected by the company at a cost of several thousand dollars, and the ground has beautiful shade trees that adorn it.

From the best information I can get, I should say not over one-tenth of the land in this county is in cultivation. There are about 9,500 inhabitants now in the county.

Considerable wool is produced in this county, but not much for export. I do not know of any one who makes wool raising a busines to any great extent. The wild pasturage is good and sheep healthy, and if our legislators will only tax down worthless dogs, we may reasonably hope for an increase in the amount of wool raised in our county.

Considerable hedging was put out before the war, and some of it has done well, while the rest has failed; probably the failures were in proportion to the neglect in attending to the hedge the first years of its growth. The Osage is the only plant tried.

The people are beginning to wake up to the importance of fruit culture. The few who put out fruit trees ten years ago, are receiving their reward now, and their success is stimulating others to plant quite liberally. The land is well adapted to the cultivation of all the finest fruits, and ere long they will make rich displays of them at their horticulturul gatherings.

There is no vineyard of any size in the county, but enough grapes have been raised in different parts of the county to demonstrate the ability to raise them plentifully. Several of the citizens are fixing to plant more grapes in the spring, and some planted last fall.

The market facilities are good, and very soon will be unsurpassed. The North Missouri railroad runs through the entire length of the county, giving a market through to St. Louis, and in a few years this road will be completed to the Iowa roads.

BOONE

Is situated on the Missouri river, near the center of the State, and is bounded on the north by Randolph and Audrain, and on the east by Audrain and Callaway, and on the south and west by the Missouri river, and on the north-west by Howard county; having a length of thirty-six miles from north to south, and a breadth of twenty-two miles from east to west, and contains seven townships, viz: Bourbon, Cedar, Columbia, Missouri, Perche, Rocheport and Rocky Fork. It is watered by Bonne Femme, Hinkson's branch, Rockbridge river and Silver Fork. Columbia is the County Seat, situated near the centre of the county. There is in this county 368,000 acres of lands in farms, and about 391,000 acres in all. This county is reached on one side by the Missouri river, and on the other by the N. M. R. R., having two stations on the latter within its limits.

Columbia is the County Seat of Boone county, and is situated near the center of the county, in a rich and fertile country, unsurpassed by any in the State. It is surrounded entirely by a timbered country, well watered, and for health it is not surpassed by any locality in the State.

Columbia is about thirty miles north-west of Jefferson City, and is about nine miles from the nearest landing on the Missouri river, at Providence, with which it is connected by a gravel road, constructed some twelve years ago. Columbia is about twenty-one miles from the nearest depot on the North Missouri Railroad, at Centralia, in the county, but there is now in process of construction a railread leading from Columbia and tapping the North Missouri railroad at Centralia, twenty-one miles in length, and known as the Columbia and Centralia Railroad. This road will be finised by the first of July, 1867; the grading and masonry are now almost completed, and the iron has been all secured and purchased. The county isssued her bonds to this end to the amount of two hundred thousand dollars, and they have all been sold at par, purchased chiefly by her own citizens. When completed, Columbia will be in a direct railroad communication with St. Louis, without changing cars.

By a large appropriation made by the county, together with the voluntarily contributions of the citizens, ample means have already been secured to construct three substantial rock or turnpike roads, all leading from Columbia to the eastern, western and southern boundaries of the county. These roads will all be put under contract this spring.

Columbia has a population of about thirty-five hundred souls. The State University is located in this place. The edifice itself cost over eighty-five thousand dollars in 1840, and was built exclusively out of the voluntary contributions of the citizens of the county. The whole amount raised at that time, and donated by the citizens of the county to this institution, exceeded one hundred and twenty thousand dollars. (A liberality in the cause of education unprecedented in the history of this county, taking into consideration the wealth of the county at that time.) The endowment fund amounts to about one hundred and twenty-three thousand, the interest on which in part supports the university.

There is also in this place two large female schools, both in a prosperous condition, and long established; one "Christian Female College," the other "Baptist Female College," each of which had over 100 pupils at the last session. The Court House is a very substantial building, built about the year 1850, at a cost of about $18,000.

The general surface of this county is gently undulating, and the great body of the soil rich and productive. The Missouri river forms the southern boundary. Several small streams which rise in the northern and north-western part of the county, unite and form the Roche Perche, which runs into the Missouri river about ten miles below the town of Rocheport, which is in the south-west corner of the county. At this last named point is the mouth of the Moniteau, a stream of less size, and forming the boundary line between Boone and Howard for ten miles from its mouth. Cedar creek, a stream about forty miles in length, has its source in the north-east; forms part of the boundary between Boone and Callaway, and flows into the Missouri river nearly opposite the city of Jefferson.

There are some lasting springs of pure water, but, as a general thing cisterns are used for drinking and family purposes, and ponds for stock. No streams that afford available water power the whole year, for manufacturing purposes.

Timber is abundant and of fine quality, consisting chiefly of oak, walnut, ash, hickery, sugar-tree and elm; undergrowth, hazel, sumach, pawpaw, dogwood and redbud.

Wild fruits, grapes, haws, blackberries, crab apples, plums, hickory nuts, walnuts and hazel nuts.

There is no land owned by the United States government, but little by non-residents, ten or twelve acres by the Boone County Agricultural Society, a few acres each by the two female colleges at Columbia, where the State holds a small tract, on which is the University of Missouri.

The average value of improved lands is about $20 per acre; of unimproved, from $5 to $10.

Lime rock of the finest quality abounds in different parts of the county. Flintstone is found in the beds of many of the small streams; sandstone, in a few places only.

Coal is found in large quantities, and several fine veins have been opened, from which the city of Columbia is abundantly supplied. No iron, lead or copper has been discovered, and there are no indications of coal oil.

There is a fine flouring mill at Columbia, one with a steam distillery connected at Rock Bridge, five miles south-west; one at Rocheport, and a water mill on Cedar creek, which runs about half the year; also two steam mills in process of erection.

About one-half of the land is in cultivation, and, according to the census 1864, the population was fifteen thousand seven hundred and seventy-four. Owing to the existing troubles, at that time, growing out of the rebellion, it was impossible to obtain a correct enumeration. There are over 20,000 inhabitants at this time.

The great source of wealth to the county is stock raising, and no other in the State is more noted for its fine horses, mules, jacks and cattle; hence, corn, oats, blue grass, clover and timothy are regarded as the most valuable crops, and are mostly fed on the farms that produce them.

There is a growing disposition among the farmers to grade and macadamize the principal thoroughfares, and a railroad connecting Columbia with the North Missouri Railroad, will most likely be built at an early period.

The followins is a list of County officers:

Representatives in the Legislature, James S. Rollins and Rollin Lyman.
Sheriff, James C. Orr.
Circuit Clerk, John M. Samuel.
County Clerk, Warren Woodson.
County Judges, John W. Hall, James Harris, and James Arnold.
Supervisor of Registration, Jefferson Garth.
County Attorney, Washington Gordon.
County Assessor, Joseph W Hickman.
County School Commissioner, James Henderson.
Public Administrator, John Ellis.

BUCHANAN

Is in the western portion of the State, on the Missouri river, and is bounded by Andrew on the north, DeKalb and Clinton on the east, Platte on the south, and the Missouri river on the west. This county is entered by the Platte Country Railroad from the north and south, and by the Hannibal and St. Joseph Railroad on the east, and has a long river line for its western frontier. St. Joseph is a place of the greatest importance in North Missouri, and is the capital of this county. The Platte river and its branches water the eastern part of the county. The land is quite hilly and uneven, while there is most splendid timber in many parts of this county. The county is quite well settled up, 248,000 acres of land being in farms, 113,000 of which is under cultivation. The townships are Bloomington, Center, Crawford, DeKalb, Fremont, Jackson, Lake, Marion, Platte, Rush, St. Joseph, Washington and Wayne.

CALDWELL

Is situated in the north part of the State, and in the third tier of counties from the Iowa line, has Davis county on the north, Livingston and Carroll counties on the east, Ray county on the south, and Clinton county on the west. It is twenty four miles long east and west, and eighteen wide north and south. It contains five civil townships, viz: Davis, Elm, Grand River, Blythe and Rockford, with a population in 1860 of 5,034. This county is very well watered by Shoal creek, which runs the entire length of the county from west to east; it has numerous tributaries—Mill, Log, Mud and several other creeks. It is also well timbered, the timber being very well distributed throughout the county. The central part of the county also abounds in good stone for building. There are indications of stone coal and kerosene oil, but proper examinations have not been made; also good indications for marble. The assessed value of personal and real estate in this county in 1860 was $1,045,927; estimated true value, $2,117,671. The population and valuation of real estate, are increasing very fast at present. The Mormons settled in this county about the year 1832, and built the town of Far West; but after they were driven out in 1835 and went to Nauvoo, Ill., the town of Far West was completely destroyed and moved away. The foundation of their "Temple" is still visible. This town was situated in the north-west part of the county.

The present county officers are:

Circuit Clerk, J. H. Williams.
County Clerk, Walker Miller.
Probate Judge, John Wright.
County Treasurer, S. E. Turner.
County Attorney, J. D. S. Cook.
Sheriff, Isaiah Jones.
Superintendent of Public Schools, Hamilton McAfee.
Justices of the County Court, John F. Dodge, E. D. Johnson, and J. H. Nosler.

CALLAWAY

Is situated south on the Missouri river, which is its southern boundary, and Montgomery its eastern, Audrain its northern, and Boone its western; it is reached by stage from Mexico, and by boat from St. Louis; Fulton is the County Seat, where they are building a fine Court House. The County is large and contains six townships, viz: Bourbon, Cedar, Cotes-an-dissein, District No 18, Liberty and Round Prairie, and contains about 460,000 acres of land, of which 154,000 is under cultivation. It is well watered by Muddy and other creeks. There is plenty of coal in the banks of the creeks, and excellent timber in all parts.

CARROLL

Is situated south on the Missouri river, which is its southern boundary, Chariton is on the east, Livingston on the North, and Caldwell and Ray on the west; it is on the line of the extension of the west branch of the North Missouri Railroad, which will run through its County Seat, Carrollton. The county contains six townships, Carrollton, Grand River, Hurricane, Morris, Sugar Tree Bottom, and Waconda, and is watered by Turkey and Big creeks and their branches. The county has some very rich bottom land, and has about 391,000 acres of land, of which 51,000 is under cultivation. This county contains both coal and lead.

CHARITON

Is centrally situated in the interior on an extensive bend of the Missouri river, having it for its southern boundary, together with a corner of Howard, and on the east Randolph and a portion of Macon, on the north Macon and Linn, and on the west Carroll and a portion of Livingston. The county has a length from east to west of thirty-three miles in the longest part, and from north to south thirty miles, being quite pointed at its southern extremity. The county contains nine townships, viz: Buffalo Lick, Bee Branch, Brunswick, Chariton, Clark, Keytesville, Missouri, Prairie and Yellow Creek, with an area of 294,000 acres of land under fence. The county is well watered by the Chariton and Grand rivers, and their branches. Keytesville is the County Seat, and Brunswick is a place of considerable importance. This county contains coal.

The first session of the Missouri Legislature was held in 1820; and at this session the county of Charitan was organized. In 1821, I think, the Chariton Circuit Court was organized at Old Chariton, near the present town of Glasgow, and the machinery of the new county was put into operation. At this time it was thought that Old Chariton would become the great town of Missouri, and many shrewd men invested in town lots at high prices. Lots now in the business centre of St. Louis, were freely traded for lots in Old Chariton. Subsequently, and about the time Keyte laid off the town, the County Seat was relocated and permanently fixed at Keytesville. A Court House was soon erected, and the courts which were previously held in a private building, commenced carrying on business in style.

Of the sterling men who settled this county, and laid the foundation of its prosperity, much might be written that would interest the reader, but it is not now my purpose to write of the past, or to chronicle the changes that have taken place since their day.

CLARK

This is the most north-eastern county in the State, being bounded by Iowa on the north, the DesMoines river on the north-east, the Mississippi river on the east, Lewis county on the south, and Scotland county on the west; having a length from east to west, on the north, of twelve miles, and on the south of twenty-two miles; while from north to south it extends twenty-four miles; having an are of 185,000 acres of land under fence. The county contains twelve townships, viz: Alexandria, DesMoines, Folker, Jackson, Jefferson, Madison, St. Francisville, Sweet Home, Union, Vernon, Washington and Wyaconda, which are well watered by Fox river and Wyaconda creek and branches.

The general character of Clark county, in reference to the division of its soil, may be stated as follows:

Perhaps fully one half of the tillable soil is bottom and upland prairie, every acre of which is, or can be made, available for agricultural purposes. One-half of the county is timbered land, conveniently located for use on the prairies, or wherever needed. It is principally level, rolling, and in some instances hilly and abruptly bluffy in its topography. The prairies are level, gently undulating and rolling, diversified with numerous springs, small branches of creeks and draws.

The timbered districts are level, rolling, hilly and bluffy, frequently interspersed with springs, creeks, ravines, vales, and smooth bottom lands.

The soil is variable. In the bottoms it is usually rich, dark, loamy or sandy, on the hills and bluffs strong, dark, slightly stony and intermixed with clay.

The prairies are perfectly splendid in their appearance and matchless in soil, a rich black loam, with clay sub-soil. They are susceptible of the highest state of cultivation, teeming with magnificent crops of cereals, grasses, tubers roots; covered with excellent orchards, while countless, herds of cattle horses, sheep, swine and all the herbivora, dot the vast expanse uncultivated, pleasing the eye, exalting the understanding, and whispering to the observant, reflecting mind a faint dream of fabulous, inexhaustible wealth, to be realized in future generations.

The north-eastern border of the county is washed by the waters of the DesMoines river for a distance of thirty miles, forming a tributary of the grand old Mississippi, which flows past its eastern boundary a distance of thirteen miles. Enough is known of the Fathers of Waters to require no further remarks from us; rather let us turn to the more unobtrusive, less known, but none the less beautiful DesMoines. This is decidedly the most attractive and picturesque river of the west. It is navigable in the spring time a distance of two hundred miles for ordinary light draught boats. Smaller crafts, propelled by steam, have gone as high as Fort Clark, a distance of three hundred and forty miles. Its width is two hundred and fifty to thee hundred yards. The force of current, at ordinary stage, is four miles an hour, and its depth at a low stage two and one-half to three feet.

There is no river in the west producing a more inexhaustable, and at the same time easily accessible water power, or presenting better locations for the erection of manufacturing works.

No county presents better facilities and more natural resources for the speedy and economical construction of works of this character, while no county in the west, just at this time, offers greater inducements to capitalists and men of practical experience to embark in this enterprise.

Speaking of the DesMoines and Mississippi rivers, calls to mind a decided tendency on their part to inundate, during the spring freshets, some of the richest bottom farm lands in the country, extending longitudinally a distance of four to six miles, and latitudinally about twenty miles. This difficulty could be obviated at a comparatively trifling cost, by building a dyke or levee similar to those erected on the lower Mississippi.

About six miles distant from the DesMoines, and running parallel with it, is Fox river, a small, sluggish stream, somewhat used for a water power, but not so much as formerly. Since the settlement of the country the water runs off more rapidly, and there are times when water enough to turn a wheel cannot be obtained. It is affected by drouth, and depends principally upon its tributary creeks and branches for its volume of water. It empties into the Mississippi.

The Wyaconda river sweeps through the south-west corner of the county. It is a small stream, possessing the same general characteristics of Fox river, and affected by the same influences.

Between Fox and the Wyaconda rivers are Sugar and Honey creeks. These creeks are simply what their names imply, and need no further comment.

There are a number of durable springs in the county, and more constantly being developed as the county progresses. There is most excellent water accessable in all parts of the county at a depth of ten to forty feet. The well water is all hard, though some of the springs afford excellent soft water. A great many of the stock raisers are constructing artificial ponds or reservoirs, the clay sub-soil holding water well. These ponds are very serviceable and durable.

It may not be amiss to state here, that, comparing the resources, natural advantages, proximity to rivers, railroads, etc., of this county, such is the desire of its citizens to encourage a good class of immigration, that they are selling lands fifty per cent. cheaper than any other county in the State.

We must not omit some mention of the railroad which runs through the county, and to which the county has subscribed liberally. It is the Alexandria and Bloomfield road, and is being constructed as rapidly as can be effected by a large working force. We may expect at no distant day to see the iron horse flying rapidly over this beautiful county, laden with rich treasures of the fertile and productive land.

This county is amply timbered, being at least one-half covered with dense growths of every variety. The supply will more than equal all demands for centuries. There are large quantities of excellent white oak bordering on the DesMoines river, suitable for boat building, with ample supplies of walnut and cherry, employed in finishing and fine work. There have already been numerous hulls constructed on the DesMoines river for barges and steamboats.

There are about one hundred and sixty acres of government land in the county, very poor and entirely worthless—not fit for pasturage. About one-fourth of the land in the county is owned by non-residents. There is no land owned by corporations. The average price of improved farms is at least twenty.five dollars per acre. The average price of unimproved land is about fifteen dollars per acre.

They have an ample supply of gray, white and blue limestone, gray granite, white and yellow sandstone, blue soapstone, black and yellow slatestone. They have an abundance of bituminous coal, also some cannel coal. They have some fifteen veins of bituminous coal that have been and are now opened and worked to some extent. The veins will average from two to three feet in thickness, and are usually from ten to twenty feet below the surface. Mining operations have been restricted entirely to coal, with great success, presenting a fine opening for the successful employment of large capital.

There are four flouring mills in the county, located at the following points: one extra fine, large mill at Athens, water power; one extra fine large mill at Alexandria, steam power; one mill near Winchester, steam power; one mill at Waterloo, water power.

There is one woolen factory at Athens, with inexhaustible water power, presenting a fine opening for the investment of capital. This factory has a massive solid masonry foundation, sixty by one hundred feet dimension. The superstructure at present completed is only sixty feet square, and five stories high, working one hundred and twenty spindles, six looms, one breaker, one condenser, etc., with two carding machines. There is no better sheep country in the west than this. The market at home will absorb the total manufacture. The property is eligibly situated with regard to accessibility, railroad and river transportation being available. It is situated on the south bank of the DesMoines river, twenty-five miles above its junction with the Mississippi river. All that is necessary to make a first class factory is capital.

CLAY

Is situated in the west part of the State, on the north side of and bordering on the Missouri river, by which it has a very irregular and crooked boundary. The county is bounded on the east by Ray, and on the north by Clinton, on the west by Platte, and South by the Missouri river. Its length from east to west being twenty-one miles, and from north to south from fifteen to twenty-one miles; its County Seat is Liberty, which is described on the 179th page of this book. The county contains six townships, named as follows: Fishing River, Gallatin, Liberty, Missouri, Platte and Washington. The county is watered by Fishing river and its branches, and contains much very fine land.

Population about 18,000.

CLINTON

Is situated in the western part of the State, and has the H. & St. Jo. R. R. near its northern boundary line, it crossing it three times. The county is nineteen miles from north to south, and twenty from east to west; being nearly an exact square. It is bounded on the north by DeKalb, on the east by Caldwell and a portion of Ray, on the south by Clay and the west by Buchanan and a portion of Platte. This county contains much beautiful prairie land, and has not many streams of water, except Castle creek in the north-west part. Plattsburg is the county seat, for which see a description on the 224th page of this work. The county contains boundless acres of smoothly rolling, unoccupied prairie land, which looks very inviting to the agriculturist, and as it is to be intersected by still another railroad, in a north and south direction, no part of it will be more than ten miles from a railroad. It has seven townships as follows: Concord, Plattsburg, Hardin, Jackson, Lafayette, Platte and Shoal.

Population about 12,000.

DAVIESS

This county is situated on the north side of the H. & St. Jo. R. R., the third row of counties east and north from the Missouri river; it is bounded on the north by Harrison, the east by Grundy and Livingston, on the south by Caldwell, and on the west by DeKalb and a portion of Gentry; its length from north to south being twenty-four miles, and its breadth from east to west the same, it will be thus seen that it contains 368,640 acres of land. It is intersected and watered by the west branch of Grand river and its branches, which flow from the north-west to the south-east. The County Seat is Gallatin, for which see a description on the 149th page. The county contains seven townships, viz: Benton, Gallatin, Grand River, Harrison, Jackson, Jefferson and Salem.

Population about 10,000.

DE KALB

Is situated in the west part of the State, the second row of counties east of the Missouri river, and on the north side of the H. & St. Jo. R. R. The county is bounded on the north by Gentry, on the east by Harrison and a portion of Daviess, on the south by Clinton, and the west by Andrew and a portion of Buchanan, and has a length of twenty-one miles from north to south, and the same in width. It is watered by Grind Stone creek and one of the branches of the Platte river. The surface of the country is very high and gently rolling, and partakes very largely of the prairie element. Maysville is the County Seat, situated centrally, and further described on page 194 of this work. The county contains five townships as follows: Camden, Dallas, Grand River, Polk and Washington, and has a population of about ten thousand.

GENTRY

Is situated in the north-west part of the State, only fourteen miles from the Iowa line, and being about twenty-four distant north of the H. & St. Jo.

R. R. It is bounded on the north by Worth, on the east by Harrison and a portion of Daviess, on the south by DeKalb, and the west by Nodaway and a portion of Andrews; it having a length of twenty-four miles from north to south, and a width from east to west of twenty-one miles. It is intersected by the west branch of Grand river, the head waters of Sampson creek, and the Wild Cat, and is well watered and timbered in all parts except in the more south-west portion. Albany is the County Seat, it can be found described on the 105th page of this work. The county contains a population of about thirteen thousand inhabitants, and contains both coal and copper among its minerals.

GRUNDY

Is situated centrally in the north part of the State, being about twelve miles north of the H.& St. Jo. R. R., and is bounded on the north by Mercer, on the east by Sullivan and a portion of Linn, on the south by Livingston, and on the west by Daviess and Harrison, and has a length from north to south of twenty-two and a half miles, and from east to west of twenty miles. The county is well watered by Thompson's Fork of Grand river, and West Fork and Hickory creek. It is also well timbered and is a fine grazing county, having a perfect hilly surface. Trenton is the County Seat, for which see a description on page 267 of this book. The county contains seven townships, as follows: Franklin, Jefferson, Liberty, Madison, Marion, Trenton and Washington, and had a population of about eight thousand in 1860.

HARRISON

Is situated in the north tier of counties adjoining Iowa, sixty miles east of the Missouri river, and is thirty one miles north and south, and twenty-four miles east and west, The surface is principally high rolling prairies, interspersed with plenty of timber. Grand river runs through the east portion of the county, and Big creek through the centre, which furnishes excellent mill power, There is but very little land which is not capable of cultivation and all of the grains are profitably raised—wheat, 83,936 bushels: corn, 2,593.870; horses, 6,039; mules, 614; cattle, 13,828; sheep, 34,461; and 32,-084 hogs.

Population, 14,931. Total assessed value of personal property, $1,385,-217; real estate, $2,064.530; total, $3,449,747. No. of children between five and twenty years of age, males, 2,547; females, 2,407; total, 4,956. No. attending school past year, $2,169; amount of school fund paid teachers, $7, 059 63.

Great inducements are presented to emigrants; lands are good and selling at almost government prices, and no county in the State presents better chances for profitable investment.

HOLT

Is one of the most western counties in the State, being on the Missouri river, west of the Nodaway, and bounded on the north by Atchison county, and on the west, south-west and south, by the Missouri river. Its length from north to south being twenty-four miles, and on its widest meridian twenty miles. It contains seven townships, as follows: Benton, Clay, Dallas, Forest City, Lewis, Nodaway and Oregon. Its County Seat is named Oregon, for which see a description on page 213. There is a railroad projected lengthways through this county, and which will intersect a very fine and fertile district. The county is mostly prairie, and has only a few small creeks three or four in number, the land being high and rolling.

HOWARD.

This county is situated centrally on the north side of the Missouri river, and is of irregular shape, being bounded on the west and south by the Missouri river, on the north by Chariton and Randolph, and on the east by Boone; having Fayette for its County Seat, which is situated centrally and near the Bonne Femme creek, and for which place see a better description on the 144th page of this book. The length of this county from north to south in twenty-three miles, and the greatest width is twenty-two miles. It is watered by the Moniteau and Bonne Femme creeks, and the county contains many excellent farms, and contains a greater amount of farming machinery than any other county in North Missouri. The county is divided in the following townships: Bonne Femme, Boonslick, Chariton, Fayette, Franklin, Glasgow, Monitau, Prairie and Richmond, and had in 1860 a population of 10,120, and now contains many more. This county contains both coal and lead.

KNOX

Is situated in the north-eastern part of the State, and is of a quadrangular form, being twenty-one by twenty-four, the first from east to west, and the last from north to south. It is bounded on the north by Scotland, on the east by Lewis, on the south by Shelby, and on the west by Adair and a portion of Macon. Edina, the County Seat, is situated centrally, and on the South Fabius creek, but for a further description of it see the 141st page of this work. This county is well watered, having seven streams of living water, each a few miles apart, flowing to the south-east in nearly parallel lines; they are the branches of the Fabiuses and of Salt river. This county is about fifteen miles north of the H. & St. Jo. R. R., and twenty-four miles west of the Mississippi river, and contains the following townships: Benton, Center, Fabius, Greensburg, Jeddo and Salt river. This county contains also both lead and coal, and has a population of about 9,000.

LEWIS.

This county borders on the west side of the Mississippi river, between the river and Knox county.

The surface is mostly level or undulating, sometimes rising in picturesque hills and bluffs along the streams, then stretching away into vast prairies, generally running parallel with the general course of the streams.

The soil is fertile, particularly along the margin of the rivers; and even the most barren ridges are profitably cultivated.

The climate, though variable, is healthy, and the summer seasons are very warm.

The interior of the country is well watered by the Wyaconda, the North, Middle and South Fabius rivers, with many other smaller streams of never-failing supplies of soft waters and an available water power for manufacturing purposes.

Along the border of the streams is found a great variety of excellent timber, of which white oak, black oak, walnut and hickory constitute the principal variety, amongst which is generally found a thick underbrush of crab apple and wild plum, also grape vines twining amongst the branches, producing fruit abundantly.

The lands of this county have all been entered, of which there are large tracts owned by non-residents, and also some owned by railroad companies. Improved farms are sold at an average price of fifteen dollars per acre, and the average price of unimproved lands is less than five dollars per acre.

There are no mines in operation, although we are assured that veins of excellent coal exists in the northern part of the county. Limestone is found in abundance, and is extensively used for building purposes and burning into lime. No indications of coal oil exist, which has very generally excited the inhabitants of other sections of the State.

Mills are scarce, although there are a number of exellent flouring mills and carding factories. Agricultural implements, with the exception of plows are generally imported.

They have an agricultural and mechanical association, incorporated by an act of the Legislature, approved March 14th, 1856.

About one-half of the county is in cultivation, of which the productions are wheat, corn, oats, hay, buck-wheat, sorghum and pototoes. Both fall and spring wheat are raised. Fall wheat produces an average crop of thirty bushels per acre among the best farmers. Neither drilling or sub-soil plowing has been introduced to any extent, which would probably increase the wheat crop fifty per cent. Corn is extensively cultivated for feed, which is generally fed to stock in the ear, and but small quantities are exported. The cultivation of sorghum has become general; is now raised upon almost every farm, from which small quantities of sugar have been manufactured. Many improvements have been made in the implements for its manufacture. Attention is paid to raising hay and tame grasses, which meet with success. Timothy and clover mixed are more prifitable for winter feed, but extensive fields of clover are cultivated for pasturage. Large quantities of Hungarian hay are raised, the use of which does not meet with the approbation that clover and timothy do.

Hedging has been tried, and excellent Osage fences in different parts of the county exist.

Orchards are not generally cultivated, although both climate and soil are adapted to the raising of fruit trees. John C. McAfee is a professional fruit grower, and has an excellent and extensive nursery near LaGrange, in this county.

Immigration into the county during the past summer has been vast, and with each eastern immigration are introduced improvements in farming implements, stock, system and mode of cultivation, that promise fair, in the course of a few years, to so much improve this section of country as to be able to compete with older States in resources.

LINCOLN

Was organized from St. Charles county in 1820; at that time the territory of St. Charles extended to the northern boundary of the State, and westward as far as Boone county. Lincoln county is situated north of the Missouri river, St. Charles county intervening between it and the Missouri river, and is bounded by St. Charles county on the south, the Mississippi river on the east, Warren and Montgomery counties on the west, and Pike county on the north, and contains eight organized townships, viz: Bedford, Clark, Monroe, Hurricane, Union, Millwood, Waverly and Prairie. Quiver rrver, running from north-west to south-east, runs through the entire county, which is drained by the river above named, and its tributaries.

There is an abundance of excellent timber land in this county, also rich and fertile prairies. There are some four or five water mills in the county and twelve or fourteen steam saw and flouring mills. Troy is the County Seat, and is situated within ten miles of Wright City, on the N. M. R. R. There are a number of flourishing towns in the county, among them are Troy, Auburn, New Hope, Falmouth, Truxton, Millwood, Louisville, Drydonsville, Old Monroe, Cap au Gris and Chantilly. Total number of acres in the superficial area of the county, about 400,000.

In 1866 there were 5,234 horses, 1,006 mules and asses, 9,043 neat cattle, 14,986 sheep, 14,681 hogs; total valuation of real estate, $1,753,860; valuation of personal property, $1,094,020; valuation of real and personal, $2,847,-880. Population in 1864, 15,311, There were in 1866, 5,021 children between the ages of five and twenty-one years; sixty-six school districts, fifty-nine teachers, forty-five male and fourteen female. There is a large college building at the County Seat, capable of accommodating 300 pupils, called the Christian Institute. The staple products are wheat, corn and tobacco. The lands are rich and fertile, and this may be considered over an average county in richness of soil and products.

The prices of land range from five to twenty dollars per acre, and have always been considered cheap in proportion to other lands in other adjoining counties, which offer a fine inducement for emigration.

Coal is found in abundance, in several parts veins of excellent quality have been struck near the surface, eighteen feet in thickness, and they have not yet went through the vein.

LINN

Is situated centrally on the line of the H. & St. Jo. R. R., 100 miles west of the Mississippi and the same east of the Missouri, and the second county from it northward. It is a very large county, being twenty-seven miles from east to west, and twenty-four from north to south. It is bounded on the north by Sullivan, on the east by Macon on the south by Chariton, and on the west by Livingston and a portion of Grundy. Linneus, the County Seat, is situated nearly centrally, and for a description of which, look on page 181 of this book. The county is traversed by the Little Yellow, the Yellow and Locust creeks, which run from the north to the South, having between them a great deal of hilly country, covered with a small growth of timber; but in the western half of the county the land is much the best, and is in fact a very beautiful farming country. The county contains coal, and in 1860 contained a population of between eight and nine thousand, which is now doubled.

LIVINGSTON

Is situated centrally on the line of the H. & St. Jo. R. R., the fourth in succession eastward from the Missouri river, and the fifth from the Mississippi; its shape is nearly quadrangular, except a small toe which projects to the east at the south-east corner, caused by following Grand river for a boundary. The county is bounded on the north by Grundy, on the east by Linn, on the south by Carroll, and on the west by Caldwell and Daviess. Chillicothe, the County Seat, is situated as near the center as may be, and for which see the 127th page of this book. This county has a length from north to south of twenty-four miles, and on the narrowest part a width from east of twenty-one, and in the widest part twenty-seven miles. Grand river and its forks penetrate the county in every direction. There is much rich bottom land and excellent timber in this county. It contains both coal and copper, and has seven townships, viz: Chillicothe, Cream Ridge, Grand River, Green, Jackson, Monroe and Maud, and has a poulation of about 12,000.

MACON

Lies in the northern part of the State, and is bounded on the north by Adair and Knox counties, on the east by Knox and Shelby counties, on the south by Randolph and Chariton counties, and on the west by Chariton and Linn counties. Length north and south, thirty miles, with an average width of twenty-eight miles. It has a fertile soil, about equally divided with timber and prairie; the timber are various kind of oak, mostly white oak, also walnut, hickory, maple, ash and various other kind of timber. The H. & St. Jo. R. R. runs through the southern part of the county east and west, and the N. M. R. R. runs through north and south. There are three rivers running through the county in a southern direction, and a number of creeks.

The prairie land is high and rolling; it is excellent farming land. There are fourteen townships in the county, viz: Middle Fork, Ten Mile, Jackson, Laplata, Richland, Walnut Creek, Independence, Liberty, Russell, Callao, Bevier, Chariton, Narrows and Hudson. The population is about 20,000. The assessed value of the real estate of this county is $2,643,604; number of horses, 6,825; nmmber of mules and asses, 1,786; neat cattle, 16,946; number of sheep, 28,389; number of hogs, 36,814; other personal property, $569,908; moneys, bonds, notes, bills of exchange and other securities, $569,908; number of acres, 436,713; total taxable wealth, $4,108,388.

The following is a list of county officers:

Representative, T. A. Eagle.
County Clerk, John Farrar.
Circuit Clerk, John M. Loudon.
Sheriff, William Forbes.
Treasurer, Geo. W. Bearnes.
County Judge, A. C. Atterbury.
County Judge, Wm. D. Roberts.
County Judge, J. R. Alderman.
Supervisor of Registration, Thos. Smith.
Coroner, E. C. Still.
County School Superintendent, S. P. Vandoozer.
Assessor, N. H. Patton.

MARION

Is situated east on the Mississippi river, at the eastern terminus of the H. & St. Jo. R. R., and is in the form of a parallelogram; having the southern side the largest, caused by the eastern tendency of this river in this part, the county having a length on its southern border of thirty miles, while on its northern side it has only twenty-one, its width north and south is eighteen miles. It is watered by two rivers, which flow in an irregular direction, both empty in the Father of Waters, viz: North river and the South Fabius. The county is nicely diversified as to surface. scenery, water and timber, and is well settled up with wealthy planters. The County Seat, Palmyra, is a pleasant place, and is described on page 215 of this book. Coal is found in this county, but not mined to any great extent. The townships are ten in number, named as follows: Hannibal, Liberty, Mason, Miller, Palmyra, Round Grove, South River, Union and Warren.

Population of this county, about 30,000.

MERCER

Is situated in the extreme north part of the State, adjoining the Iowa line The county has a square form, being twenty miles either direction in length or breadth north or south. It is bounded on the east by Putnam and a portion of Sullivan, on the south by Grundy, and on the west by Harrison. It is divided in about two equal parts by the Weldon river running from north to south, and Thompson's Fork intersects its eastern edge. Princeton, the County Seat, is situated centrally, and further described on the 222d page. The country appears new and not populous in inhabitants. Minerals seem to abound, there being iron, coal and copper found in this county. There are ten townships, as follows: Harrison, Lindsley, Madison, Marion, Medicine, Morgan, Princeton, Ravana, Somerset, and Washington. This county is at present thirty-four miles from any railroad, and one is spoken of to be built up the Grand and Weldon river bottoms, which will open up some of the newest portions of this heretofore little known country.

MONROE.

This splendid county of land is situated on the point between the intersection of the North Missouri and the H. & St. Jo. R. R., being tapped by that road in the north-east part, but not touched by the N. M. R. R. by about five miles on the west. The county is bounded by Shelby and Marion on the north, Ralls on the east, Audrain on the south, and Randolph on the west; its length from east to west being thirty-one miles, and width from north to south twenty-one miles. It is intersected in various directions by Salt river and its branches, being eight creeks, which leave no part of it scantily watered unless it be the south-west township. Paris, the County Seat, is described on page 218 of this work, The county contains coal and has nine townships, named as follows: Clay, Indian Creek, Jackson, Jefferson, Marion, South Fork, Union, Washington and Woodlawn. The population of the county in 1866 was 11,764, but now is much more, probably at fifteen or sixteen thousand.

MONTGOMERY.

This county is in the south-east part of North Missouri, on the line of the N. M. R. R., and is bounded on the North by Audrain and Pike, on the east by Lincoln and Warren, on the south by Warren and the Missouri river, and on the west by Callaway and a portion of Audrain; its greatest length from north to south, being thirty-one miles, and its width twenty miles. Danville, its County Seat, is further described on the 137th page. There are five little towns on the railroad in this county. The county is watered by the head waters of streams which run both into the Missouri and Mississippi rivers, and it has much beautiful and fertile land within its borders. It comprises the five following townships: Bear Creek, Danville, Loutre, Prairie, and Upper Loutre, All the settlements in this county look vigorous and prosperous, and it is one of those counties which are firmly fixed in our list of admiration, and from which we think few would wish to emigrate. Lead is found in this county.

NODAWAY.

This is a very large county, situated in the north-west part of the State, bordering on the Iowa line, and being next to the corner county of the State. It is bounded on the east by Worth and Gentry, on the south by Andrew, and on the west by Holt and Atchison; its length from north to south is thirty miles, and from east to west twenty-seven miles, and is watered by three large streams, the Nodaway, the One hundred and Two, and the Platte rivers, which all run is a pretty direct southern course, and have not many tributaries, but there is excellent timber on their margins. The land in this county is said to be of a good quality. The County Seat, Maryville, is further described on the 193 page of this book. The county contains about four hundred and ninety-five thousand three hundred and sixty acres of land, and had in 1860, a population of between five and six thousand people, which is now largely increased.

PIKE

This large county is situated east on the Mississippi river, which is its boundary for a distance of about thirty-six miles. It is bounded on the south by Lincoln and Montgomery, on the west by Audrain and Ralls, and on the north by Ralls, having almost a pentangular shape. Its greatest length from east to west being thirty-five miles, and that from north to south twenty-eight miles. Bowling Green, the County Seat, is further described on page 113 of this work, and for the balance of this description we are indebted to Mr. C. L. Draper, of Louisiana:

The city of Louisiana is situated in Pike county, and beautifully located upon the Mississippi river, about 120 miles above St. Louis, and thirty miles below Hannibal. Its present population is about 4,000 and is rapidly on the increase. The land on which the city is built, is gently undulating, affording an excellent location for the business part, and beautiful sites for residences. Its levee is considered one of the best on the Upper Mississippi, furnishing, at all stages of water, an excellent landing for boats. The streets are nearly all macadamized, and the sidewalks paved with brick and stone, so that the inhabitants are rarely ever troubled with mud. The scenery from the high bluffs, which lie above and below the place, is ever an object of admiration, affording the spectator magnificent views for miles across the waving prairies of Illinois, and up and down the river, which majestically flows hundreds of of feet below him. A steam ferry plies between the city and the opposite shore at all times, when crossing is not indeed impossible by ice, which is generally but a small part of the year. The society is refined and intelligent and is marked by a spirit of toleration and forbearance which pervades especially the different religious denominations. Besides numerous common and select schools, it has one high school and one college, and to those wishing to give their children a thorough education, no better opportunity could be afforded. Bowling Green, the County Seat, is situated eleven miles west, an excellent gravel turnpike connecting the two places. There are also two other gravel roads leading from Louisiana, one to Frankfort, sixteen miles northwest, and the other to Prairieville, fifteen miles south. Stages run daily to Hannibal, Wellsville and Clarksville, and tri-weekly to Pittsfield Ill.

The country back of Louisiana cannot be excelled anywhere in richness of soil and abundance and variety of products. At present there is every prospect that in a year or so a railroad will be built from Keokuk to St. Louis, passing through this point, and one from Naples, Ill., through this place and intersecting the North Missouri R. R. about Mexico, is also being earnestly discussed on both sides of the river, with a reasonable prospect of success.

PLATTE.

This is in the western part of the State, on the north-east bank of the the Missouri river, being almost triangular in shape, having the Missouri river for the hypothenuce, and the north and east lines, right lines, dividing it on the north from Buchanan, and on the south from Clay and a small portion of Clinton counties. It is intersected by the Platte river, which flows nearly north and south, and which is its only stream of importance. The county is hilly and timbered, and well supplied with an easily quarried sort of building stone of a yellow tint. Platte City, the County seat, is further described on the 223d page of this book. The counties greatest length east and west is nineteen miles, and twenty-one north and south; it contains eight townships, as follows: Carroll, Green, Lee, Marshall, Pettis, Platte, Preston and Weston, and has a line of railroad on the bank of the Misssouri river, which extends below the town of Weston.

PUTNAM.

This is one of the north tier of counties adjoining the Iowa line, on which it has a boundary of thirty-six miles. It is bounded on the east by Schuyler county, from which it is divided by the Chariton river, on the south it has Adair and Sullivan counties, and on the west Mercer. Its breadth from north to south being from fourteen to eighteen miles. It is watered by many small streams which are the heads and forks of the Chariton river and Locust creek; the western part especially being well supplied; the north-eastern part of the county wanting streams most. Unionville, the County Seat, is further described on the 270th page. The county contains eight townships, viz: Breckenridge, Elm, Jackson, Liberty, Medicine, Richland, Union and York. The county contains coal, but its distance from the railroad and the quantity of timber precludes the necessity for the use of it. There will, however, be a railroad within twelve miles of the county in a few months.

RALLS.

This county is situated in the eastern part of the State, and borders on the Mississippi river for a short distance, and on the south-east and south it has Pike and Audrain, and on the west Monroe county; its greatest length from north to south being twenty-four miles, and that from east to west being twenty-seven miles. It is well watered by Salt river and its tributaries, which generally flow in an eastern direction. New London, the the County Seat, is in the eastern part, and for a more extended description of it see the 209th page. The county contains seven townships, as follows: Clay, Center, Jasper, Saline, Salt River, Saverton and Spencer. There is much very fine country is this county, and an abundant supply of most excellent timber.

RANDOLPH

Has an area of about 400 square miles. The population in 1860 was 10,200, and the valuation of all taxable property, including slaves, was 3,000,000. The population now is about 14,000, and the total valuation of all taxable property $1,984,110; real estate, $1,257,950. The number of school districts organized and schools being taught is thirty; the school fund amounts to about $2,300 annually, of the county; the State school fund is small in addition. The timber and prairie land is about equally divided. The county contains thirteen towns, viz: Huntsville, Renick, Jacksonville, Allen, Cairo, Moberly, Milton, Fort Henry, Thomasville, Clifton, part of Roanoke, Uptonville and Darksville. Some of these are large and thrifty towns, others are very small, containing only a post office and blacksmith shop. Huntsville contains a population of about 1200; Roanoke, about 500; Jacksonville, about 250; the others are all remarkably small. The chief products of the county are tobacco, corn, and hay, wheat is also grown with success by those who bestow upon it the proper attention.

Every part of the county is well watered. Timber of a superior quality in great abundance is found; immense strata of fine building stone is also found lavishly, and coal in inexhaustable quantities is everywhere within its limits, and most of it of the finest quality. Signs of petroleum also abound, and potter's clay in several localities.

There are thirty churches in the county, and thirty school houses, one college, located in Huntsville; the Mount Pleasant college, being under the control and management of the Mount Pleasant association of united Baptists, it was built, however, by the liberality of all denominations, at a cost of $16,000, about twelve years ago, it has a library and aparatus, also, costing about $2,000. The number of saw and grist mills is very few in comparison to the want; no flouring mill, and only one woolen factory, located at Silver Creek. There are numerous locations where steam saw and grist mills would do a most excellent business, and Huntsville is regarded as a location unsurpassed by any other location for a flouring mill, a saw mill, a woolen factory, and indeed, any kind of a manufacturing establishment that requires an abundance of coal and water. There are ten tobacco factories in the county, but not one where tobacco is manufactured; there are no breweries, and but one distillery. It has two railroads, the North Missouri, the pride of the State, which enters at its south-east extremity and traverses its entire length; and the West Branch, which, starting at Moberly, near the centre of the county, passes along through the western part of the same, and enters Chariton, and thence ultimately it is supposed will end somewhere on the Pacific coast. Another road is also in contemplation, which will strike the county on the east, and terminate at Moberly.

They have all the facilities and advantages necessary to invite the hardy sons of toil to make a home with them; a salubrious climate, fertile soil, illimitable mineral wealth, excellent thoroughfares, (except the county roads) unimpaired religious and educational advantages, and a prevalence of law and order. And to the emigrant seeking a home in Missouri, professional man, artizan, or tiller of the soil, we would say if you wish to live and enjoy the fruits of your labor in peace, you cannot find a better location than this county presents.

County Surveyor, B. F. Rice.

RAY.

This county is situated in the west part of the State, on the north side, and adjoining the Missouri river, and is bounded on the north by Caldwell, and on the west by Clay and a small portion of Clinton. The county has a length from east to west of twenty-four miles, and from north to south of the same. It is watered by Crooked creek and Fishing river, and their branches, which flow southward into the Missouri. The soil of this county is rich, and there are many fine farms and well cultivated plantations. Richmond, the County Seat is situated not far from the southern boundary of the county, and for a better description of it see page 228 of this book. The county contains seven townships, viz: Camden, Crooked River, Fishing River, Grape Grove, Knoxville, Polk and Richmond. This county heads the list of the North Missouri counties in the value of slaughtered animals, the value of home made manufacturers, the amount of cane sugar made, the amount of clover seed raised, and the number of working oxen.

ST. CHARLES.

The county of St. Charles originally embraced all the territory lying between the Mississippi and Missouri rivers, from the Missouri river to the British possessions, and from the Mississippi river to the crest of the Rocky Mountains, the dividing line between the waters of the Atlantic and those of the Pacific. From time to time these vast proportions were curtailed, until the county was reduced to its present wieldy and comfortable size. These changes gradually occurred as the country here and beyond became settled and the governmental wants of the people found expression, through the Legislature, in the erection of counties, successively taken from the original St. Charles county, and successively subdivided to meet the convenience of the increasing population. I say settled, because one hundred years ago St. Charles county was a howling wilderness, over which roamed the wild beast, and the no less wild and savage Indian. Of course there was no agriculture here then, for the animal in human form supplied the wants of his body by the chase, as did the beasts of the field and the birds of the air, differing from them in externals in but little except, perhaps, in the means and manner of taking his prey; while the time not thus spent was consumed in an occupation also followed by beasts and vultures—in slaying other animals of his own species, either in single combat or in war. Thus the bow and the tomahawk —unagricultural tools—were the implements, almost entirely, in the hands of the only inhabitants of all this region, while the Indian, boasting the number of scalps hanging at his girdle, and aspiring to the position of a 'brave,' disdained the plow, 'the shovel and the hoe,' and other implements of husbandry which constitute the foundation of the wealth and material progress of this land over every other country.

But gradually the march of that encroachment which has steadily pushed back the son of the forest from Plymouth rock to the Mississippi, reached this wild region, and the red man receded before his white brother. First came the French, a light-hearted race, who, happy in the gratification of their few and simple desires, enjoyed the present with but few thoughts for the future. Those who first came engaged in a mode of life scarce less wild and roving than that of the savage whose country they had invaded, employing themselves in hunting and trapping, and in the fur and peltry trade. But soon families began to arrive and take up their abode in the wilderness, and villages arose here and there. The first settlement in what is now St. Charles county, and, indeed, in all North Missouri, was made at Village du Cote, now the city of St. Charles. This was in 1780, sixteen years after LaClede founded the post of St. Louis.

Many of the villagers, and others in their vicinity, engaged in agricultural pursuits, the villagers being supplied, by grant from the Government, with a lot (one hundred and twenty by one hundred and fifth feet, French measure) in the village, and a tract of land at a convenient distance for farming purposes. The fields of that day differed materially from those of this day, as the system of surveying and laying off land used by the French government differs from that adopted in the United States. Where the French system originated and how it came here I do not know. The agricultural lands were laid one arpen wide and forty arpens long (an arpen or arpent is eighty-five one-hundredths of an acre, nearly) and the farmer had one or more of these tracts granted to him, according to his ability to work a smaller or a larger tract, the number of his family, or other circumstances surrounding him. These farms were to be had for the asking, the only condition being that they should be worked. They were laid off immediately adjoining each other, as the inclosing of a piece of ground forty times as long as its width would cost more than the value of the land inclosed, the farms were not fenced separately. Twenty, thirty, forty, any number of these ill-shaped farms being laid off together, the whole were inclosed by a common fence around all, which was maintained and kept in repair in accordance with certain specific legal requirements, under the direction of the syndic, an officer whose name and functions are well known to the readers of the civil law.

The fields thus inclosed were called "common fields, and one or more of these was around or near each French village; thus, the common field of Carondolet, the Grand Prairie common field of St. Louis, etc., and in St. Charles county, the Prairie Basse (Low Prairie) of St. Charles, and the Prairie Haute (High Prairie) common fields, adjacent to the, then, village of St. Charles, and the Portage des Sioux common field, near the village of Portage des Sioux; though these "fields" have long since lost their original character, taken more convenient forms, with partition fences between, and become subject to different laws.

Besides these particular grants to individuals in and about the village there was also always granted to the villagers, as a community, a more or less extended tract for the purpose of affording them wood for themselves and pasturage for their horses, cattle and other animals. These were the commune lands or commons, and were used as common property by all the villagers, who procured their wood and timber from them, were inclosed by a common fence, if inclosed at all, and afforded pasturage for all. These commons were not intended to be, and were not cultivated, but used only for the purposes named, until the spirit of innovation invaded them also; and now they have been subdivided and leased for long terms of years or sold, so that they have, in effect, been diverted from their original design and use, and passed into the possession of private individuals. Examples of this tenure of land are to be found in the St. Louis, Carondolet, St. Ferdinand, St. Charles and Portage des Sioux commons, and others.

The grants just spoken of, those to individuals as well as those to the villages in common, were all located near, surrounding or adjacent to the several villages. In addition to them, other grants of larger or smaller tracts were made to individuals promiscuously through the country. These grants, like those before mentioned, were made without (pecuniary) consideration or condition, except that the grantees should cultivate and inhabit them. A very estimable gentleman, claiming under the original grant, now occupies a tract of land in this countywhich was granted to a man who stated in his petition that he had become impressed with the fact that the people of the country were suffering for the want of peach brandy, and that he was desirous of supplying their lack by planting an orchard and making brandy, and wanted some land at a place designated for that purpose; and the Governor, in his answer, very cheerfully acknowledged the fact that his people (and perhaps he might have added himself, too) were sadly in want of peach brandy; and the same man, afterwards obtained an additional grant for the reason that the former grant was all prairie land, and now he wanted some timbered land so that he could get wood to run his distillery. In all cases where the Governor was disposed to comply with the request, he granted the prayer of the petitioner, and ordered the official surveyor to put the party in possession. The tracts thus granted were not surveyed in pursuance of any plan embracing the whole country, but were laid in every conceivable shape, the lines running to every point of the compass, and straight or zigzag, just as it happened. Without exception, I believe they were always located upon a water course, and in the description of them in the deeds are frequently designated as being on the waters of such a river or creek, as McCoy's creek, Dardenne river, etc.; and whenever it was practicable, they were located so as to include a spring or springs, (as, for instance, Gilmore's Springs, on the North Missouri Railroad) near which the dwelling was usually erected and other improvements made, for greater convenience in procuring water for cattle and for domestic purposes. These grants were of various sizes and shapes, as the wishes or caprices of the grantees dictated (the Governor apparently caring for none of these things) varying in size from, say one hundred arpens, eighty-five acres, up to the enormous and unwieldy bulk of nine square miles, five thousand, seven hundred and sixty acres, of which latter class an exanple may be found in the Avend Rutger's Survey "on the waters of Dardenne," in this county. The surveys being laid out very irregularly, with lines of every length, and running, as I said, to every point of the compass, interfered greatly with the straight north and south and east and west lines run by the United States surveyors when they sectionized and sub-divided the country after it passed from France to the United States by purchase from Napoleon. An inspection of a sectional map of St. Louis, St. Charles, or any of the adjoining counties, will show what I mean, and make this statement clearer than I can make it by mere words.

From the facts above stated, the character of the agriculture of the early days of the county may be inferred with a reasonable degree of certainty. Near the villages on the small strips composing the "common fields," the proprietors raised wheat sufficient for their families corn enough for their few horses and cattle, a few sheep, perhaps, for their warmer clothing and feet gear, a little cotton for lighter clothing, with garden vegetables and a few fruit trees, the forests being the source of their principal supply of fruit and a portion of their clothing, in the shape of deer skins, out of which pants, coats, vests and moccasins were manufactured; and in the intervals between other occupations, their time was taken up with hunting and trapping and trading in furs and peltries, On the larger tracts much attention, doubtless, was given to the objects just named, but horses and cattle probably formed the main staple of production. In both cases, there being but little demand for them beyond the wants of producers and their dependents, the surplus of agricultural products was small, and this of necessity arising from the lack of buyers, or the want of that energy always displayed in active commerce.

St. Charles county is bounded on the north by Eagle Fork, or Big creek, and Cuivre river, on the north and east by the Mississippi river, on the east and south by the Missouri river, and on the west by Warren county—the western being the only straight boundary, and the Mississippi and Missouri making the county in the general form of a wedge. It is well watered. Beginning at the north-west corner of the county, where St. Charles, Lincoln and Warren corner together,, we run east with Big creek to Cuivre, or Quivre, river, and then with the serpentine course of the latter, but in the general course a little north of east, to the Mississippi river. Descending the latter, in a few miles we come to Peruque creek, which rises in Warren county, in township forty-eight, makes a bend of several miles to the southward, runs thence north-eastwardly, and finally makes its exit into the Mississippi river in township forty-eight. Next below is Dardenne creek, sometimes dignified by the name of river, which rises in township forty-six, on the line between St. Charles and Warren counties, runs first eastwardly, and then north-eastwardly, traversing, like Peruque, the entire breadth of the county, and empties into the Mississippi in the northern part of township forty-seven. These are the only considerable streams umptying into the Mississippi river. They traverse the county from west to east, and have numerous tributaries which drain and water a large part of the county. There is but one stream of noticeable size—the Femme Osage creek—discharging into the Missouri river. It rises on the border of Warren county, one branch in the south part of township forty-six, and the other about five miles south of the first, runs nearly east, and empties into the Missouri about two miles below the line between townships forty-five and forty-six. These are all properly called creeks, as none of them are navigable except the Cuivre, and it only for barges; possibly a small steamboat could run up it a few miles in high water, but I apprehend would be compelled to back out, as the stream is too narrow to admit of such a craft turning around in it. But they have two rivers, as Sam Wellier would say, "rivers as is rivers," the "Father of Waters," washing one side of the wedge, and "Old Muddy" washing the other side and bringing the wedge to a point.

Such being the situation of this county in respect of living streams, its water power for manufacturing purposes is well nigh inexhaustible. In this remark we allude not to the propulsion of machinery by water alone, though they are not by any means deficient in this regard. Numerous mills could be propelled by Peruque, Dardenne and Femme Osage creeks, but there is at present but one on each, all grist mills. The one on Peruque is about to be converted into a steam mill, so I hear. But there is scarcely a limit to the number of mills that might be run by steam along the banks of these streams to say nothing of the Mississippi and Missouri. At the date of this writing there are twenty mills in the county, five propelled by water and fifteen by steam. Of these, five are in the City of St. Charles, one on Big creek, three on Peruque, three on Dardenne, one on the Mississippi, two in Augusta, and the remainder at various points through the county, on the tributaries of the streams above named. Water can be obtained at all seasons, though Big creek, Peruque, Dardenne and Femme Osage, during parts of the year, are but rivulets, but they are never dry, and a sufficiency of propelling power could be obtained without a day's intermission. Indeed, one of the mills included in the above list, is afforded power more than sufficient from a single spring, the rivulet into which it empties being oftimes dry, but the spring never failing.

If there are any government lands in the county I am not aware of the fact. I think I am safe in the assertion, that whatever small pieces may have escaped entry are of no great value, and practically it may be said there are none. The most valuable lands were taken up long since, and then the next valuable, until all have been entered at the government price. I find by actual count on the tax book for 1865, there are thirty-three thousand six hundred and thirty-nine and forty-six one-hundredths acres of land, and one hundred and seventeen town lots in the county owned by non-residents. These lands and town lots are valued at two hundred and four thousand nine hundred and ten dollars. They are marked on the tax list as "non-residents;" but this does not mean that the owners are non-residents of the State, but only the county; and I know, as a matter of fact, that the larger part, perhaps three-fourths, is owned by residents of the State, though non-residents of the county. I know of no lands owned by corporations, except some graveyards and some lots in St. Charles and Portage des Sioux, and a few church lots in other parts of the county, owned by the St. Louis University, a Catholic corporation in St. Louis, a church corporation in which, I believe, all church property owned by that denomination in the State is vested. I should perhaps mention in this connection that the school corporations of St. St. Charles and Portage des Sioux own the lands and lots, donated to the inhabitants of the respective villages by the act of Congress of June 12th, 1812.

As a matter of course, the prices of land, both improved and unimproved, are as various as the various circumstances surrounding them, the prices of improved land depending on the character and extent of the improvements, the nature of the soil, the situation of the lands themselves, whether on the hills on in the bottoms, whether high or low and on accessibility to market, and the purposes for which they can be used. Many of these elements of value, also, of course, enter into an estimate of the price of unimproved property. I know of one farm of two hundred acres, near St. Charles, which sold over two years ago for two hundred and four dollars and fifty cents per acre. The dwelling and out houses were of indifferent quality, and the fences were ordinary plank fences; but there was on the farm two large orchards and a fine cider house. The farms immediately in the vicinity of St. Charles City can be bought at about that figure, some more, some less, according to quality and condition of land and improvements. As we leave the city the price diminishes quite fast as we go over the hills, and more slowly as we go in the direction of the Point Prairie. In that prairie sales have been made lately, and for a year or two past, at about one hundred dollars per acre, one farm, with indifferent improvement, bringing one hundred and twelve dollars. From these figures, these prices ranges downward to, say thirty dollars, and in some cases perhaps less. For unimproved lands, the price may be stated at from five to thirty dollars, according to quality situation and accessibility to market; though we have, as I suppose, some lands that cannot be sold at five dollars, because from their situation they cannot be improved at all, or only at great expense; and as long as better lands can be had, the latter will always be taken, even at a much larger figure.

Some of our hills are rich in certain kinds of underground wealth. The city of St. Charles is built on the first rock foundation in the county, ascending the Missonri river; and from that point all along that river to the Warren county line, an inexhaustible supply of rock may be had, entirely or almost entirely limestone, so far as I am informed, though, I believe, there is some sandstone also to be found in some places. The quantity of rock suitable for building, macadamizing, curbing, guttering and paving, and for the manufacture of lime, is abundant in and around the city of St. Charles, and much is used for these purposes. The lime necessary for the supply of the city and vicinity is made in the city itself, besides which, one limeburner (the largest) has exported annually about seven thousand barrels for the last four years, his manufacture for the four years being eleven thousand, thirteen thousand, fourteen thousand and sixteen thousand barrels respectively. There are no indications of iron. lead, copper or other ore, nor any of coal oil. This does not argue that no coal oil exists in the county, for our coal beds are quite extensive, particularly in the immediate vicininity of St. Charles. At this point, coal mines have been in operation for a number of years past, but none at any other place in the county. According to my present recollection, there are four pits now wrought; two others have been opened, but for some years have been idle. Many years ago another was wrought, but for twenty years or more has been closed. Concerning this last, which is situated on one of the finest farms in the county, an old miner once remarked to the owner of it, that there was coal enough under that hill to buy the whole farm." There have been nine coal opened in the vicinity of St. Charles, but only four are now wrought, and two of these are owned and operated by one man. The vein is from twenty to twenty-four inches thick; no vein has been discovered thicker than twenty-four inches. Of the veins now opened, one is fifty feet below the surface, another is eighty-five feet, and the deepest is over one hundred feet. The quality of the coal is fair, not the best. It makes as hot a fire, perhaps, as any other, but there is, more slate in the coal itself, and more debris than in the best article. As coal is an article that will not bear transportation to a great distance, and as coal mines of sufficient capacity for the supply of the home demand have been opened on the line of the North Missouri Railroad, and as St Louis is supplied by the Gravois and Illinois mines, there is no exportation of the article from our county. On the contrary, it is brought hither both from Wellsville, in Montgomery county and from St. Louis. In my judgment this need not be, for I am sure that out of the mines now wrought, and out of others that might be opened in the vicinity of St. Charles, might be obtained enough, and more than enough for our own consumption, whether for fuel or steam purposes.

SCHUYLER.

This small county is situated on the northern border of the State, the third in succession from the Mississippi river, and is bounded on the north by the State of Iowa, east by the county of Scotland, south by Adair, and west by Putnam, from which it is separated by the Chariton river. The county is about 18 miles square, with the western boundary irregular, but generally straight. The streams are few, being only the head waters of the Fabiuses. Lancaster, the county seat is further described on page 178 of this book. The county contains six townships, as follows: Charitan, Fabius, Independence, Liberty, Prairie, and Salt River. It is on the line of the extension of the North Missouri Railroad, and will soon be opened to the world on the highway of travel, and near enough to market. There is coal in this county, and a population of nine thousand.

SCOTLAND

Lays in the north-east part of the State, and on the northern border, being bounded on the north by the State of Iowa, on the east by Clark, on the south by Knox, and on the west by Schuyler. It is in width, from east to west, about 21 miles, in length, from north to south, about the same, and the County Seat, Memphis, is situated near the center; and for a more extensive description of it see the 195th page of this work. The county has three streams and their branches, which flow through it from the north-west to the south-east—the Wyaconda Creek, the North and the Middle Fabius—thus it may be considered well watered, and also has a good supply of timber. The townships of the county, which are seven in number, are named Greene, Harrison, Jefferson, Johnson, Miller, Mount Pleasant, and Sand Hill, and has probably by this time a population of about 13,000.

SHELBY.

This county is situated in the eastern part of the State, being but one removed from the Mississippi river. It is bounded on the north by Knox and a portion of Lewis, on the east by Marion, on the south by Monroe, and on the west by Macon counties. It has several streams of water flowing in a generally south-eastern course, among which are the South Fabius, the North river, Salt river and its branches. Shelbyville, the County Seat, is further described on page 237 of this work. The county from east to west is 24 miles, and from north to south, in the widest part, the same, but averages only 20 miles. The H. & St. Jo. R. R. extends the whole width of the county on its southern border. The county contains a great quantity of rich and quite level prairie land, and coal is found within its limits to some extent.

SULLIVAN

Is situated on the dividing line between the Chariton, on the east, and Grand river, on the west. It is about two-thirds prairie and one-third timber, and is interspersed with streams running from north to south, varying from two to four miles apart. Its surface is rolling, and its subsoil is clayey and tenacious. Its surface soil varies from one to four feet in depth upon the ridge, and from four to six feet in the bottoms, and consists of a light sandy loam. The creeks are rapid and fed mostly by surface water, and consequently are not very durable. There are some streams, however, that run mills a good part of the year. There are a few good springs, but they are not general. The water is soft, and there is plenty for stock. Good water can also be obtained by digging.

They have several varieties of timber, the most abundant of which are white oak, black oak, black and white walnut, hickory, red elm, white ash and cottonwood. They have fine groves of crab apple and plum trees, which yield plentifully, together with grapes, gooseberries, blackberries, raspberries, strawberries, etc., which give a good variety of wild fruit.

The lands are all entered, and about one half owned by non-residents. Improved lands are worth from five to twenty dollars per acre, according to the state of improvement. Unimproved land from three to fifteen, timber being the most valuable.

There have been no minerals discovered. The county is well supplied with limestone and sand rock. There are indications of coal oil, but no experiments have yet been made.

The county is not well supplied with flouring mills, but they have a few on the creeks. There are no foundries or woolen factories in the county.

There is about one-sixth of the land under improvement, and the county contains about 4000 inhabitants.

There have been about twenty-five thousand pounds of wool reported during the last year. The sheep are mostly of the native stock. There are some merino and Cotswold, but are generally in small flocks. The prairies affording abundant pasturage. Sheep are very healthy, but there are a number killed by dogs and wolves.

There is but little attention paid to tame grasses, on account of abundant pasturage on the outside. Timothy is sown for mowing, with good success, yielding about two tons to the acre.

Hedging has been but little tried. It is the opinion of those who have tried it that the Osage will do well, as it is not easily water-killed.

The county furnishes about 12,000 fat hogs for export annually, averaging about two hundred and thirty pounds, and 4,000 stock hogs. Various persons have imported hogs from other States to improve the stock, and with good success.

There are about 2,000 beeves exported annually, and about 15,000 of all ages in the county. There has been but little effort made to improve them, and there are no dairies of consequence.

There are about 1,500 horses raised annually, average price, $100. Draught horses are generally raised. There have been no particular efforts made to improve the breed.

There are but few mules raised in the county.

The citizens are generally raising orchards; with good success. Their orchards are yet young. They have no professional fruit growers in this county.

There are no extensive vineyards in the county. The citizens cultivate a few for their own use. Mr. Marine, of Greencastle, is the most noted vineyardist in the county.

Sullivan county is well calculated for farming purposes, but better adapted to stock. Stock of all kinds are extremely haelthy.

They formerly raised good wheat, oats and rye, but for a few years it has been dry, and the chinch bug has increased so much that citizens have generally abandoned sowing. We think the abundant rains this past summer have killed the chinch bugs, as there are none to be seen this fall.

WARREN.

This county is situated in the eastern part of the State, and on the north side of the Missouri river, which is its southern boundary; St. Charles bounds it on the east, Lincoln on the north, and Montgomery on the west. The county has an irregular shape, being only five miles on its northern frontier, twenty-four miles about on its centre, and its runs to a point on the south; its extreme length from north to south is twenty-four miles, although it will not average more than half of that. Warrenton, the County Seat, is further described on page 272 of this work. This county lays very high and has but few streams of water of any size, although well supplied with excellent timber. It is well suited for grazing purposes. It has seven townships as follows: Bridgeport, Camp Branch, Charrette, Elkhorn, Hickory Grove, Pinkney and Warrenton. This county is well adopted for fruit growing, and its nearness to market renders it very desirable for this purpose.

WORTH.

This is one of the smallest counties in North Missouri, and is situated on its northern border adjoining the Iowa line, having it for its boundary twenty-one miles; its width from north to South is thirteen miles. It is bounded on the east by Harrison, on the South by Gentry, and on the west by Nodaway, and is one of the youngest counties in the State, having been but a few years since set apart from Gentry. Grant City its County Seat is described on the 152d page. The county is well watered by the head waters of Grand river. Which all flow to the south, and at a distance of about four miles apart. The county contains coal, but being supplied with timber and being forty-five miles from railroads, it has no yet been required by the wants of the people.

LIST OF THE COUNTIES OF EASTERN KANSAS.

ALLEN

Is situated in the south-east part of the State, in the second tier of counties removed from the Missouri State line. It is bounded on the north by Anderson, on the east by Bourbon, on the south by the Neosho Lands, and on the west by Woodson county. Its length from north to south is 28 miles, and from east to west has a breadth of 24 miles. The western part of the county is traversed by the Neosho river, which runs in a nearly direct southern course for 24 miles in 3 miles of the west line. Humboldt, the County Seat, is on this river about midway from north to south between its limits. There are not many other streams of water in the county, and the greater part of its lands are the New York Indian lands. It, however, has a population of about 4,500.

ANDERSON

Is situated in the second tier of counties west of the Missouri line. It is the third county south of the Kansas river. It is bounded on the north by Franklin, on the east by Linn, on the south by Allen, and on the west by Coffey county. It is 24 miles square. It has a population of 2,500, and contains six townships—Reeder, Jackson, Monroe, Walker, Washington, and Ozark. Garnett is the County Seat, and is a point on the Leavenworth, Lawrence and Galveston Railroad. It is situated nine miles from the north and east lines of the county. The principal streams are Potowatomie Creek, South fork of Potowatomie Creek, Cedar Creek, Deer Creek, Sugar Creek, and Indian Creek. A spur of the Ozark mountains extends through the county, from the south-east corner to about the centre on the west side; it is called "Ozark Ridge." It furnishes unequaled range for stock both summer and winter—upon which stock will live during the whole winter. The soil is black loam with limestone base on bluffs. There is timber on all streams from one to three miles wide. Coal has been found in small quantities in the western part of the county. The streams on the north side of Ozark Ridge run to the north-east, and on the south side to the south-east.

The following is a list of the county officers:

Treasurer, T. G. Hedley.

Clerk, J. H. Williams.

Sheriff, Elias Norris.

County Attorney, J. G. Lindsay.
Clerk District Court, G. M. Everline.
Register of Deeds, J. H. Williams.
Probate Judge, J. Y. Campbell.
Assessor, A. Simons.
Surveyor, James N. Smith.

ATCHISON.

This county is situated on the eastern border of the State, and has the Missouri river for its eastern boundary, the counties of Brown and Doniphan on the north, Leavenworth and Jefferson on the south, and Jackson and Brown on the west. Its breadth, from north to south, is 16 miles, and length, from east to west, 31 miles. Atchison, its County Seat, is situated in the east end on the Missouri river, where it makes a great bend to the west, and from this point is built a railroad into the interior called the Atchison and Pike's Peak Railroad, which traverses the county longitudinally through its entire length. The Grasshopper creek passes through the south-west end of the county. There are eight townships in this county, as follows: Atchison, Center, Grasshopper, Kappaoma, Lancaster, Mount Pleasant, Shannon and Walnut. The county has a population of about 14,000.

BOURBON.

This is one of the counties which borders on Missouri, and is situated in the south-east part of the State, having a boundary of twenty-eight miles adjoining Bates and Vernon counties in Missouri, and on the south the Cherokee Lands, on the west Allen, and on the north Linn counties. It has a breadth of twenty-three miles from east to west, and in the northern part it is traversed by the Little Osage river, while a branch of Grand or Shoal creek reaches up from the southern boundary into the interior. Fort Scott, the County Seat, is situated centrally from north to south, but near the eastern side of the county. This is some seventy miles removed from river navigation, and until railroads shall open out to it, will be of difficult access.

BROWN.

This county is situated in the north eastern portion of the State. It is bounded on the north by Nebraska, and east by Doniphan county, which lies on the Missouri river. It was organized in 1856, is twenty-four miles square and contains a population of 3,600. The larger part of it is rolling prairie, with a fair proportion of timber. It is abundantly watered by Wolf, Walnut, Grasshopper, Roys and Roney, and Gregg creeks, and their branches.

The first settlements in the county were made in 1855. Hiawatha, the County Seat, lies forty miles west of St. Joseph, Mo. The estimated value of real estate and property in 1866, was $3,000,000. The Atchison and Pikes Peak R. R. runs through the southern part, and the St. Joseph and Denver City R. R. is located through the centre.

The following is a list of county officers:
Judge 2d judicial dist., R. St. Clair Graham.
County Attorney, B. F. Melley.

County Commissioner, Ch'n, M. C. Willis.
County Commissioner, I. P. Winslow.
County Commissioner, E. A. Spooner.
County Clerk, E. N. Morrill.
Clerk of Court, E. N. Morrill.
Recorder of Deeds, J. W. Oberholtzer.
Sheriff, H. M. Robinson.
Probate Judge, E. A. Spooner.
(Probate court first Monday in every month.)
Coroner, G. W. Parker.
Treasurer, W. B. Barnett.
Assessor, A. D. Westerfield.
County Supt. Public Instruction, Noah Hanson.
Senator 4th Senatorial District, Geo. Graham.
Representative 11th Representative District, M. C. Willis.
Representative 12th Representative District, C. E. Parker.

COFFEE.

This county is wrongly spelled on the maps as Coffey. It is situated in the third tier west of the Missouri State line, and is bounded on the north by Osage, on the east by Anderson, on the south by Woodson, and on the west by Greenwood and Lyon counties, being twenty-four by twenty-three miles in extent, embracing over 353,000 acres of land. The Neosho river flows diagonally from near its north-west to its south-east corner, being serpentine, but the general course direct. The east fork of the Vermillion just crosses the south-west corner. In other respects the county is deficient in water. It contains the following townships: Avon, Burlington, California, Leroy, Neosha, Ottumwa and Pottawatomie, with a population of about five thousand and six hundred.

DONIPHAN.

Is situated in the north-east part of the State, in the upper tier of counties next to the Missouri river, which is its eastern and northern boundary. It has Atchison on the south and Brown county on the west. It is nearly triangular in shape, having on its western side a length of twenty-two miles from north to south, while not half of that on the east, and on the south it has twenty-four miles of county line, and on the north it comes to a point. Troy is the County Seat, and is pleasantly situated near the center of the county, and on the line of the St. Joseph and Denver R. R. The county contains eight townships as follows: Burr Oak, Center, Elwood, Iowa Point, Marion, Washington, Wayne and Wolf River, and has a population of about twelve thousand.

DOUGLAS.

This county immediately adjoins Johnson on the west, and thus it will be seen is in the second tier west of the State line, it also adjoins the Kansas river on the north; and on that side is bounded by the counties of Jefferson and Leavenworth, on the east by Johnson, on the south by Franklin, and on the west by Osage and Shawnee; it has a length from north to south of twenty-two miles; and from east to west of twenty-four miles. Lawrence is the County Seat, and is situated in the northern part of the county, on the Kansas river. The county is well watered by the Waukarusa creek and five of its principal branches, which flow from the south to the north, and are thence emptied into the Kansas river. The county will be bisected by the Leavenworth, Lawrence and Galveston R. R. It has the nine following townships: Clinton, Eudora, Kanwaca, Lawrence, Lecompton, Marion, Palmyra, Waukarusa and the Willow Springs, and is one of the most important counties in the State, having a population of at least 16,000.

FRANKLIN.

This county is situated in the central eastern portion of the State, being in the second row from Missouri; and is bounded on the north by Douglas, on the east by Miami, on the south by Anderson, and on the west by Osage; being twenty-four miles from east to west, and twenty-two from north to south having Ohio City for its County Seat, which is nearly central in location. The Osage river and three of its branches are the water courses which supply the needs of the locality, leaving the south part of the county the most destitute of such advantages. The county contains five townships as follows: Centropolis, Ohio, Ottawa, Peoria and Pottawatomie, and the county has a population of about 4,500. The Ottawa and Peoria Indians have settlements in this county.

JACKSON.

This county is situated in the north-east part of the State, and on the north side of the Kansas river, being about thirty miles west of the Missouri river. It is bounded on the north by Nemaha and Brown, on the east by Atchison and Jefferson, on the south by Shawnee, and on the west by Pottawatomie counties, and has a length from north to south of thirty miles, and from east to west of twenty-five miles. The Pottawatomie Reservation occupies about 172,800 acres of the south-west corner of the county. Holton, the County Seat, is situated in the north part of the county, on Bills creek, which is a tributary of the Grasshopper. The county contains four townships, as follows: Douglas, Franklin, Holton and Jefferson. The county has a population of about 3,000.

JEFFERSON

Was first settled in the spring of 1855, by a colony from Oskaloosa; Iowa, and one from Fulton county, Ill. The Indian title to the soil was extinguished August, 1864, to about three-fourth of Jefferson county, by a special treaty with the Delaware tribe of Indians, providing that the lands should be sold to the best bidder, which took place in November, 1856, at Fort Leavenworth, of about one-forth of the lands treated for in Jefferson county, the two-fourths were sold at Osawkee, July, 1857, the remaining one-fourth has since passed into the hands of the Union Pacific R. R. Co., E. D., which is open at this time for settlement. This county contains eight organized townships, viz: Oskaloosa, Jefferson, Grasshopper, Rock Creek, Osawkee, Kaw, Kentucky and Sarcoxie. The Oskaloosa Independent, established in 1860, is the oldest paper in the county, and a leading paper throughout the State, also the Jeffersonian, established in 1863. The population of this county in 1866 was 8,000 whites and 300 blacks, with forty-one organized schools and twenty-one independent schools. School tax of 1866, $14,000 for tuition and building; the assessed value of real and personal property, $1,-670,889; estimated true value, $4,170,00.

Oskaloosa is the capital with the following county officers;
Clerk District Court, W. P. Stanley.
Clerk County Court, T. Critchfield.
County Treasurer, W. A. Coy.
Probate Judge, J. W. Day.
County Attorney, Henry Keeler.
Register of Deeds, L. J. Trower.
School Superintendent, R. K. McCartney.
County Assessor, H. B. Wiley.
Chairman County Board, Levi Wilhelm.
Member of Board, D. M. Smith.
Member of Board, N. Chapman.

JOHNSON.

This county is situated at the point where the Missouri river ceases to be the boundary between Missouri and Kansas, and on the meridian of 17½ degrees west longitude from Washington. It has the boundary line between it and the State of Missouri and Jackson county of that State, and on the south it is bounded by Miami, on the west by Douglas, and on the north by Leavenworth and Wyandotte. Its greatest length from north to south is 26 miles, and that from east to west 22½. Olathe is the County Seat, and is situated quite centrally. Several small streams flow westward into the Kansas river, but they do not penetrate far into the interior. The county contains the eleven following townships: Olathe, Aubrey, Spring Hill, Gardiner, Lexington, DeSoto, Monticello, Shawnee, McCammish, Oxford, and Union, and contains 6,000 inhabitants.

LEAVENWORTH.

This county is situated on the eastern border of the State, touching the Missouri river at its north-eastern corner. It is bounded on the north by Atchison county, on the east by the river and Wyandotte, on the south by Johnson and Douglas, and on the west by Jefferson. It has a length from north to south of 30 miles, and a width from east to west of 16 miles—having the town of Leavenworth for County Seat, which is situated in its north-eastern part. There is the Leavenworth branch of the U. Pacific R. R. E. D., and the Leavenworth and Wyandotte railroads, in this county, which gives it good access to the country. Of streams of water in this county there are few, and none laid down on the maps. The county has seven townships, as follows: Alexandria, Delaware, Easton, Fort Leavenworth, Kickapoo, Leavenworth and Stranger, and also contains the largest city in the State. The country is of a picturesqe and beautiful appearance, being of sufficient unevenness of outline to be pleasing to the eye.

LINN.

This is one of the eastern counties of the State, and situated next the Missouri State line, having on the north Miami, on the west Anderson, on the south Bourbon counties, and on the east Bates county Missouri. It has a length from north to south of 23 miles, and the same from east to west. It is watered by the Osage river and the Little Osage and eight of their branches, and contains the Miami and Neosho Valley lands, having a goodly number of settlements, and being well watered and timbered both, we would consider it one of Kansas best counties. It contains seven townships, as follows: Centerville, Liberty, Mound City, Paris, Potosi, Scott and Valley, and has a population of about 9,000 people.

LYON.

This county offers to those seeking homes in Kansas inducements not surpassed in the interior of the State.

Its location is near the geographical center of the State. It contains a population of from six to seven thousand. A few families came here as early as 1855, but the bulk of its early settlers came from the grand army of imigrants of 1857. Its people are intelligent, industrious and energetic.

It has a greater number of streams and more timber than any county in south-west Kansas, and its surface is less broken and abrupt. In all its vallies is found first class farming lands. Eight or ten streams run through it in different directions which afford good stock water the year round, and good well water is found almost everywhere by digging from 20 to 60 feet.

The population of Lyon county is made up of representatives from all parts of the country. The county is in favor of Common Schools. It is not enough that there be a free school, but it must be a good school, and for this object money is expended with no sparing hand. Considering all the draw backs that have been experienced the progress made in this direction is truly very great Of the 30 organized districts in the county 25 are supplied with a comfortable school house, some of which are of a superior character, costing from one to six thousand dollars. Arrangements have also been made for the erection of eight more the present season, so that every district of importance will have a good house.

The State Normal School is located at Emporia and is in a flourishing condition. The influence of this institution in elevating the popular idea of what a school should be is very great, and already contributes largely to the realization of that idea in a greatly improved class of teachers that are being sent forth to their work. Lyon county shares largely in the benefits of the Normal School, and with present progress the time is not far distant when the free schools of this county will not suffer in comparison with those of any other part of the country.

At Hartford, on the Neosho, there is an institute, known as the Hartford Collegiate Institute, under the control of the M. E. Church. It is now under the care of an accomplished, efficient principal, adding much to our educational facilities.

Value of district school buildings	$18,500
Value of Hartford Collegiate Institute	5,000
Value of State Normal School	17,000
Total value school buildings in the county	$40,000

The farmers of this county are turning their attention largely to cattle and sheep growing. It is found to be very profitable. Large herds and flocks are owned by many. We already have cattle and sheep of a quality as good as is found in any of the Western States. Fine stock is greatly on the increase. Last year about 2000 head of cattle were sold in this county for the Eastern market, which brought into the county somewhere in the neighborhood of $80,000. Persons East looking up locations for investments in cattle, sheep, or any other stock, or in the dairy business cannot find a better country than this part of Kansas.

The immense trade on the great plains a little to the west of us, together with the constant influx of emigrants has always afforded a good market at fair prices for all the surplus the county has raised. We are closer to the western mines than any other agricultural country, hence there will always be a splendid market in that direction for all we raise. Lyon county cheese, from the factory of R. B. Campbell, at Americus, has already found its way to Colorado and New Mexico, at big figures to the manufacturer.

The scarcity of timber is compensated for in the abundance of building and fencing stone on almost every quarter section. The best stone we have seen in the State is the fine white lime stone, now being used in the construction of our county buildings, of which there is enough in this county to build a large city.

No coal to amount to anything has been discovered yet in the county. To the south twenty miles in Greenwood county, considerable coal has been found, and is being used by some of our merchants. To the east fifteen miles, on the Sax and Fox reserve, coal exists in large quantities near the surface, while it is only thirty miles to the immense coal fields of Osage county. It is believed, on good grounds, that coal exists plentifully in this neighborhood at a distance of from 100 to 300 feet underground. Of this there can be no doubt.

The following are about the correct prices of land in Lyon county: Upland prairie, one dollar to two dollars and fifty cents per acre; bottom prairie, two dollars and fifty cents to five dollars; moderately improved bottom prairie farms, five to twelve dollars; best improved bottom farms with some timber, fifteen to twenty-five dollars, according to amount of timber and location. A few choice locations with good improvements and good supply of timber, cannot be bought for less than thirty dollars per acre; timber land sells at from twenty to thirty dollars per acre.

MIAMI

Was organized in 1855, by the territorial government, and is situated in the east part of the State, bounded on the north by Johnson, east by the State of Missouri, south by Linn, and west by Franklin counties. It is twenty-four miles north and south, and twenty-four and one-half east and west. It contains the following eleven townships, viz: Weld, Middle Creek, Sugar Creek, Miami, Osage, Mound, Osawatomie, Stanton, Richland, and Marysville. The Marais des Cognes or Osage river runs through the south part of the county. Bull creek runs from the north-west corner of the county and forms a junction with the Osage; Wied creek flows from the north east and forms a junction with Bull creek. In 1866 there were in this county 1,531 horses, 95 mules, 4,269 cattle, 3,633 sheep, 1,396 swine. Products of 1865, Wheat, 12,960; corn, 254,250; oats, 14,225; potatoes, 7,665; wool, 10,243 lbs.; cotton, 2,919 lbs.

We believe it is a universally conceded fact that Miami county possesses within her border all the natural resources to make her the leading county in the State, in population and wealth. And we believe it is also admitted by those who have traversed the State, as well as by geologists and agricultural writers, that Miami county possesses more and better facilities for stock raising, than any other county in the State. That Miami county surpasses in fine arable lands and an abundance of water and timber, is fully evident by the fact that Indians, who always seek the most arable lands, the greatest quantity of water, and heaviest bodies of timber, years ago selected a great portion of this county as a reservation.

Unfortunately for Miami county no immigration societies were formed at a time when almost every other locality in the State had them actively at work encouraging immigration to their respective localities. The proportional advantage over many other portions of the State is as one is to four, and yet this important fact is comparatively little known outside of their own limits. No pamphlet, circular, or printed intelligence of any kind has ever yet been circulated to induce immigration hither.

In this article it is designed to speak briefly of the particular advantages the immigrant may see for himself upon looking the ground over.

The Marias des Cygnes, or as it is sometimes called, the Little Osage, traverses the entire length of the county near its centre. It is quite a large stream, and although rather a rapid current, it has never been known to fall below a certain level. The banks are thickly studded with fine oak, hickory, sycamore, hackberry; maple, walnut, etc.; some of the finest walnut that ever grew can be seen upon the banks of this stream, and affords splendid lumber for the cabinet and furniture manufactory. There is timber enough on this stream alone, to supply the entire county for many years to come, for all purposes; fencing firewood, building lumber, furniture, etc. The land adjoining this timber is of the best quality, and raises fine corn, wheat, oats and all other grains. There is also much fine bottom land out of which, at a very small expense, could be made fine stock farms, equal to the finest stock lands of Illinois and Kentucky. Very little feeding is required, the winters being very short, and very seldom that snow falls.

The Pottowatomie rises in Franklin and flows eastward into Miami, emptying into Marias des Cygnes two miles south of Osawatomie. Its banks are lined with a fair supply of timber, and the stream the year round flows water. On the south side of the Pottowatomie are already some fine farms opened up, that for fertility and richness of soil, is not to be surpassed in any county in the Union. Water can be obtained in that section anywhere by digging eight or ten feet in the earth.

Bull creek, next in importance to the Marias des Cygnes, has its head in Johnson county, and flows south-eastwardly into the Marias des Cygnes seven miles south of Paola. It is very heavily timbered with fine oak, sycamore, walnut and elm.

Wea, another large stream, that never dries up or stagnates, rises in the north-east part of the county and flows almost south into Bull creek, two miles south of Paola. Upon the Wea is magnificent timber, and some of the most productive bottom land in the county. The land along this stream has been pronounced the best adapted for stock raising to be found in Southern Kansas.

Ten-mile, another stream of some pretentions, affords an abundant supply at all times and is surrounded by a fine body of timber.

The above embraces five large and enduring streams. The usual summer drouths does not effect them in the least. They flow constantly the year round. By proper skill the water in those streams could be used for motive power, as there are many beautiful sites for running of mill and other machinery. There are numberless smaller streams that course in every township in the county. Water is reached anywhere by digging or boring to a depth not to exceed thirty feet—even on the highest points of prairie.

The principal varieties of timber are oak, hickory, walnut, elm, maple, locust, mulberry, hackberry, sycamore, cottonwood, ash, ect. In many places, the belts of timber are miles in width, extending the entire length of the streams enumerated, affording timber for a dense population for years to come. Many immigrants leave Illinois, Indiana and Iowa, on account of the scarcity of water and timber, both of which are hauled many miles in many portions of the above States, yet so general is the impression abroad that wood and water is scarce in Kansas, that thousands hesitate to make their homes there. We have never heard any one assert a scarcity of either article in this county, but it is universally admitted that there is a sufficient quantity for a population equal to any of the counties of the older States. Many who have settled in Kansas at first thought there was a great scarcity of timber in the State, are now fully satisfied that an abundance exists throughout the State. As the timber of the State increases rather than diminishes, it is reasonable to suppose that in twenty years hence, there will be a greater breadth of timber than there is at present. Wherever the fires are checked for a period of three or four more years, a young growth of timber springs up and grows so rapidly that the trees will be suitable for fencing in a very few years. If there is an apparent scarcity of timber throughout the State, upon casual observation, it results from the fact that lines of travel are generally upon high prairie ridges, escaping sight of timber. Prof. Swallow in his geological report of the State, says "Miami county possesses a great bredth of the finest quality of timber, sufficient for agricultural, building and steam use for all time to come.

In the eastern and southern portion of the county there is every indication that coal oil exists in paying quanties. Large springs, where the crude fluid exudes out in quantities, are found on many farms in the section indicated. Two wells have been bored, one six hundred feet deep, some four miles from Paola; the other over one thousand feet, eleven miles from Paola. In both wells strong indications were found, and in the latter, a pump was inserted, and a quantity pumped up. It was resolved, however, to go deeper, and active operations will be resumed in the spring.

Recently, in Lafayette county, Mo., eighty miles east of this place, a flowing well has been reached, which produces one hundred and fifty barrels per day. It is the same formation of country, with precisely the same indications, establishing the fact that it will be found in the same quantity in this county.

In the South-east part of the county fine specimens of marble are found and no doubt exists in the minds of those who have examined the ground, that there are not fine quarries of this valuable and useful stone in the vicinity mentioned.

Beautiful sand and limestone exist throughout the county, forming excellent building material and fencing. Stone unsurpassed for building dwellings, barns, etc., are found in the banks of the little streams. Blocks of the best concrete sandstone, for columns, sills, steps, etc., are found in all the high bluffs of the larger streams. Some of this valuable material may be seen in the new buildings recently erected in Paola.

The clays for burning brick, are of the very best variety, and is abundant. The brick burnt from clay found near Paola, is pronounced by workmen to be equal to the best brick found in the west.

Miami county has a population that will probably exceed 8,000, and a taxable valuation of over $2,500,000. The County Seat is Paola, situated near the geographical center of the county, on the north bank of Bull creek, with a heavy belt of timber on either side. The Population of Paola will exceed 1,500, and contains in all twenty-three stores or places of business, three fine church buildings, a large district school house, and other public buildings. It is incorporated and is municipally controlled.

Osawatomie, situated on the south bank of the Marias des Cygnes, has a population of over 500, several stores, churches, etc.

The other towns are Stanton, Marysville, Toptzville, Miamiville, New Lancaster and Rockville, all flourishing trading points, surrounded by thickly settled communities.

Miami county covers an area of about 600 square miles in latitude 38° 30' N., and longitude 95° W., and near the center of the eastern bonndary of Kansas. Its surface is a high rolling prairie, intersected by numerous streams and broad valleys. The high prairie ridges wind and curve in every imaginable form, and sweep by gentle slopes down into the broad winding valleys, which are intersected by numerous timber skirted streams, and dotted here and there by picturesque mound like hills. Such are the general features which render this country beautiful in the extreme.

When we descend into an examination of rocks, streams, springs, forest and prairie, we shall find the utility of the minuter details as striking as the beauty of the general outline.

The limestones of this region were formed in the ocean, as is fully proved by the animal remains found in them; for these animals are such as lived in the ocean, and no where else. When, by geological changes, the country was raised above the water. its surface was nearly level and somewhat higher than the tops of the present hills and ridges.

In the process of time the valleys and ravines were worn out by the action of the surface waters and streams, leaving the present ridges and mound like hills and ravines, with their sides and slopes, somewhat more abrupt than they are at the present time.

It was during this period that the beds of gray and brown clay, and fragments of rock, mostly flint, which rests upon the consolidated rocks of the coal measures, were formed from the harder materials of the rocks worn and swept away by the waters of that period.

We know but little of the history of this period of denudation, save that the waters must have been abundant and the streams powerful, to have worn such deep broad valleys and borne away the materials. If any animals and plants lived here during this period, their remains have been swept away and destroyed, as no evidence of their existence has been found. Subsequently this whole region, Eastern Kansas and Nebraska, Iowa, Illinois, Ohio, Missouri, and parts of Kentucky, was covered by a vast fresh water lake.

In this lake was formed or deposited the beds of gray and brown marl, which underlie and form the basis of the rich soils in all this vast region. Shell fish, such as occupy our present waters, lived in this lake. Forests of Elm, Sycamore, Walnut. Oak and other trees, like those of our present forests, grew upon the shores of this lake. The squirrel, beaver, deer, elk, buffalo, elephants and Mastadon lived in the forest upon its borders.

The history of these times is found in the petrified wood and shells and bones of the trees and animals of those days, carefully laid away in the marl beds or bluff formation deposited in this lake, and which are from time to time brought to light by examinations of these beds and their contents.

By some changes of the succeeding ages, the lake was drained away: exposing the surface of the earth somewhat changed. The marls deposited in the lake had for the most part covered up the limestones, and sandstones and shales, partially filled the deepest valleys, rendered the slopes more general, and smoothed up the rugged and precipitous hillsides, presenting a contour of surfaces of valley and hill substantially such as it has remained to the present time.

The streams, it is true, have cut their channels into the surface marls, and in some instances into the solid rocks below, and the waters have cut ravines and carried away some of the surface materials; but the contour of the surface remains substantially as it was left by the waters of the lake. As a matter of course a rank growth of weeds, grass and trees sprung up on the rich marls left by the receding waters.

Then was the broad area, once occupied by the lake, one unbroken prairie. Fires swept over the surface and killed out the young trees, and such other plants as could not endure the annual burns.

Thus it is seen that prairie is the normal state, and the question should be, how the forests were formed? and not, what made the prairies? But there were ravines and wet places which the fire did not reach, and there the trees grew apace and produced the present forests. Meanwhile the fish and reptiles occupied the present streams and lakes, and the animals became the dwellers of the forests and prairies. Animals and plants died and decomposed, and formed a black matter which mingled with the surface marls and formed the soil, the last and most valuable of the geological formations. The soil by this process is formed exceedingly slow; but the increase is as sure as it is that animals and plants will die and decay, and waters fall and run, and the winds blow, and the animals walk and burrow and dig, and thus mingle the decaying matter and the loose surface deposits. Slow as is the process, the long period since that lake was drained away, has been ample for the formation of the deepest and richest soil of the continent.

NEMAHA.

Is situated in what is popularly known as the "northern tier." It is the third county west from the Missouri river. It is bounded on the north by Pawnee county, Nebraska, on the east by Brown county, on the south by Jackson and Pottowatomie, and on the west by Marshall county. It is 24 miles in extent east and west, and 30 miles north and south. It takes its name from the Nemaha river, the southern branch of which rises in the south part of the county, and flows north through the center of the county into Nebraska. It is the principal stream in the county, though, Turkey Creek, Black Vermillion, Clear Creek, Red Vermillion, Soldier Creek, Elk Creek, Muddy Creek, Grasshopper Creek, Rock Creek, Pony Creek, Four mile Creek, Deer Creek, Short Creek, French Creek, Harris Creek, Wild Cat Creek, Illinois Creek, and Tennessee Creek, are all considerable streams, and are pretty well timbered, some of them better than the Nemaha. This is undoubtedly one of the best timbered counties north of the Kansas river, if not the best. The soil on the streams varies from four to ten feet in depth, and is unsurpassed in fertility, from forty to sixty bushels of corn to the acre is the average, though the writer knows of several farms that raised 100 bushels to the acre in 1865, on the Nemaha bottoms. Winter wheat does well if put in with a drill, but spring wheat is considered the surest crop—from twenty to thirty bushels per acre is the common yield, though some farmers claim to have had forty bushels to the acre in 1866. Rye, oats, and barley also produce large crops. Apples, pears, plums, cherries and grapes do well, but peaches are not considered a sure crop. The general face of the country is rolling. The upland prairies will compare favorably for fertility with the same kind of land in Illinois or Iowa, though they do not as a general thing produce so well as the bottoms. Timber in this county is well diversified, as a glance at the map will show. Blue, grey and magnesian limestone, of excellent quality for lime or building purposes, is found along all the streams in the bluffs.

Stone coal, of an excellent quality for blacksmithing purposes or fuel is found along the Nehema and several of its tributaries. It is very free of sulphur, and will compare favorably in that respect with most of the Illinois coal mines. The veins crop out along the bluffs, and are generally from one foot to twenty inches thick. It is believed by geologists that a thick vein underlies this at the depth of several hundred feet. The county is divided in eight municipal townships, as follows: Clear Creek, Nemaha, Rock Creek, Richmond, Home, Grenada and Red Vermillion. There are two voting precincts beside the above named townships—Elk Creek in Grenada and New Chattel in Red Vermillion townships. The county contains about 5,000 inhabitants. The principal towns are Seneca, Albany, Saletha, Capioma, Grenada, America, Lincoln and Centralia. Seneca, the County Seat, is the largest town in the "Northern tier." It has about 600 inhabitants. The religious societies are Presbyterians, Methodists, Baptists and Universalists. There are no church edifices, though the two first named are endeavoring to raise funds to build the coming summer. The town has a substantial brick school house, 26 by 50, but an effort will be made the coming summer to put up a two story building for a graded school. Common schools are taught from three to nine months in the year throughout the country districts, and all the year in Seneca, except short vacations. The Church of God (Winebrenarians) have a seminary at Centralia, which is said to be in a flourishing condition. but the town of Albany has the best school building in the county. It is two stories high and built of rock, and designed for a graded school. All the emigration and travel from Leavenworth, Atchison and St. Joseph, for Denver and California, as well as other points in the mountains, passes through this county on the military road to Fort Kearney. Ben Hollidays California mail coaches formerly traveled the same route. The farmers have always had an excellent market for everything they produced on this road. The C. B. U. P. Railroad runs through the southern part of the county, and is now completed to a point nine miles directly south rf Seneca. The St. Joseph and Denver Railroad is running to Marysville on the Big Blue. It runs through Seneca and Sabetha. It is nearly completed to Troy the County Seat of Doniphan county.

It is an excellent county for stock, as water is found on nearly every quarter section. Beef cattle to the value of over one hundred thousand dollars were sold in this county in 1866, most of which found their way to Chicago. Seneca, the County Seat, is 75 miles almost due west of St. Joseph. But the nearest point on the river is Whiteland, 45 miles north-east of Seneca.

The county officers, acting at present, are as follows:
Treasurer, J. H. Peckham.
Clerk, J. W. Fuller.
Sheriff, Wm. Boulton.
Clerk District Court and Register of Deeds, Abijah Wells.
Probate Judge, H. H. Leanham.
County Attorney, Wm. Histed.
Coroner, D. B. McKay.
County Commissioners, L. P. Hazen, A. Bouyor, G. D. Searles.

OSAGE.

This county is situated in the third row of counties west of the Missouri State line, and in the second row south of the Kansas river, it being bounded on the north by Shawnee, on the east by Douglas and Franklin, on the south by Coffey, and on the west by Lyon and Wabaunsee counties; having a length from north to south of 31 miles, and a breadth from east to west of 24 miles. Burlingame, the County Seat, is situated in the north-west part on the old Independence and Santa Fe road. This county is watered by two branches of the Osage river, in fact, one of them is the main stream itself. The county also contains the Sac & Fox agency, and the Trust land reserve. Railroads now are in operation within 15 miles of the county on the north. The county contains 476,160 acres of land.

SALINE.

In February, 1858, the Pioneer Party—under the leadership of Col. Wm. A. Phillips—came to the present site of the town of Salina. The buffalo then roamed over it. Above Chapman's Creek, one or two houses had been erected, but no permanent settlement could be said to exist. The Military Road run up the valley of the Smoky Hill, and through what is now the town site; but the region then was deemed not entirely safe from Indians, and far from the reach of business.

The purpose of the party was to find a large body of land, at the farthest point west, on what would naturally be the route of the overland commerce. Previously, the leader of the party had explored every county and region in the State, and the selection, when made, was the result of extended and laborious observation and deliberate judgment.

The natural conditions, without which a town cannot thrive, are: abundance of water (other than wells); timber sufficient for the wants of the people, and plenty of building stone. In addition, there must be a country of fertile soil tributary or contiguous to it. It is no disparagement of other sections to say that, in no other section of the State is there, together, so much rich valley land. There is more valley and less bluff within twenty miles of Salina, than within the same distance circling around any other point. In addition to these, the Gypsum Beds of the State begin a few miles east of Salina, and disappear a few miles west of it, the belt not exceeding twenty miles from east to west. As all geologists know; the Gypsum and Salt regions are together; and, although the strongest surface indications are one and two days journey from the line of the railroad, still, in the spring season, salt rises to the surface at many points near Salina; and as it is easier to bore for salt water and make it flow to the road than to haul it there, enterprise expects and will see dozens of Derricks and successful Salt Works in operation.

Nor are the mineral resources of this region confined to these. Fifteen miles east of Salina, the carboniferous limestone that belts the hills in eastern Kansas, disappears. A ferrigenious sandstone is visible on the hills, and fragments—many of them of nearly pure iron ore—may be found. Eighteen or twenty miles west of Salina, on the tops of the highest hills, a new formation meets the eye of the geologist—magnesian limestone appears. The Iron region, therefore, as well as that of the Gypsum and Salt, is restricted to this vicinity.

Without the location of the Union Pacific Railway through it, Saline county was, therefore, fail of development. Now it begins to swarm with people. Ere many years, perhaps ere many months, it will be the richest part of the State.

To the field where these resources offer so rich reward to enterprise, enterprise has come, is coming, and will continue to come. In its early days, when it had to fight the pioneers' battle, the influence, the capital, and the industry of its early settlers have done much for Salina. But the town has pushed into no spasmodic growth—no condition of unnatural, hothouse prosperity. It has survived all the assaults of a hundred rivals—all the stories by which its interested opponents sought to keep emigration, capital and enterprise away from it.

To-day, Salina and Saline county have a present prosperity greater, and a future prospect brighter than any other part of the State—than any other part of the great west, even. Its people need not and do not seek to blow bogus horns. Those who come here, and make the proper effort, all thrive. All branches of legitimate business pay, and pay well. Real estate is steadily and healthily appreciating in value, and is yet bound to go up, ten-fold. The experience of other Western States gives the example, and the unexampled prospects here opened to enterprise, points the lesson.

The grading on the line of the Union Pacific Railway (E. D.) is entirely finished as far west as Salina, and the track will be laid as early in the spring as the weather will permit such work to be done. By April next, the snort of the iron horse will be heard in our suberbs, and Salina will be in railroad communication with all the States eastward. Before the lapse of two years, the links of the Eastern and Western Division will probably be wedded together, and Salina will then be in railroad communication with all important points on the continent, and itself a prominent point on the longest and most important line of railroad in the world. The Pacific Railroad (Southern Branch) will, ere long, point to New Orleans and Vicksburgh.

When the commerce of China, Japan and India begins to flow this way our people will indeed realize that their town—our city—is on the greatest thoroughfare in the world.

Situated on the river, in a valley of as rich and fertile land as the sun ever shone upon, at the gates of the overland commerce, with natural resources unequaled in Kansas, fanned by healthy breezes from the mountains, who can set limits to the future prosperity of Salina? Among her citizens are men who have the will to do, the nerve to dare, and the energy to accomplish all that is possible to human enterprise. The future promises much for Salina.

SHAWNEE

Is situated on the Kansas river, in the central part of the populated portion of the State. The county is about twenty-five miles long by twenty wide. The Kansas river runs through the entire length of the county. The Kansas river has rich broad bottoms, covered by a heavy growth of all varieties of timber found in the west. Stone suitable for building and fencing purposes, and for lime, are found in all parts of the county. Thick veins of good coal are found in several places. The county is divided into six townships and about forty school districts, three fine villages besides Topeka, which is the County Seat and capital of the State. Topeka is a city of about 3,000 inhabitants, has six churches, one college, one female seminary, good district school houses, with a court house and jail in course of construction; also a capitol building in course of construction, to cost $500,000. Total amount of taxable property for 1866, $2,400,000, school tax raised for 1866, $19,000.

The county is watered by Soldier and Six-mile creeks, and the Kansas and Wakarusa rivers.

The following is a list of county officers:

Sheriff, C. C. Whiting.
Treasurer, W. E. Bowkee.
County Clerk, P. I. Bonebrake.
Probate Judge, J. T. Morton.
Recorder, W. P. Thompson,

RILEY.

Is situated in the north part of the State, being in the second row of counties removed from the Nebraska State line. It is of irregular shape, having straight boundary lines only on the north and west, the south being obtuse, and the east largely indented. It is bounded on the north by Washington and Marshall, on the east by Pottowatomie, on the south by Davis, and on the west by Clay. Its length from north to south being thirty-two miles, and in width from twelve to twenty-two miles east and west. Manhattan, its County Seat, is situated near the south-east corner, on the Kansas river. There are ten different creeks and streams of water which all flow in either a southern or eastern direction.

County officers:

County Commissioner, S. I. Child.
County Commissioner, M. Coudray.
County Commissioner, J. Meyers.
Sheriff, J. Peck.
Treasurer and Assessor, A. Huntress.
County Clerk, S. G. Hoyt.
County Attorney, James Humphrey.
Probate Judge and District Clerk, R. J. Harper.
Register of Deeds, S. G. Hoyt.
School Superintendent, L. J. Lyman.
Surveyor, J. H. Pillsbury.

WYANDOTTE.

This is the smallest county in the State, and is on its eastern border, having the Missouri river for its northern and eastern boundary, the Kansas river for its southern, and Leavenworth county for its western. It is nearly triangular in shape, having the town of Wyandotte for its County Seat, at its most eastern point. The greatest extent of this county from north to south is twelve miles, and from east to west fourteen miles. It embraces about forty thousand acres of very rich and fertile land, having much excellent timber in the bottoms along the rivers. The county only contains two townships, viz: Quindaro and Wyandotte.

REPORT OF A RECONNOISSANCE,

ALONG THE LINE OF THE WESTERN BRANCH OF THE NORTH MISSOURI RAILROAD, FROM MOBERLY TO LEAVENWORTH.

While making this examination our attention has been directed especially to the soils, mineral resources, timber, water, and, in short, to everything that would indicate the capacity of the country to sustain a prosperous people and support a railroad.

The country from Moberly, on the North Missouri railroad, to Leavenworth, in Kansas, is divided between undulating uplands and level river bottoms. These river bottoms extend all the way from the east fork of the Chariton (about eight miles from Moberly) to Leavenworth, save a few short distances where the highlands come to the Missouri river. They also extend high up the streams which flow across this line into Missouri. They vary in width from a few yards to six and seven miles. The remainder of the country between the Missouri river and the Hannibal and St. Joseph railroad is moderately elevated uplands, rising from the bottoms by gentle slopes, which are sometimes broken by low escarpments and bluffs.

This whole region is so happily divided with timber and prairie that nearly every farm may have any desirable quantity of each. There is an abundance of good timber for all domestic, farming and building purposes, within easy distance of any part of the country. Timber suitable for ties and other railroad uses, can be obtained all along the line of the road.

We observed the following trees and shrubs on the line of this road:

White chesnut, white rock chesnut, chesnut, laurel, black, scarlet, red, pin, Spanish, post, burr and swamp white oak, sugar and white maple, mulberry, common and black elder, crab apple, blur, white and prickly ash, linden, red birch, bladder nut, buckeye, box elder, sycamore, burning bush, red cedar, wild cherry, coffee tree, cottonwood, dogwood, (several species) white and red elm, hackberry, (two species) common shellbark, thick shellbark and pignut hickory, hornbeam, redbud, honey and black locust, pawpaw and persimmons, red and black haws, black and white walnut, willow, (several species) sassafras and sumach, summer, river and winter grapes, trumpet and Virginia creepers, prairie rose and spireas.

Besides the old forests, young timber has sprung up over large areas, since the settlements stopped the prairie fires, and some of the oak is large enough for rails and railroad ties. As shown by the above catalogue of trees, there is a good supply of the very best lumber for the manufacture of wagons, carriages and all sorts of agricultural implements and machinery. There is also an abundance of walnut, cherry, locust, maple, oak and buttonwood for furniture of the most common and approved styles.

But few portions of country are better watered than that through which this road will pass. A glance at the map will show how it is intersected by numerous rivers and smaller streams, many of which furnish good water power for mills and factories. Besides these streams, nearly every section on the upland has a good spring, and in the bottoms good water can always be obtained at a depth varying from fifteen to twenty-five feet.

The counties Platte, Clay, Carroll, Ray, Chariton and a part of Randolph, through which the road will pass, are covered by varieties of soils, unsurpassed in fertility by those of any equal area in the country.

The soils on the bottoms, like nearly all the bottom soils of the great Mississippi valley, is light, porous and rich in all the ingredients and properties which make a soil productive and durable. The wide area of bottom lands, both prairie and timber, which lie along the Missouri and extend far up the Chariton, and its other tributaries, is not exceeded in beauty or fertility. The forests of gigantic growth, and the wild prairies waving with native grasses, often so tall and dense as to conceal the grazing herds, intersected here and there with fields of luxuriant hemp, and corn, and wheat, tobacco, give abundant evidence of the wonderful fertility of these bottom lands, and the larger portion of them are above the highest floods. The highest of these bottom lands are slightly rolling, and the soil is sufficiently porous to suffer the waters of the heavy rains to percolate through and the moisture below to raise by capillary attraction and keep it moist during the severest drouths of our climate. These properties enable the farmer to cultivate earlier in the season, and sooner after rains than on more clayey soils. And it is a well known fact, that when the crops fail elsewhere, either from an excess or scarcity of rain, a suppiy can always be obtained from the bottom farms. These lands in the prairies of the beautiful Bowling Green and the magnificent Wyaconda, never fail to meet the highest expectations of the husbandman. The soil on the uplands is based upon the rich silicious marls of the bluffy formation, which, mixed with the decayed vegetable and animal matter, and the ashes of the annual fires of the past unnumbered ages, have made a soil at once rich and well nigh inexhaustible, for, when the surface soil shall have been exhausted by long cultivation, deep plowing will restore it to its primitive productiveness, by mingling the marly sub-soil with the surface material. The experience of the farmers in this region fully sustains what these facts would lead us to expect, from the productive energies of these soils. Though the country is new and the modes of cultivation in general use none of the best, yet the crops produced will compare favorably with the most productive regions in the Mississippi valley. A small portion of the upland between the forks of the Chariton and along some of its small tributaries is broken up into white oak ridges. These ridges, though less productive when cultivated in the staple crops, are very valuable for their excellent timber and their wonderful adaption to the cultivation of fruit and the better qualities of tobacco.

All the staple crops of the Middle States do well here. Corn, wheat, rye, oats, buckwheat, sweet and Irish potatoes, and all the garden vegetables grow in the greatest perfection, even with the poor cultivation usually bestowed upon them.

The farmers of this region inform me that these lands yield, with ordinary cultivation only, as follows:

Tobacco, one thousand five hundred to one thousand eight hundred pounds per acre.

Hemp, one thousand to one thousand five hundred pounds per acre.

Corn, fifteen to twenty barrels per acre.

Wheat, twenty to twenty-five bushels per acre.

When extra cultivation is applied crops far greater than these figures indicate are produced. With such a soil over the two million acres which will be tributary to this road, we must expect a thriving population, with vast surplus products for such markets as St. Louis and Leavenworth, which your road will open to this favored region.

This is one of the best fruit countries in the west. Apples, pears, peaches, plums, cherries, and all the small fruits come to great perfection in these counties. Grapes also do as well here as on the Lower Mississippi or the Ohio. The soil of the highlands is admirably adapted to their culture.

The rock formations beneath the soil are of the highest importance in determining the adaption of a country to the construction and support of a railroad. The soil and the strata of sands, marls, humus and clays which underlie the soil in the level bottoms are of such a character that the road bed can be constructed at a very little expense, and the silicious marl beds of the bluff formation, on the high lands, are so thick that very few of the cuts will reach the consolidated rocks beneath it. This fact, even in the more extensive portions of the route, will render the cost of construction comparatively small. And, besides, the beds of limestone, which crop out in nearly all the escarpments and bluffs of the streams throughout the extent of the route, will be most useful in constructing the culverts and bridges.

But the extensive beds of coal, hydraulic limestone, iron ore and clays, suitable for both common and fire bricks, will prove of the highest importance in running the road and furnishing it with profitable business. The coal measures, which contains these beds of coal, hydraulic lime, iron ore and clays, underlie the whole of the highland country between Moberly and Leavenworth, and there is little doubt that a large part of the bottom lands are also underlaid by the same formation.

This is most certain to prove true of the bottoms on the western end of the line.

There are at least four, and probably six, successive beds of good workable coal extending nearly all the way from the North Missouri road to Weston. They vary in thickness from one and a half to six feet. Some one or more of these beds crop out in the bluffs in nearly every stream from Allen to Richmond. Beyond Richmond, to the west, the rocks which contain these beds of coal dip beneath the surface, and, as a matter of course, carry the coal with them. These rocks continue westward beneath and beyond the Missouri river, and there is scarcely a doubt that the coal beds continue with them in their westward extension. It is known that one of them, the Lexington bed, which dips beneath the surface near Richmond, does extend as far as Leavenworth, where it was found by boring, in its proper place in the rocks, two hundred and twelve feet beneath the surface. And the other lower and thicker beds are quite as certain to continue westward as the Lexington bed.

Between your road and the east fork of the Chariton, there are at least three beds, ranging in thickness from one and a half to four feet. Two of these beds crop out on the Moniteau; and on Silver creek I found the following section from the top downward:

No. 1, two feet, hydraulic limestone.
No. 2, nine feet, shales.
No. 3, four feet, hard blue limestone.
No. 4, three feet, blue shale.
No. 5, one foot, black slate.
No. 6, eight inches, coal.
No. 7, six feet, marl and clay.
No. 8, one foot, sandy hydraulic limestone.
No. 9, thirty feet, sandy shale and fire clay.
No. 10, one foot, black shale.
No. 11, four feet, good bituminous coal.

No. 12, four feet, fire clay and marlite.

No, 13, four feet, limestone.

No. 14, three feet, fire clay.

No. 15, one and one half feet, good coal. This coal is in the bed of the creek.

At Switzer's Mill we found limestone, fire clays, and a bed of good coal, eighteen inches thick. At Huntsville a bed of excellent coal, four feet thick, crops out on both sides of the town, and has just been opened by Messrs. Chapman & Burke, a few feet beneath the bed of the road. All of these beds dip beneath the higher ground to the east, and, probably, extend as far east as your main line.

Between the forks of the Chariton, and along their bluffs, several beds of coal make their appearance. There are three beds, one four feet thick, near Salisbury, and one at Williams' Mill. Between the Chariton and Grand rivers, these coal beds make their appearance in numerous places in the bluffs of the Missouri and the Grand rivers, and in the high prairies to the north.

On Bush creek, at Kirkam's coal bed, we found the following section of rocks:

No. 1, twenty-five feet slope from top of ridge, covered with fragments of sandstones and clays.

No. 2, one foot, blue shale.

No. 3, one and one-half feet, impure coal.

No. 4, four feet, brown shale.

No. 5, one and one-half feet, hydraulic limestone.

No. 6, four and one-half feet, blue shale or fire clay.

No. 7, one and one-half feet, black shale.

No. 8, eight feet, fire clay, with concretions containing sulphuret of zinc.

No. 9, eighteen inches, good coal.

No. 10, one foot, good fire clay.

No. 11, sixteen feet, slope covered with the fragments of the rocks above.

No. 12, eighteen inches, carbonate of iron, an excellent ore, apparently in large quantities.

From the Grand river westward to Richmond good coal beds lie near the surface, all the way, and crop out in numerous places in the bluffs of the streams and escarpments of the ridges and ravines.

A little north-east of Richmond, on Rock creek, I found the following section:

No. 1, four feet, hard blue limestone, in irregular beds.

No. 2, one and one-half feet, bituminous shale.

No. 3, twenty-two inches, excellent coal, same as the Lexington road.

No. 4, two feet, bituminous and fire clay.

No. 5, two and one-half feet, hard bluish gray hydraulic limestone. Only a part of this bed is exposed at this locality; at other places it is five feet thick.

No. 3 of the above section is the highest workable bed of coal in this region; the lower beds, exposed to the east, have all gone beneath with the rise of the country. One of these beds, four to six feet thick, was passed through two hundred and fifty feet below the surface, seven miles from Richmond, on Crooked creek.

I am indebted to H. H. Beeson, Esq., for the record of the borings in this well, under his supervision.

The finding of this bed so far from were it dips beneath the surface, is an additional evidence that the lower beds continue westward to Leavenworth, as well as the Lexington bed, as proved by the borings at the former place mentioned above.

It is proved that one of these good coal beds continue, westward from Richmond to the western terminus of the road, at least, and there can be but little doubt that the lower and thicker beds do the same. If so, these beds between Richmond and Weston will range from fifty feet to six hundred feet beneath the surface, varying in depth as the country rises and falls.

The depth of these beds can be no serious difficulty in working them with profit, where large quantities are raised, as the extra expense of raising coal the distance mentioned above will not increase the cost more than one cent per bushel.

These facts prove, beyond all doubt, the existance of inexhaustible quantities of good coal all along the line of the proposed road. The four feet bed alone, which we know extends from near the eastern terminus to Richmond, will yield more coal of a good quality than the road can transport for many years. This bed will yield four million tons per square mile, or twelve billion tons from the country ten miles wide on each side of the road. Should this bed underlie only one-half of this area, deducting one-half for the low ground and places where it possiply runs out, you will have from this bed alone six billion tons; as much, surely, as one road can transport while the present directory need provide for its success. It will give the road ten million tons per annum, or over thirty thousand tons per day for six hundred years; but it should be remembered this bed contains only a small part of the coal on the line of this road.

When the road is located, and the grade determined, it will require but little examination to determine the depth of each of these beds below the grade, at the various points where it is desirable to obtain the coal.

Good limestone and sandstone come to the surface on the streams and in the ravines all along the line of this road.

Many of these rocks are very durable and well adapted to use in bridges, culverts and buildings; but those of superior qualities for these purposes are most abundant towards the western terminus.

There are good hydraulic limestones at several localities on this road, as shown in the sections given above.

Fire clay was also found at Leavenworth, Richmond, Carrollton, on Grand river, and in several places on the Chariton and its tributaries.

Beds of carbonate of iron were observed at several localities, but the most important was that at Kirkam's coal bed, near the mouth of Grand river. This bed is eighteen inches thick and of good quality. Its extent could not be determined, as the rocks which contain it are exposed for a short distance only; but its geological position in the coal measure indicates a wide range. It would probably furnish ore sufficient to justify the erection of a furnace, should circumstance renders it desirable. The abundance of good coal at this locality is an important item in determining the value of iron works at this point.

Salt springs exist on the east fork of the Chariton, within a few yards of the proposed line of the road, and also on Grand river, and north of the road in Ray counry. The brine is strong and pure and abundant. Salt was once successfully manufactured at the first locality named above.

There is a large bed of good mineral paint, of a good color, extending from Richmond to Weston. It has been used for fourteen years, and proved both ornamental and durable, and a good protection against fire. It is destined to become an article of great commercial value.

Weston, Liberty, Richmond, Carrollton, Brunswick, Keytesville, Huntsville and Salisbury are flourishing and growing towns on the proposed route.

Each of these places is the commercial and educational centre of a rich agricultural region, and will yield a large amount of business to a road passing through them on the nearest route from the great commercial emporium of the Mississippi Valley, to Leavenworth, the great business mart on the Missouri.

Such are some of the facts which show most conclusively that the road will pass through one of the richest agricultural and mineral regions, already occupied by an energetic and prosperous people, whose towns are fast filling up with business men and capital, and whose broad acres are being broken by a rapidly increasing number of hardy and forehanded yeomen.

UNITED STATES

POSTAGE LAW.

The law requires postage on all letters (including those to foreign countries when prepaid) excepting those writen to the President or Vice-President or members of Congress, or, (on official business) to the chiefs of the executive departments of the Government, and the heads of bureaus, and chief clerks, and others invested with the franking privilege, to be prepaid by stamps or stamped envelopes, prepayment in money being prohibited.

All drop letters must be prepaid. The rate of postage on drop letters, at offices where a free delivery by carrier is established, is two cents per palf ounce, or fraction of a half ounce, at offices where such free delivery is not established, the rate is one cent.

The single rate of postage on all domestic mail letters throughout the United States, is three cents per half ounce, with on additional rate of three cents for each additional half ounce, or fraction of a half ounce, The ten cent (Pacific) rate is abolished.

Rates of Letter Postage between offices in the United States, and to and from Canada and other British North American Provinces.

To and from Canada and New Brunswick, 10c. per half ounce, irrespective of distance.

To and from other British North American Provinces for a distance not over 3,000.....10 cents

For any distance over 3,000 miles.....15 "

For every additional half ounce, or fraction of a half ounce, an additional rate is charged. Prepayment is optional on all letters for the British North American Provinces, except Newfoundland, to which prepayment is compulsory.

Letter postage is to be charged on all handbills, circulars, or other printed matter which shall contain any manuscript writing whatever.

Daguerreotypes when sent in the mail, are to be charged with letter postage by weight.

Photographs on cards, paper, and other flexible material, (not in cases) can be sent at the same rate as miscellaneous printed matter, viz, two cents for each four ounces or fraction thereof.

Photographic Albums are chargeable with book postage—four cents for each four ounces, or fraction thereof.

Newspaper Postage.

Postage on Daily Papers to subscribers, when prepaid quarterly or yearly in advance, either at the mailing office or office of delivery, per quarter (three months).....35 cents
Six times per week, per quarter, (three months).....30 "
For Tri-Weekly, " " .....15 "
For Semi-Weekly, " " .....10 "
For Weekly, " " ..... 5 "

Weekly newspapers, (one copy only) sent by the publisher to actual subscribers within the county where printed and published, free.

Postage per quarter (to be paid quarterly or yearly in advance) on newspapers and periodicals issued less frequently than once a week, sent to actual subscribers to any part of the United States.

Semi-Monthly, not over 4 oz..... 6 cents
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz.....12 "
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz.....18 "
Monthly, not over 4 oz..... 3 "
" over 4 oz, and not over 8 oz..... 6 "
" over 8 oz, and not over 12 oz..... 9 "
Quarterly, not over 4 oz..... 1 "
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz..... 2 "
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz..... 3 "

Quarterly postage cannt be paid for less than three months. If a subscription begins at any other time than the commencement of an official quarter, the postage received by the postmaster must still be entered in his account for that quarter. Subscribers for short terms—exceeding three months, say four or five months—can pay quarterly postage for the actual term of their subscriptions—that is for one quarter and a third, one quarter and two-thirds, etc. The law only requires that at least one quarter's postage shall be prepaid, and not more than one year's postage. Any term between one quarter and one year can therefore be prepaid at proportionate rates

Publishers of newspapers and periodicals may send to each other from their respective offices of publication, free of postage, one copy of each publication and may also send to each actual snbscriber, inclosed in their publications, bills and receipts for the same, free of postage. They may also state on their respective publications, the date when the subscription expires, to be written or printed.

Religious, educational and agricultural newspapers of small size, issued less frequently than once a week, may be sent in package to one address at the rate of one cent for each package not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional charge of one cent is made for each additional four ounces or fraction thereof, the postage to be paid quarterly or yearly in advance.

Newsdealers may send newspapers and periodicals to regular subscribers at the quarterly rates, in the same manner as publishers, and may also receive them from publishers at subscribers' rates. In both cases the postage to be prepaid, either at the mailing or delivery office.

Publications issued without disclosing the office of publication, or containing a fictitious statement thereof, must not be forwarded by postmasters unless prepaid at the mailing office at the rates of transient printed matter.

Postage on Transient Printed Matter.

[All printed matter (except single copies of newspapers, magazines and periodicals to regular subscribers) sent via overland mail, is to be charged at letter postage rates.]

Books not over 4 oz. in weight, to one address, 4 cents; over 4, oz. and not over 8 oz., 8 cents; over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz., 12 cents; over 12 oz, and not over 16 oz., 16 cents.

Circulars, not exceeding three in number, to one address, 2 cents; over three and not over six, 4 cents; over six and not over nine, 6 cents; over nine and not exceeding twelve, 8 cents.

On miscellaneous mailable matter (embracing all pamphlets, occasional publications, transient newspapers, handbills and posters, book manuscripts and proof-sheets, whether corrected or not, maps, prints, engravings, sheet music, blanks, flexible patterns, samples and sample cards, phonographic paper, letter envelopes, postal envelopes or wrappers, cards, paper, plain or ornamental, photographic representations of different types, seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots, and scions) the postage to be prepaid by stamps, is, on one package to one address, not over 4 oz. in weight, 2 cents; over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz., 4 cents; over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz., 6 cents; over 12 oz, and not over 16 oz., 8 cents.

By a recent order of the postmaster-general, the fifth subdivision of the 42d instruction of the new Post Office Law, has been amended by striking out the word twelve and inserting thirty-two before the word ounces, so that it shall read as follows; "The weight of packages of seeds, cuttings, roots and scions, to be franked, is limited to thirty-two ounces.

All mail matter not sent at letter rates of postage, embracing books, book manuscripts, proof-sheets and other printed matter, and all other mail matter, except seeds, must be so wrapped or enveloped, with open sides or ends as to enable the postmaster to examine the package without destroying the wrapper, otherwise such packages must be rated with letter postage. No communication, whether in writing or in print, can be sent with any seeds roots, cuttings, or scions, maps, engravings, or other matter not printed, except upon the separate payment of postage upon each separate matter at the established rates.

Exchange newspapers and periodicals cannot be remailed without being chargeable with postage.

Where packages of newspapers or periodicals are received at any post office directed to one address, and the names of the club of subscribers to which they belong, with the postage for a quarter in advance, shall be handed to the postmaster, he shall deliver the same to their respective owners. But this does not apply to weekly newspapers which circulale free in the county where printed and published.

Weekly newspapers and all other printed matter to the British North American Provinces, although sent from countries bordering on the line, are chargeable with the same rates as when sent to any point in the United States.

☞All transient matter must be prepaid by stamps. But if it comes to the office of delivery without prepayment, or short paid, the unpaid postage must be collected on delivery at double the prepaid rate. Great neglect exists in the strict quarterly payment of postage on printed matter sent to regular subscribers. No such paper shall be delivered unless it is either prepaid at the mailing office or at the delivery office for at least a quarter. If not so pre-paid, postmasters must collect postage on each copy as on transient matter. If they fail they will be charged with the full postage due, and in clear cases removed from office for neglect.

To inclose or conceal a letter or other thing (except bills and receipts for subscription) in, or to write or print anything, after its publication, upon any newspaper, phamphlet, magazine, or other printed matter, is illegal, and subjects such printed matter and the entire package of which it is a part, to letter postage.

Any word or communication, whether by printing, writing, marks or signs, upon the cover or wrapper of a newspaper, pamphlet, magazine, or other printed matter, other than the name and address of the person to whom it is to be sent, and the date when subscription expires, subjects the package to letter postage.

Miscellaneous Information.

DEAD LETTERS.

By the instructions under the postal laws, unmailable letters are speciffied to be—

Letters attempted to be sent with stamps previously used, or stamps cut from stamped envelopes.

Unpaid letters for foreign countries, on which prepayment is required by the regulations.

Letters not addressed, or so badly addressed that their destination cannot be known.

Letters misdirected to places where there are no post offices.

Civilian's letters, (domestic,) wholly unpaid (including unpaid drop letters.)

Only such letters as are herein described are, when deposited in any post office, to be forwarded to the Dead Letter Office, all others must be dispatched to their destination, charged with the amount of unpaid postage.

When unmailable letters are sent to the Dead Letter Office, the specific reason therefore must be endorsed upon the envelope of each.

These instructions will be strictly followed at all post offices.

For more full instructions relating to dead letters, advertising letters, etc., examine carefully the 7th and 8th Sections of the Act of 3d of March, 1863, and the instructions attached thereto; also, Section 1, Act of March 3d, 1865.

Alexandria,

Situated at the confluence of the Des Moines and Mississippi rivers, is the commercial depot for Clark county and a large scope of country lying south of the Des Moines river. The Alexandria and Nebraska City R. R. has its eastern terminus at this point, and is being pushed rapidly westward. This road, uniting as it does the Mississippi and Missouri rivers, and having from Warsaw, Ill., direct eastern connection, is one of the most important railroad lines west of the Mississippi, and the people of northern Missouri and southern Iowa are urging its speedy completion. Alexandria has at present 6 dry goods stores, 3 grocery and provision stores, a large hardware and agricultural house which sells annually a large number of reapers, mowers and other agricultural implements, one drug store, 5 blacksmiths, 5 carpenter shops, a large flouring mill, two flourishing weekly newspapers, three churches—Catholic, Protestant and Methodist—and a full proportion of artisans of the different kinds. Most of the larger commercial houses here, are extensively engaged, during the winter, in the pork business, and many thousand hogs are packed every season. At Alexandria is one of the best crossings on the upper Mississippi, and is therefore the favorite route of emigrants to southern Iowa and northern Mo. The Alexandria and Memphis stage line affords the traveler an opportunity to visit the interior of the county, and connects at Memphis, Scotland county, with other lines, branching in various directions. Alexandria is, notwithstanding its low situation, a very healthy city, and in the most sickly seasons, suffers as little as any town on the upper Mississippi. Population 1200.

Linn county, Mo., contains 1500 inhabitants, and is the central station on the main line of the Hannibal & St. Joseph R. R., 104 miles west of Quincy, Ills., and Hannibal, Mo., and 102 miles east of St. Joseph. The R. R. company have recently built one of the finest hotels in North Missouri. They have also built, during the past season, extensive additions to their Machine shops and Repair shops—also extensive Engine Houses, and are constantly making further additions to meet the necessities of the rapidly increasing business of the road. Upward of two hundred buildings have been erected within the past eighteen months, and from the present appearances, there will be over that number erected during the year of 1867. Mechanics of all kinds will find any amount of business, at good pay—carpenters, masons, plasterers and brick layers are particularly in demand.

Canton.

Canton is a thriving commercial town, situated on the west bank of the Mississippi river, 180 miles above St. Louis and about 260 miles south-west from Chicago. It is built upon a beautiful prairie which slopes gently to the river, affording natural drainage, and is protected by a surrounding bluff, of irregular crescent shape, presenting many commanding sites for public buildings and private residences—prominent among these is Christian University, erected at a cost of over $50.000, and intended to provide thorough collegiate instruction for the youths of this and neighboring States. Canton contains 34 stores, 25 shops, two mills, one bank, one carding mill, three livery stables, three hotels, six churches, and in addition to the college above named, one Female Seminary and a first class Union graded school, with ample facilities for the care and instruction of 300 scholars. It is visited daily, by three lines of first class packets, and has regular communication, by two tri-weekly lines of stages, with all points in the interior. Surrounded by a country unsurpassed in beauty of scenery and fertility of soil, and settled by an intelligent and enterprising population, Canton has become one of the most important points on the river, for the interchange of merchandise and produce, and will become still more prominent when its projected railroad connections are completed. It was first incorporated in 1851—in 1860 had a population of 1300—in 1865, 2,522, and now numbers about 2,750 souls.

Its distance from Jefferson City is 106 miles. It is the commercial depot of a large section of very fine and productive country which is under an excellent state of cultivation, and settled by as thrifty, prosperous and happy a community of people as are anywhere to be found. The place has grown and improved to such an extent since the dawn of peace, that the present scarcely recognizes the past, and the things of to-day are not the things of yesterday, as pulling down old and putting up new seems to be the order of the day. The site of the town is very pretty, and from any prominent point in the place, may be seen, on looking south, the "Blue Mound Country," as it is termed, and blue and beautiful it is, as it lays with its groves and knolls, its heaving bosom of prairie verdure meeting the outline of the distant southern horizon, miles away. The ground seems to descend in every direction from this town, and yet so gently as to make no abrupt hills—only gently rising knolls and hillocks, crowned with groves of trees of a cone shaped top, which is a peculiarity to the deciduous trees of this vicinity. The society here is genial and pleasing, as that is the first impression made upon the stranger. In the center of the place is a public square, now not in the best of repair, and if all the locust trees should be removed and elms, evergreens and maples should take their places, great advantage would accrue to the appearance and comfort of this part of this otherwise pleasant town. The different trades and professions, mercantile and otherwise, are represented as follows:

One flour and feed store, four manufacturers and dealers in tobacco, two milliners, five real estate and insurance agents, five shoemakers, fourteen lawyers, two notaries, three hardware dealers, eleven dry goods stores, four clothing, thirteen groceries, two banks, seven saloons—four of which are billiard—two justices of the peace, three restaurants, three watch and jewelry stores, two painters, seven hotels, one gunsmith, four harness establishments, six furniture and cabinet making, six physicians, two newspapers and one periodical, four livery stables, one cooper shop—a good opening in this line—one queensware, one saw and flour mill, two confectionery, one boarding house, three bakery, two lumber, three meat markets, two barbers, one marble dealer, two masonic lodges, Nos. 30 and 89, three merchant tailors, three wagon makers, one book store, one notion dealer, one news dealer, two general stores, three druggists, two photographers, six blacksmiths, one brick yard, six churches, four stoves and tin stores, three carpenters, two dentists, two boot and shoe stores.

Claysville.

This is a post office and small village on the Missouri river, in Boone county, near the southern point of its limits, about four miles above the mouth of Cedar creek, and opposite Scott's Landing. It is not more than six miles from Jefferson City, while it is 15 from Columbia, the County Seat of Boone, it being the most southern place in the county.

Gilpin A. Jones, Post Master.

Coal Hill.

Is a small place of no particular importance, in Boone county, near the head of Hinkson's branch, about seven miles north-east of Columbia, the County Seat, and 14 miles south of Centralia, the nearest point on the North Missouri R. R.

College Mound.

This place is in the south edge of Macon county, only one mile from the Randolph county line, and is sometimes called on the maps McGee College. The place is about five miles west of the line of the North Missouri R. R., and about 10 miles west of south of Macon City. Population 200.

This is a post village in the north part of Carroll county, on the head waters of the Wakenda creek, and near what are called the Blue Mounds. It is 14 miles north of Carrollton, the County Seat, and situated in the midst of a very desirable country to settle in. We have no interest in the matter, but think this portion of Missouri hard to beat.

Ralph P. Scott, Post Master.

Colony.

A small place in the north-east part of Knox county, on the main branch of the middle Fabius, 10 miles north-east of Edina, the County Seat, and 30 miles north of west of Canton, on the Mississippi—excellent country in the vicinity.

W. D. Brewington, Post Master.

Columbia.

This is the County Seat of Boone county, on Hinkson's branch of Rochperce river, situated nearly in the center of the county, being about seven miles from Providence, on the Missouri river, it's river port, and 16 miles south of Sturgeon, on the North Missouri R. R., its nearest R. R. point. The place is quite handsome, and contains many beautiful buildings, among which are the State University and the Baptist Female College and the Christian Female College. The society of the place and surrounding country is good, and altogether, it is a very desirable place of residence. Glasgow.

This place contains a population of about fifteen hundred inhabitants, and is situated on the Missouri river, in Howard county. The surrounding lands are of the richest quality. The society, for refinement, is unsurpassed by any in the State. Here is located the Pritchett Institute—a first class school, with other schools of importance. Here is also the location of the Lewis Library—a library established by the munificence of the late B. W. Lewis, deceased. The character of the inhabitants, church privileges and the opportunities of acquiring a literary and scientific education gives to this place advantages to which many other western towns are by no means the recipients.

Hannibal.

Hannibal, the commercial emporium of north-east Missouri, is pleasantly situated in Mason township, Marion county, State of Missouri, and lies on the sun-set side of the majestic Mississippi river, one hundred and forty-eight miles north of St. Louis, one hundred and twenty-eight miles above the mouth of the Missouri river, and seven hundred miles south of the Falls of St. Anthony, Minnesota, in latitude 39 degrees 30 minutes N., longitude 90 degrees, 15 minutes 16 seconds W. It is a port of delivery, and is the third city in point of wealth, population and commercial importance in Missouri. The city proper, built on a gradual elevation from the river back about one and a half miles, is surrounded by those never-ending watch towers of the Mississippi river, its bluffs; and the business part of the city seems like an ampitheater. The town of Hannibal was laid out on a tract of land containing 640 acres, in the year A. D. 1819, and a public sale of lots took place at St. Louis, in the month of April, the same year. The town was regularly laid out, the streets being wide and commodious.

By a regular system of puffing, which has never been resorted to by Hannibal, places of far less importance have succeeded in acquiring a greater notoriety. But at this we should rather rejoice than feel regret, inasmuch as the attention of idle speculators has been called in other directions, whilst our city has been filling up with a more permanent, thrifty and enterprising population.

In order that people at a distance may know who we are, and where we are, and what we are doing, we propose giving a brief description of our city, its business, commerce and manufactories, together with a description of some of our large business houses, and also a statement of the amount of capital invested in the various kinds of business, quantity of material used for manufacturing purposes, amount of products and number of hands employed. As there seems to be a want of disposition on the part of some individuals to give us accurate information, our statements may not comprise all the departments, and therefore may not be as full and complete as we would desire.

The business portion of the city is compactly built, the houses, with but few exceptions, being of brick and three stories high. The site of the city rises gradually from the river's side till it reaches an elevation of about one hundred feet above the level of the river, affording a beautiful view of the surrounding country, and many charming sites for private residences. The style of buildings is good, and more than one-half of the private residences are of brick, some of which are edifices that would be a credit to cities of much greater pretensions.

Our climate is healthy and salubrious, and we are surrounded by a country of unsurpassed richness and fertility, comprising a variety of soils, and adapted to the culture of wheat, corn, hemp, cotton, tobacco, grapes, potatoes, &c., and produces the finest garden vegetables extant. There is an abundance of game of all kinds within a few miles of the city, and the best quality of fresh water fish abound in our streams.

Within a short time our population has doubled, and it now reaches the very respectable number of about nine thousand. And what is more and better than all, we have an honest, industrious, thrifty and enterprising population, and all are engaged in honorable pursuits, each confining himself to his own legitimate business, without encroaching upon his neighbor, there being enough for all, and no danger of getting in one another's way. Our people are generous, social, moral and religious, and hence we account in a great measure for our permanent prosperity.

But though we have been steadily advancing in wealth and population, and have extended our business relations, we are yet in our infancy, and the area of our true greatness is yet to dawn. Our business is already immense, reaching millions of dollars, and is increasing with astonishing rapidity. In a word—we have a city possessing, in an eminent degree, every natural advantage for manufacturing on an extensive scale, and our enterprising citizens are quick to discern and ready to push their advantages to the utmost. In our vicinity we find a large population, creating a demand for every kind of manufactured article, while the railroad and river facilities are such that all articles manufactured or purchased here can be set down at the very doors of those who need them.

But for the difficulty in procuring dwelling houses, the accessions to our population would no doubt have been much greater. To make room for the large accessions we expect to receive during the next six months, building will be carried on to a much greater extent than ever before—the demand for houses and the prices they command, justifying capitalists in investing money in this way, as it will probably bring them a larger per cent. than any other investment they can make. A number of buildings are already in course of construction, which the scarcity of building materials has caused to be delayed until recently. These houses will all be tenanted as soon as completed. We have a very superior quality of clay for making brick, and inexhaustible quarries of white limestone, suitable for building purposes, supplying the place of marble, which it very near resembles when at a little distance. Mechanics are in great demand, and find ready employment at liberal wages.

Our streets, as well as all the business and a large number of dwelling houses, are lighted with gas, but to keep pace with the improvements being made in other departments, a company will soon be formed for the purpose of establishing water works on an extensive scale.

Though our commerce and manufactories are still in their infancy, yet we have made very considerable advancement. We have already three agricultural stores and factories, nine real estate agencies, nine insurance agencies, 2 steamboat agencies, 1 National bank, 4 barber shops, 3 bakeries, 13 boarding houses, 2 breweries, one book bindery, twelve boot and shoe shops, nine meat markets, three cigar factories, four commission merchants, four confectioneries, six clothing stores, twelve churches, three dental offices, five drug stores, one dye shop, fourteen dry goods stores, four dress making establishments, two express offices, one flour and feed store, three furniture stores, one furniture factory, two foundries and machine shops, two gunsmith shops, forty grocery stores, two harness and saddle stores, two hat and cap stores, five hardware stores, seven hotels, twelve law offices, four livery stables, four lumber yards, two wholesale liquor stores, five tailoring establishments, two saw mills, two planing mills, two flouring mills, four millinery and fancy goods stores, two music stores, three teachers of music, three paint shops, two printing offices, sixteen physicians' offices, four photograph galleries, twelve public buildings, two queensware stores, two restaurants, twenty saloons, thirteen schools, four book and stationery stores, four stove stores, eight tobacco factories, two variety stores, two masonic lodges, one Royal Arch Chapter, one lodge of Good Templars, one Council of Royal and Select Masters, one Commandery of Knights Templar, one lodge of I. O. O. F., one Encampment of I. O. O. F., &c., &c.

This is a small place in Clay county, 10 miles north of Liberty, the County Seat, on a stream called Fishing river. It is not more than six miles east of the line of the Kansas City and Cameron R. R., and a place of not much importance.

Keytesville.

It is quite an old place, and, as its name indicates, was originally called after James Keyte, one of the old settlers of Chariton county, who laid off the town, on its present site, about the year 1832. Keyte put up the first house that was built here. It was a log structure, and the remains may now be seen on the brow of the hill overlooking the Murcle fork. A little shanty had previously been built under the hill, on the edge of the creek; but Keyte's building was the first substantial structure of the town.

On the 6th of March, 1820, Missouri was admitted into the Union as a State; and on the 9th of July, in the same year, the convention accepted the terms of the act of admission.

Never since I have known this place has it shown so much vitality as at present. The spirit of improvement seems really alive here. New buildings are springing up all around, old ones are being newly repaired, and new life is being infused into all kinds of business. What breath is being blown upon these dry bones, is not an enquiry now up for settlement. I have my own ideas about it, but must forego their expression until some more favorable opportunity.

We have four dry goods establishments in operation here. Wm. E. Hill has refitted his store-room, and it is now one of the handsomest in town. Thomas Dougherty occupies the corner formerly kept by Jas. R. Horsely; Jeff. Moorman is still lower down; and Heyman, Levy & Co. are next to him. Most persons would be surprised to see the amount of trade these stores are doing. They sell a large quantity of goods every year. We also have a first class drug store, kept by Messrs. Bateman & Carman, at the old stand of John R. Hyde & Co. Gaston & Price have a fancy grocery store; Hurt, a "corner grocery;" and Dan. Kellogg one of the same sort, not exactly on the corner. A good hotel, kept by Mackey, and known as the Chariton House, completes our list of business establishments. The trades are all very well represented, though a few more would do no harm.

Of public institutions we have a moderate share. A Masonic Lodge is in good working order here, and has quite a respectable membership. We also have a lodge of Good Templars, a young men's Debating Club, a ladies' Social Circle and a Glee Club, all kept up with interest and well attended.

Our great lack is in church edifices. The Presbyterian Church has been repaired and painted, and is now used by all the congregations worshiping here. The Methodist Episcopal Church, usually called Northern Methodist, is regularly supplied with a preacher, who appears to be doing all he can to save souls. The Southern Methodist Church has been taken for a Court-house, and, from present appearances, will not soon be occupied by its legitimate congregation.

Our public school is one of the most valuable institutions we have. This district purchased the Keytesville Seminary, not long since, and a good school is now kept up in it. Mr. Burr, the teacher, appears to be well qualified for the position, and is building up a reputation for the school. Public readings are given by the pupils every Friday evening, which I consider very useful to them and interesting to the public.

I neglected to mention the professions in their proper place, but your readers will know how to excuse this oversight, when I tell them I am not an adept in this business of descriptive writing. Crawley & Holcomb, Capt. B. M. Veatch and Andy Mackey represent the legal profession; and the profession of medicine is ably represented in Drs. Grinstead, Rucker, Dewey and Jeter.

Quite a number of new buildings have been put up, and there are still some going up, mostly dwellings. Our fine court house is getting along very well. The brick work will soon be done, and the building covered in. When completed it will be one of the finest structures of the kind in the State outside of St. Louis. How it came to be built on so magnificent a scale, at a time when the county was so badly in debt, will form an interesting subject for future generations.

Thus much I have truthfully said of the present prospects of Keytesville. When it is added that it is pleasantly located, and well situated for good health, surrounded by as fine farming lands as can be found anywhere, sufficiently near the railroad to put us in communication with the outside world, and the trading point for a large number of the most thrifty farmers in the county, even Brunswick may look to its laurels.

LaGrange.

This is a river town in Lewis county, 10 miles above Quincy, on the Mississippi river, and 13 miles southeast of Monticello, the County Seat. The place is very beautifully situated, at a point where the bluff from the west approaches the river, for the first place in about thirty miles, and as it bends inward, presents a curve of graceful beauty in its verdant summer foliage, to the eye of the traveler, on any of the floating palaces, as he is wending his way northward on the majestic father of rivers. LaGrange is in no danger of overflows as she sits high enthroned on her everlasting hills of limestone, and she indeed presents a lovely appearance, with her white spires and her neat cottages, embowered in shady groves and the ever green slopes of her hill sides. The place contains four lawyers, one bank, six physicians, one vineyard, six groceries, two dealers in agricultural implements, two stoves and tin ware, three shoemakers, five carpenters, three wagon makers, one distillery, eight general stores, two livery stables, two butchers, one undertaker, four blacksmiths, four saloons, one college, two churches, one photographer, one harness maker, one fanning mill, three coopers, two saw mills, one brewery, five preachers, two hotels, one confectionery, one books and stationery, two ice dealers, two notaries, three insurance agents, one dress maker, one wool carding, three milliners, three boarding houses, two lumber yards, one nursery, one tobacco factory, two druggists, one hay press, &c.

It is in a beautiful prairie part of the county, surrounded by very fine farming lands. This is a very desirable section for settlement, being near a good market and yet where lands can be procured at reasonable figures.

Little Loutre.

Is the name of a post office in Montgomery county, to reach which go either by the Missouri river or North Missouri R. R.

Livingston.

This is a small place near the northwest corner of Livingston county, being on the road to Bethany and 14½ miles from Chillicothe, the County Seat, in a very good section of the country. It is only 12 miles north of Breckenridge, its nearest point to the R. R.

Locust Hill.

This is a small village in the southwest part of Knox county, near one of the forks of Salt river, and 11 miles south-east of Edina, the County Seat. Its nearest R. R. point is at Clarence, 19 miles south. Its distance from Quincy is 46 miles. Population 100.

Trades, Professions, &c.

Harriet John, blacksmith.
Huling Samuel S, groceries.
Wilson & Fisher, saw and grist mill.

Locustville.

This is the name of a small place in the south edge of Putnam county, about 8½ miles south-west of Unionville, the County Seat, to reach which go to LaClede, on the H. & St. Jo. R., and go thence north by stage via. Milan.

Lone Star.

This is the name of a country post office in the county of Adair, to reach which go, by stage, from Macon City or from Canton, on the Missouri river.

Long Branch.

This a small place in the south part of Monroe county, in South Fork township, on the north bank of Young's creek, 10 miles east of south of Paris, the County Seat. Its nearest R. R. point is at Mexico, on the North Missouri R. R., 14 miles distant.

Lost Creek.

This is a small country post office, sometimes called Lost Branch—it is difficult to tell which is the correct name—in the eastern part of Lincoln county, 13 miles north-east of Troy, the County Seat, on the Falmouth road, from which latter place it is six miles distant, its nearest river point.

Lost Grove.

This is a small place in the north-east corner of Worth county, in Smith township, about four miles south of the Iowa line, and 12 miles north-east of Grant City, the County Seat.

Trades, Professions, &c.

Louisiana.

This most beautiful place is nestled amid the tall nut-topped hills of Old Pike county, and should be, by rights, its County Seat, and the terminus of a railroad from the west via. of Mexico. This place is most naturally situated for a fine large town, and has all the requisites, except improved lines of communication with the interior—by this we mean railroads—for of wagon roads, those leading into the interior are good, especially that to the County Seat, Bowling Green, 10 miles south-west, which is an excellent McAdamized road. The views from the beautiful promontories by which this pleasant place is surrounded, are most enchanting and beautiful, and savor more of a landscape in some foreign, sunny clime and picturesqued, favored land, than any that we can now recall of any place within a hundred miles—especially say we this of the views from Hanging Rock and Old Mt. Clinton, which we love from its associations and similarity to another of the same name in another State, far away, and to us, in our earlier days, most dear. It might be that the romance which hangs ever around this charmed town to us, might possibly wear off with a constant habitation here, but we know not. It will some day become more and more wrapt up in the smoke and dust of commerce, and then the grass will not be so green, the flowers so sweet and the skies so sparkling, nor the smooth, gliding waters so pure as they are now. The beautiful hill tops will be leveled down, and the quiet, smooth, rolling hum of happiness and content will give place to strife and glare, show and shame. But we must be brief and to business, and what Louisiana is to-day the columns below will show, and we must say happy are we that we have known her in this her day of bright youth and hopefulness.

Macon City.

This is the County seat of Macon county, at the junction of the North Missouri R. R. with the Hannibal & St. Jo. R. R., and is 78 miles a little west of north of Jefferson City and 70 miles west of Quincy by R. R. and 168¼ miles north-west of St. Louis by the North Missouri R. R., although it is only 76 miles farther north by latitude. It is 136 miles east of St. Joseph by R. R. and about 60 miles south of the Iowa line. This is a very central point—none in North Missouri being more so, as relates to present and prospective railroad projects. The surface of the country favoring the survey of the north Missouri R. R., and the necessity of the east and west rendering this a permanent center easy of reach from distant points. The situation of the place is high and presents a fine view from a distance, as some of the public buildings are quite large and imposing. The place is well supplied with hotels, and indeed, seems to a stranger to have too many, but they are good institutions when well kept, and this we can say of some of them. A few more good side walks and some street lamps would keep the feet of some or many, as the case may be, "from the mire and the clay" and there would not be so much removal of real estate from the town to the country and foreign parts in general. The county jail, now being built, is a good lesson to those who are evil disposed, and we think all such should have a gratuitous visit to it, in its or their present state as we believe the sight of its strength and fastnesses would strike such a wholesome terror into their bosoms as to almost, if not quite altogether reform them, for a more complete prison for security we have seldom ever seen. Of churches they have a moderate variety, and some neat, although as yet, no very costly structures. The Court House is a very substantial and convenient struc-

This is a point on the Missouri river in the upper part of Holt county, 20½ miles north-west of Oregon, the county seat, and about 58 miles above St. Joseph. The place is small.

Marion City.

This place was projected on a grand scale by Mr. William Muldrow, near thirty years since, and was intended to have been a second Philadelphia, transplanted to the banks of the Mississippi, in Marion county, seven miles east of Palmyra, the county seat. So great was the confidence or cupidity (we don't know which) of eastern capitalists, that Mr. Muldrow succeeded in disposing of three hundred thousand dollars' worth of lots of this flat and marshy bottom land town laid out two miles wide and three long, and even as many as 150 houses were built when a flood came, and, being built upon the sand, what was not swept away was mortally drowned, and probably not being an immersionist community, the people made their way as fast as practicable to higher and drier land. The place now looks sadly forlorn, and desolation and the pigs together occcupy all that remains of their temple to the Most High.

Marthasville.

Mexico.

The County Seat of Audrain county is 42 miles east of north of Jefferson City on the North Missouri R. R., 107½ miles from St. Louis, and near the crossing of the South Fork of Salt river by that R. R. This is one of the very finest counties in Missouri, and its moderate distance from the large cities in its vicinity and its central situation all render it one of the most desirable for settlement west of the Mississippi. The site of the town is very pleasant, being gently rolling and of such smooth and unbroken surface as to offer no obstructions to the immediate occupation of any part of it for building purposes. Many beautiful residences have already been built and are surrounded by smooth grassy lawns and other adornments, which go to make this a very pleasant place. Since the war many substantial brick business houses have been built and are now building around the Public Square, among which we would especially speak of the Mexico Hotel and Ringo Block, built by the banker of that name, at a cost of between $30,000 and 40,000, and it is the finest building between St. Louis and St. Joseph. The business men of Mexico all seem to be as busy as possible, and everything about the place evinces thrift and enterprise. There are several respectable churches at this place and two printing offices and one excellent woolen mill, and various other good institutions to have in a first class inland town. Population 3,100.

Moberly.

This is the name of a town laid off at the intersection of the west branch with the North Missouri R. R, and is one mile below the village of Allen, —— miles from St. Louis and seven miles south of east of Huntsville, the County Seat. Judging from the price paid for prairie lots at the original sale in the laying out of the town, this place is expected to be considerable in size before many years, and such a thing is not improbable if the road should be extended east to a junction with the H. & St. Jo., at Monroe City.

Modena.

In Madison township, about eight miles south-west of Princeton, in Mercer county, nicely situated on a prairie in the edge of timber, on the State road leading from Trenton to Pleasant Plains, Iowa, on a dividing ridge between Thompson and Weldon forks of Grand river—a healthy and well watered town of seven years' growth. Population 220.

Monroe City.

This is the fifth station from Hannibal, on the H. & St. Jo. R. R., and is situated on section 13, township 56 north and 8 west, in the county of Monroe, on a beautiful prairie which descends to the south-west, but there is timber 1½ miles north, two miles south and five miles west, but none in sight in the east. This place is 20 miles from Paris, the County Seat, and 28 from Quincy, Ill. One-fourth of the entire place has been built during the last year. A handsome Gothic stone church, St. Jude's, for the Episcopalians, is in course of erection. They have also a substantial brick college building, 50 by 75 feet, near the church, which was the scene of one historic event, at least, during the last war. The population is about four hundred. Mr. A. Warner is post master. The streets running parallel with the railroad are called Winter, Catherine, Court, Charles, Green, Summer and Dover. Those crossing them are Vine, Locust, Chestnut and Oak. The situation is very pleasant.

Palmyra.

The County Seat of Marion county is situated in the eastern part of the county 85 miles east of north of Jefferson City, and six miles inland from the Mississippi river and 12 miles by R. R. west of south of Quincy, Ills., and 14 miles north-west of Hannibal. The H. & St. Jo. R. R. forks at this place—one branch running to Hannibal and one to Quincy. The place was settled as early as 1819, and we believe the first man living there was Obadiah Dickerson, and among the first settlers of the place was John C. and William Walker—one of whom is still living there. They used to get their supplies from St. Louis, and carry them in their saddle-bags on horse-back. This town is situated on section 25, township 58 north, and 6 west. The place is very pleasant and attractive to strangers, and contains many good buildings public institutions, among which are St. Paul's Episcopal College, Baptist Seminary, and Young Ladies' Institute, and many fine residences. We do not feel able to do justice in our press of business, to what Palmyra really is, and if our readers will refer to the description of Marion county, in another part of the work, they may find much more that is interesting. Population 3,200.

The County Seat of Monroe county, is 60 miles north of Jefferson City, situated near the center of the county, on the middle fork of Salt river, and is 14½ miles south of Shelbina and 22 miles north of Mexico, the former on the H. & St. Jo. R. R., and the latter on the North Missouri R. R. It is also on the line of the proposed eastern extension of the West Branch of the latter road from Moberly through this place to the junction with the H. & St. Jo. at Monroe, which is almost a continuous line from Kansas City to Quincy, and which must be built at no very distant day. This is a thriving and prosperous County Seat in the midst of one of the richest counties in North Missouri, and if the place had the above railroad facilities it would become one of the very first of importance in North Missouri. It has now a population of about 1,200.

Philadelphia.

This place is an object of interest to the historian, for here can be seen what a few years can do with the plans and castles of man and what well-meant projects, when not entered into generally by the public, can end in, and how wealth and labor can be thrown away. Here can be seen three large brick edifices which, when in repair, would have been an ornament for any city, now standing and, indeed, falling into disuse and decay, the fit repositories for the food of animals and some of them now hardly offering them sufficient shelter from the elements. Other larger and smaller buildings are here to be seen as all that remains of the great Manual Labor College of Marion. A little village has gathered itself in the vicinity and does needful conveniences for a well cultivated neighborhood.

Princeton.

The County Seat of Mercer county, is situated near the east fork of Grand river, fifty miles north of Chillicothe, on the H. & St. Jo. R. R. The town contains one Methodist church, one Masonic lodge, Mercer Lodge No. 35, A. F. & A. M., and one school house.

The town was laid out in the spring of 1846, by Joseph Prichard, county commissioner. The first store house was erected by Floyd Shannon, May 4th, 1846. About the same time B. B. Ballew opened a store, and J. R. Davis a hotel. Lots sold for about $14 each. About 1850, the town commenced improving. In 1858 a new court house was erected, 45x45 feet—R. B. Ballew oldest settler. In the immediate vicinity of the town are immense forests of valuable timber, consisting mostly of white oak, hickory, walnut and maple. There is a steam saw and grist mill, also a carding machine.

Savannah.

The County Seat of Andrew county, is situated 14 miles north of St. Joseph, at the present termination of the Platte Country R. R. It is 165 miles north-west of Jefferson City, in a most delightful section of the country, abounding in groves of elm, and gently rolling prairie. The village is laid out at right angles with streets 80 feet wide, except one, which is only 60. The blocks are 320 feet square, and in the centre of the place is one planted with trees and containing the court house and county offices. Around this square is built the principal business houses. The public buildings have been built some time and will soon give place to those of more ample accommodations and modern date. The streets run east and west and north and south—the former being named Chestnut, Pearl, Main, Market, Jefferson and Benton, and the latter are numbered except two, which have the euphonious names of Carson and Gyer. The nearest point to which the Missouri river approaches this place is six miles. The exact location of the town is section 9, range 59 north, and 35 west. It has a population of about 2,100.

Saverton,

In Ralls County, Mo., is a thriving village of one hundred inhabitants, a majority of whom are engaged in agricultural pursuits—gardening, fruit growing, and the culture of the vine.

It is situated on the Mississippi River about six miles south of Hannibal, in a beautiful and romantic valley.

On the south-west, adjacent to the town, is a region of country extending for miles back into the interior, which for fertility and productiveness of soil is not excelled by any of equal scope in North Missouri, while to the north we have a hilly belt of country, thickly populated by a colony of honest and industrious Germans, who devote their time and labor to the cultivation of the grape vine and manufacture of native wine, from which a large income and revenue are annually realized. One-fourth of a mile south of Saverton are the celebrated Saverton Springs. During the summer season the commodious hotel is thronged with pleasure and health seeking visitors.

Shelbina.

This is the name of a smart and thriving town on the H. & St. Jo. R. R., 47 miles from Hannibal and 45 miles from Quincy on the Mississippi river, in the south part of Shelby county, seven miles west of south of Shelbyville, the County Seat. The town has grown very rapidly in the last two years, and is destined to become quite an important place. It has been visited by quite an extensive conflagration, and will continue to be if they do not cease to build so many frame buildings so nearly contiguous to each other; but the place extends over quite a scope of land, and there is no general danger for the suburbs, which are really well built for so new a place. The place contains altogether some 70 business firms, and many of them do a good business, as there seems to centre here a good trade from the surrounding country. This place will be in the recollection of some who are now living, a town of about seven or eight thousand inhabitants. It now contains a population of about 1400.

St. Charles,

The County Seat of St. Charles county, situated on the north side of the Missouri river 8½ miles east of Jefferson City in a direct line, but much more by the river. It is at the point where the N. M. R. R. crosses the Missouri river, and by that road 19½ miles nearly west of St. Louis. The situation of the place is very pleasant, laying on a sunny hillside, and at a convenient distance from St. Louis. For suburban residence the climate is very fine, and the place is surrounded by much rich land and admirable scenery. Many of the views are quite picturesque, and the sites for country seats are numerous. The society embraces all kinds, with a large admixture of foreign elements; but many who do not speak the English language are yet natives of the place, it having been settled by the French, who yet give a lively tone to the inhabitants. They have some good public buildings and fine shady avenues and streets. The place is noted for the beauty and attractiveness of its ladies, and contains three drug stores, one foundry, two banks, five notary publics, 12 lawyers, four restaurants, 15 saloons, four boot and shoe dealers, five dry goods stores, 12 general stores, four coopers, eight blacksmiths, two brick yards, eight shoemakers, five carpenters, three billiards, two newspapers, nine tailors, two dress makers, 10 physicians, three stove and tin stores, seven flour

St. Catherines.

Situated in Linn county, 15 miles from Linneus, the County Seat, 100 miles from the Mississippi river and 70 from Jefferson City. Contains one M. E. church, two hotels, timber two miles north, five south, and 1½ each east and west, one flour, saw and woolen mill and distillery. Good coal is found 20 feet below the surface, and another vein 70 feet below, again another 65 below that, the uppermost being 16 inches, the next two ft. three in., and the next two ft. six in. in thickness, with two more veins before reaching 225 ft. in depth. The mines are being worked to a limited extent by Mr. Elliott, the owner, and the coal is used at his mill and factory, which is the most extensive and complete of any in this section.

St. Joseph.

St. Joseph, the County Seat of Buchanan county, Missouri, stands near the western centre of the celebrated Platte Purchase, which has never been surpassed for beauty, fertility or healthfulness.

It is to the Northwest what St. Louis has long been to its section, and is the great business emporium of Northwestern Missouri, Northern Kansas, Southern Nebraska, and Southwestern Iowa.

No inland city was ever surrounded by a greater number of natural facilities combining for its welfare, and all that is now wanting to make it the most important city in the Missouri Valley is fast accumulating here. True, it has many impediments to be overcome, but the many recent changes that have been made, leave no cause to doubt the future.

St. Joseph is located on the great eastern bend of the Missouri river, five hundred and forty-six miles from its mouth, five hundred and sixty-five miles above St. Louis, three hundred and ninety miles above Jefferson City, and one hundred and ninety-five miles above the city of Lexington, one hundred and fifty miles above Independence, one hundred and nine miles above Kansas City, seventy miles above Leavenworth, and thirty miles above the city of Atchison. It is three thousand miles below Fort Benton, which is the head of navigation, two thousand five hundred below the mouth of Yellow Stone river, seven hundred and fourteen miles below Fort Randall, six hundred and nine miles below the mouth of St. James river, four hundred and forty-two miles below the mouth of the Big Sioux river, three hundred and twenty-two miles below the mouth of the little Sioux river, two hundred and twenty-five miles below Omaha City, two hundred and thirteen miles below Council Bluffs, two hundred and eleven miles below Belleview, one hundred and ninety-seven miles below the mouth of the Big Platte river, one hundred and fifty-nine miles below Nebraska City, one hundred and fifteen miles below Brownsville, fifty-one miles below White Cloud, and sixteen miles below Savannah. She is the western terminus of the Hannibal & St. Joe R. R., the northern terminus of the Platte Valley R. R., which runs from the city of Independence where it intersects the Pacific railroad, and here connects with the Council Bluffs railroad, which intersects the Northern Branch of the Pacific at that place. She is also the eastern terminus of the St. Joseph & Denver R. R., which is now partially graded and is being pressed to completion. A strong company is now organized to build a railroad from this city to Topeka, where it would tap the Pacific railroad. Thus its railroad connections, geographical position and uncontrolable circumstances make it the Alpha of the great Pacific railroad.

Sundry stage coaches leave this point daily, taking passengers and the United States mail to the various cities and towns of the Northwest. The Missouri river here affords excellent navigation during the greater part of the year, and since the close of the war the amount of tonnage has greatly exceeded that of former years. While the surrounding country is unsurpassed in richness and beauty, the site of the city is marked by a great boldness. It is on the spurs of a series of hills which face the southwest with a rich alluvial bottom, extending crescent-shaped several miles along the river. At their base between different spurs are small valleys drained by streams running from the north-east and bridged on the lines of the principal streets. The levee extends along the base of the hills and the principal landings which are three in number, and are at the intersection of the six principal streets, where they form their most western angles.

The geographical position of St. Joseph had made it an extensive trading post many years previous to 1845, when its first town charter was granted, but the importance of the position seems to have been almost unknown till the discovery of the California gold mines, when it became as it will ever remain—the chief overland starting point for the great tide of emigration to the Pacific coast.

Here we have a practical demonstration of "Westward moves the Star of Empire." Trains of over one hundred teams frequently leave this city for the gold fields of California and the Northwest, while she is the first recipient of the precious dust which is here sold by weight and sent to the Eastern mints for coinage.

The principal streets are most substantially macadamized, while the side walks are paved with brick and curbed with stone.

THEN AND NOW.

In order to show the more plainly what this city is, and what nature has intended to make her, we propose to compare the present with what we found here but two years since.

She was then supposed to contain a mixed population of about 12,000, the greater part of whom were the families of soldiers and farmers, thus seeking temporary refuge from the horrors of war. Everything that could be called a residence was full. Many fine stone foundations on which buildings were to have been erected, were utterly neglected and fast going to decay. Churches and schools seemed to be forgotten or discarded, while ministers and teachers, like their flocks, were either in the army or declared useless.

Every courier and dispatch from the country brought reports of murder, robbery and arson, with the uncertainty of redress.

Now all transient residents have left for their farms and their various industrial callings, and we have a stable population of 20,000. Decaying foundations are repaired, and covered with towering and beautiful specimens of architecture, while hundreds of dilapidated buildings and decayed fences, have given place to stately business blocks, while new and substantial private residences meet the eye in every direction. Each building seems to surpass all former ones.

Two very fine church buildings have been completed within the past year.

The Superintendent and board of directors of the public schools, have shown their determination not to be surpassed, by erecting two very large school buildings, that would be an honor to any city. As the public schools are the best index of the general intelligence, they must ever be recognized as the nursery of business and literary colleges, and we give place to the following from the pen of the Principal of the Everett School:

"One of the most promising signs of the times in relation to St. Joseph, is the prominence which has of late been given to public education. It may be safely asserted that no city in the West has been more practical in recognizing the claims of the rising generation to educational privileges. Within the short period of two years a system of public instruction has sprung up here, and attained a degree of development which would command respect in a city of a century's growth. It is a remarkable fact that, in St. Joseph, popular education is a popular idea already. Whatever difference of public sentiment there may be on other subjects, all seem to be under the conviction that the very first thing to be done to make our city progressive in the right direction is, to maintain a system of instruction adapted to the wants of rich and poor alike. It speaks well for the wisdom and liberality of our people that public schools have not been required to exist on probation for a number of years as has been the case in most other cities in which they have been established; but it is to the wise deliberations and persevering efforts of the Board and Superintendent, that the wonderful success attending the enterprise is to be chiefly attributed. They have, so far, done nobly in a noble cause. All honor to them; and let the thousands of boys and girls in St. Joseph say, Amen."

Professor Neely, whose superior abilities and high literary attainments are so well known throughout the State, in filling the responsible office of Superintendent of Public Schools, has discharged his official duties in such a manner as to gain the esteem and confidence of patrons, teachers and pupils, as well as the members of the Board. He is eminently qualified for the important position which he occupies. In organizing the St. Joseph public schools he wisely followed the excellent plan adopted in St. Louis.

A minute description of our school system being impracticable in this article, it will suffice to say that it is comprised in the three departments of Primary, Grammar or Intermediate, and High School. Entering the Primary department, according to the thorough system of grading which is being introduced, the pupils may, in a few years, pass through the whole course, extending from A, B, C, up through the higher mathematics and the learned languages, and thus be prepared for admission into any University in the land.

The greatest, in fact the only difficulty to be overcome by the Board now, is that arising from limited school accommodations, but judging from what has been done the present year towards supplying the deficiency, it will not be long before "learning's halls" will be sufficiently extensive to admit the entire youth of our city. The two splendid school buildings erected this year cost about $35,000. A full descriptiou of them may be seen in Superintendent Neely's recent Annual Report. The whole number of children of school age in the city being 4,000, according to the recent enumeration, and school accommodations for not quite 1,000 being at the disposal of the Board, it is easy to see what remains yet to be done before our system of public instruction will be accessible to all.

It is not to be inferred from what has been said of our public schools, that the private schools and academies of our city are of comparatively little importance. The Patee Female College and Bryant's Commercial College, are institutions whose utility and popularity are beyond all question. Of the latter it may be said that it has acquired a reputation which places it above any similar institution west of the Mississippi river. Professors Bryant and Hoverson have manifested extraordinary energy in conducting their College, sparing neither pains nor expense to make it an institution worthy the liberal patronage it enjoys.

about 22 miles north and three west of Chillicothe. It is situated in the midst of a timbered hilly country, and to the eye of a stranger, at first appearance, presents a rather strange aspect. The streets seem to be running in almost every direction and each one of them to be very short. The buildings are not much scattered or else the town is quite small. There is something striking in the sudden apaprition of the place and its oddity, with every body standing looking to see who the new comers may be. Immediately north of the place on the Princeton road for about one or two miles the country is very beautiful with its slopes and its elms, and grassy fields.

UTICA.

In Livingston county, on the H. & St. Jo. R. R., 71 miles east of St. Joseph, and five miles west of Chillicothe, the County Seat. The town site slopes most beautifully to the east, giving a handsome view of the Blue mounds to the south-east, and of the grand river valley laying at the foot of the hill to the east. A high ridge of the most mountainous looking land on the line of this road lays north-west of the place, and contains three different strata of coal, the upper one from 18 to 24 inches thick, the next the same. They have here good sand and lime stone and soap stone, one bed of 16 feet thickness of solid rock underlays the town, at a depth of from 20 to 50 feet. An abundance of timber-logs from two to five feet in diameter, may be here cut out of the native forest.

The scenery about this place is most charming for the romantic and beautiful outlines of the wide extended landscape is different from that of any other place on the road. The town looks dilapidated from the effects of the scouring which the late war gave it.

SOVEREIGN BALM OF LIFE!

DIRECTIONS.—For sudden attacks of acute diseases, take from 2 to 5 pills, according to the constitution of the patient, and repeat the dose in four or six hours, according as circumstances may require, until a brisk operation takes place. For cleansing the stomach, and restoring a healthy digestion, purifying the blood, to re-invigorate the prespirative organs, and to regulate the action of the bowels, one to two should be taken every or every other night for a week or ten days, as a little experience will dictate.

Health, a Great Earthly Blessing!

DIRECTIONS.

Toothache.—Wet a small piece of cotton, and insert in the cavity, also bathe the face and gums over the affected tooth.

Headache.—Bathe freely the parts affected, until it creates a heat. If billious, take a dose of our Indian Life pills.

Earache.—Wet a piece of cotton and place it in the ear.

Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Spinal Affection, Scrotic Pains, Stiff Joints, bathe freely the parts affected.

Cholera Morbus, Dysentery, Diarrhea, Cramps or Colic, bathe freely the loins, take one teaspoon full every hour, until you find relief.

Dyptheria, Sore Throat, Cuts, Sprains and Bruises, bathe the parts until it creates a heat.

Ring Worms, make frequent application. Inflamed Eyes, bathe the outside of the lids. Keep the vial corked and not leave it open longer than is necessary.

FREE FARE!

Exploring Land Buyers' railroad fare is returned or allowed in payment of land.

Town Lots in towns on the railroad are sold for one-third of value down, one-third in one year, and one-third in two years with interest.

COLONIES.—Emigrants settling in Colonies will contribute greatly to each others' advantage. The large and choice bodies of land offered furnish them every facility, and can be secured on convenient time for settlement by a colony, as per terms of long credit contracts. Other than railroad lands can readily be obtained with them, when wanted in a contiguous body for a colony.

☞ CIRCULARS, giving full particulars, furnished GRATIS. Persons wishing to enlist their friends to emigrate with them should apply for all they want to circulate.

CORRESPONDENCE INVITED AND LETTERS ANSWERED.

Land buyers should come direct to Land Office at Hannibal.

A Sectional Map, showing the exact location of all our lands, is sold at 30 cents. Apply by letter, or otherwise, to Business men wishing to advertise in any part of the country can send their orders to Messrs. GEO. P. ROWELL & CO., No 23 Congress street, Boston, or 58 Cedar street, New York, who are authorized to contract at Publishers' prices for all Newspapers issued in the United States or British Provinces.

By employing an agent, the advertiser gains the advantage of dealing with one person instead of many, and the cost is no more, as the agent's commission comes from the publisher.

CITIES, TOWNS, VILLAGES AND POST OFFICES

IN EASTERN KANSAS.

TOGETHER WITH THE

Names of Persons Engaged in Business in Each Place.

Abilene.

This is the name of the County Seat of Dickinson county, situated on a small branch of the Kansas river, and on the line of the extension of the Pacific R. R., eighty-five miles west of Topeka, and twenty-three west of Junction City, but farther by the line of the road from the former place.

Thomas Sheran, P. M.

Albany.

This is the name of a small place in Nemaha county, not marked upon the maps, but it is about 55 miles west of the Missouri river.

Trades, Professions, &c.

Slosson & Bro, gen. store.
Slosson Wm B, Postmaster.

Alexandria.

This small village is situated in the west part of Leavenworth county, nine miles south of west of Leavenworth City.

Trades & Professions.

Walker D F & Son, gen. store.

America City.

This small place is situated in the south part of Nemaha county, near the county line, and about 14 miles south of Seneca, the County Seat.

Trades, Professions, &c.

Bachman Wm, shoemaker.
Cross Thos, hotel.
Hitchcock W H, gen. store.
McComas D C, blacksmith.
McKay C, gen. store.
KcKay N B, physician and P. M.
Midkef Thos, Wagonmaker.

Americus.

This small place is situated in the west part of Lyon county, eight miles north-west of Emporia, the County Seat, and 48 miles south-west of Topeka.

Trades, Professions, &c.

Bruner Samuel, gen. store.
Gibson & Loy, gen. store.
Goddard E, gen. store.

Ash Point.

This small place is situated on a very high and extensive prairie being on the divide between the Blue and the Nemaha rivers. Water and timber are scarce. It is about 12 miles north-west of Seneca, the County Seat of Nemaha county, in which it is situated.

Trades, Professions, &c.

O'Laughlin John, Groceries and postmaster.

Atchison.

The County Seat of Atchison county is situated on the west bank of the Missouri river, 40 miles in a direct line, but considerable more by river, above the mouth of the Kansas river, and 16 miles above Leavenworth and 15 miles below St. Joseph; it is situated at the eastern terminus of the Atchison and Pikes Peak R. R., on an extensive bend of the Missouri river, which it makes toward the west, bringing this place farther west than any other important place in the State on the river. The country back is very good and has a rich soil and is well cultivated. The railroad west is completed out as far as Nemaha county, and will soon reach the Little Blue, which will open a very fine trade to this already enterprising town.

Population about 5,000.

This place is situated in Marshall county, 60 miles west of Atchison and 30 miles east of the Big Blue, on a high rolling prairie, on the dividing line between range 11 and 12, and one-half mile north of the central branch of the Union P. R. R. The soil is of good fertility and the place fast settling up with an enterprising and intelligent community. It is sparce of timber, but like the rest of Kansas has an abundance of grass, and Solon Robinson says grass is king, so we may justly claim to be the monarch of the Union. Though young in years our power has already been felt, give us but a few more years and Kansas may wield a power that other states may envy.

Emporia.

Emporia is located between the Cottonwood and Neosho, six miles above their junction, and it is about a mile and a quarter from the town to either of the streams. Its situation is beautiful and healthy. It is surrounded by a large and what is destined to be a wealthy agricultural and stock country, of which it is the natural center.

Its population is estimated at from six to eight hundred, though we think the former figures are nearer the truth.

The State Normal School is located here, and it is not too much to say that it is the best conducted and most successful as well as the most useful institution of learning in the State. Its special mission is the education of teachers for our common schools, and the law under which it was organized provides that one scholar from each representative district in the State shall be educated in the institution free of tuition. There are now about one hundred students in attendance. The school employs three teachers. A building has just been erected for this school by the State at a cost of about sixteen thousand dollars. The building is located on a site of twenty acres adjoining the town on the north. Our district school is also in a flourishing condition. The district has a large two story stone school house, erected at a cost of nearly six thousand dollars. No point in Kansas furnishes better facilities for obtaining a good English education.

There are four church organizations in the town who have houses of worship, viz: Congregationalist, Methodist Episcopal, Christian and Friends.

The Masons and Odd Fellows have working and growing societies at this place.

Beside the Normal and District school buildings, the county is erecting a Court House and Jail at a cost of $20,000 and the Normal School Boarding House Association is erecting a building for the accommodation of Normal students, at a cost of $10,000.

On the Cottonwood, a mile and a quarter south of town is W. T. Soden's large water flouring mill; on the Neosho, a mile and a half northeast of town is the large steam saw and grist mill of Daniel Rich; four miles and a half east of town is the steam saw and grist mill of G. D. Humphrey; a mile and a half north of town, on the Neosho, is the steam saw and grist mill of Thomas Armor; four miles west, on the Cottonwood, is the water, grist and saw mill of J. H. Hunt.

We have a daily mail from Lawrence, which brings all our eastern papers and letters. We have mails tri-weekly down the Neosho Valley to Fort Scott, and tri-weekly up the valley to Junction City. A semi-weekly mail via Cottonwood Falls, to the south-west part of the State, which also connects at Cottonwood Falls with a weekly mail through Chase and Marion counties, to Moore's Ranch, on the Santa Fe road. Also a weekly mail south through Greenwood county.

Our mercantile establishments consist of five houses that do a general dry goods, clothing, grocery and boot and shoe business, one that does a business in dry goods and clothing, two in groceries and queensware, one in groceries and hardware, one in hardware, tinware and agricultural implements, two in drugs and medicines, all doing a business ranging from $15,000 to $40,000 per year, according to capital invested. We also have a large furniture manufactory and carding machine, two saddle and harness shops, one watchmaker and jeweler, two hotels, one printing office, one book and paper store, one photographist, a bank, various lawyers, claim and insurance agents, conveyancers, physicians, county officers, tailors, music teachers, milliners, carpenters, masons, wagon makers, blacksmiths, painters, a livery stable, billiard saloon, restaurant butcher shop. There is not a place in this village where anything stronger than "lager" is sold openly. Travelers in the habit of taking a "a nip" before breakfast had better come prepared.

This town is near the north-east corner of Douglas county, and about three miles south of the Kansas river and nine east of Lawrence, the County Seat. This is a very beautiful and fertile section of country, with both timber and good water. The town has grown and become thrifty and enterprising, and as the surrounding parts are favorable, the place will continue to grow and improve. It now has a population of about 400 people.

Fort Leavenworth.

The reservation, fort and military post known by this name, commences immediately as you ascend the Missouri river above the city limits of Leavenworth City; the arsenal and barracks, officers' houses and quarters are some two and one-half or three miles from the south line of the reservation, they are all neatly and substantially built, some on the sides of hollow square, ornamented with handsome forest shade trees, and the fronts of the quarters all faced with collonades. The place has beautiful gravel and Macdam roads, drives and parades. The location is on a high bluff, which gives a fine and effective view in every direction, except toward the west. Leading to the city of Leavenworth is one of the finest roads anywhere to be found in America—straight as an arrow, wide and smooth as a plank surface, it lays before you, gently descending to the city with just sufficient undulation to relieve it of sameness.

This is the County Seat of Bourbon county, one that borders on the Missouri State line, from which this place is only six miles west, but it is 84 miles south of the Missouri river at Kansas City, and 96 south-east of Topeka. It will probably soon be connected with other railroads to the north, as it is of sufficient importance to have a railroad outlet. It is altogether the most important place in the south part of Kansas, and is probably destined to become an inland metropolis; it now has a population of about 1760.

Garnett.

This is the County Seat of Andrew county, situated nearly central in the county, 58 miles east of south of Topeka, and 32 miles west of the Missouri State line, not on any stream of water, but on a prairie about midway between the Osage and Neosho rivers The northern part of the county is quite well settled up, but the southern part not so much so. It would be easy to construct a railroad from Fort Riley to this place, a distance of 100 miles, as it is all the way on a high dividing ridge, which would require little grading and no bridging.

This town is beautifully situated one-half mile from the Neosho river, in Allen county, on the east side on a gentle slope, and contains about 600 inhabitants, and is surrounded by the Neosho river on the west, Elm creek on the south, Rock creek on the east, and Deer creek on the north. It has one of the largest and best steam saw and flour mills in the State; also a large and well built saw mill propelled by water power. The Neosho valley and all its tributaries are thickly settled, and have been for years. In this vicinity winter wheat never fails. This is also a splendid stock and sheep country. There is a splendid coal mines opened here, and now being worked by Mr. W. S. Newberry, in a very successful manner. This place is to be the junction of the Leavenworth, Lawrence and Galveston bay, the Southern B U P, and the Sedalia, Ft. Scott, Iola and Santa Fe R R, and when built it must be an important place. They have grants of land from Congress, and the first two roads will probably reach this place by July, 1868.

Leavenworth.

The city of Leavenworth is but twelve years from the condition of a wilderness. We appeal to the evidence following in this article to sustain us in the assertion that for rapidity of growth, magnitude and variety of business enterprise, religious and educational institutions—everything, in short, that goes to make a city—it is without a rival in the Union.

The manufacturing interests of this city have been greatly retarded by the heavy cost of fuel. Wood at eight dollras a cord can hardly be used to generate steam for the propulsion of machinery, and coal has cost until the present season forty to eighty cents per bushel. Lexington coal is the staple. It is of good quality, but the transportation is so heavy that its use for general manufacturing purposes has been found too expensive to permit us to hope to compete with Eastern works.

Kansas is full of coal underneath. Capital and enterprise are needed to bring it out. The Leavenworth Coal Company has made herculean efforts to develop the coal mines underlaying our city and the entire country. An account of their operations may be found in another column. The statistics presented below show a gratifying view of the manufacturers of Leavenworth, carried on under the disadvantages referred to above. The aggregate manufacturers for the year will reach the sum of Two Millions of Dollars.

Commercially Leavenworth stands, and has long stood, far in advance of her neighbors and rivals. In manufacturers, our city has also an enviable pre-eminence.

The milling interest of the city, although in its infancy, is already a highly important one. From the scarcity of home-produced grain, there has not heretofore been so extensive a business done in the manufacture of flour at this point as will follow the settling up of the fertile prairies of our rich and rapidly developing State.

The business of manufacturing wagons, carriages and other vehicles in this city is quite extensive, and a source of great profit to the city.

Leavenworth, in advance of all cities on "the outpost's of man's dominion,,' is fast becoming the manufacturing centre of the Upper Missouri country. The true measure of success of any inland town is to be sought in the variety and extent of its manufactures.

There are five breweries in operation in this city, all of which make a superior article of "lager," that is known and in demand throughout the State.

Leavenworth has, as yet, but one woolen factory, and that is devoted mainly to custom work.

The sawing of lumber in Leavenworth is confined to cottonwood, mulberry, walnut and the several varieties of timber growing on the river bottoms. Framing stuff, and the lumber used for roofing, sidewalks, fencing, and, to some extent, for furniture and finer work, is produced in abundance. Pine, the great staple, is brought from Michigan, and commands three to four times as high a price as the varieties of lumber manufactured here. While the scarcity of pine in this market has been seriously felt, the supply of almost every kind of lumber except it, is abundaut, and furnished at reasonable figures.

The fire department of this city consists of three independent companies: the "Waterfall," the "Young Kansas," and the "German Saving and Protection Company, No. 2." Besides which there is the Steam Fire Engine, owned and manned by the city.

The value of school houses in the city is $40,000.

A large amount of building has been done in Leavenworth during the year 1866.

Leavenworth has from the year of its settlement maintained a prominent and rapid growth, that has but few parallels on the continent. Twelve years ago but a thicket, to-day our city has a population of twenty-five thousand, and is receiving an accestion of more than five thousand annually. Although building material at the opening of the present season was scarce and high, and the wages of mechanics still ruled at war rates, our citizens have not been deterred from investing largely in costly and permanent improvements, as well as in more moderate and inexpensive structures.

The trade and commerce of Leavenworth has increased over last year, or any previous year. Diversions of trade to other points, caused by particular railroad connections, the decline in prices in almost every staple commodity, the absence of large orders growing out of the demands of the Government to maintain an immense army on a war footing, and the absence of speculative transactions, all combined, have failed to reduce the aggregate figures of the trade and commerce of Leavenworth. What is to be naturally inferred from this fact is, that we have made a great positive gain during the year, and that the future of Leavenworth, as the great commercial centre of the States and Territories lying west and northwest of us, is a certainty.

The manufacturing interest of Leavenworth has doubled its production during the year, and with cheap fuel, which the enterprise of Leavenworth will secure sooner or later, we shall build up a manufacturing interest that will support an enormous population, and be a source of unlimited wealth to our people.

River trade has fully maintained its magnitude, while the several railroads have done a business unparalleled on lines established for so short a time.

The importance of the Pacific road —now running nearly two hundred miles west of Leavenworth—to our trade, cannot be overestimated. This road brings in almost the entire trade of the State to the metropolis. The Leavenworth branch is practically main line, and is so regarded. Substantial depot buildings have been erected, and preparations are being made to accommodate the rapidly increasing business of the road.

The year 1866 has been one of ordinary success in the operations of the agriculturalists of our State, and we regret inability to furnish the figures our of the receipts of produce at this city. We can only say that receipts and shipments have been larger than ever before, and that prices have been remunerative to the producer.

Little Stranger.

This is the name of a post office and little village in Leavenworth county, situated 10 miles south-west of Leavenworth, on the State road, where it crosses the Little Stranger creek. There is a coal bank having a 20 inch vein of coal, which is underlayed by a strata of potter's clay, suitable for earthen stoneware. There is both prairie and timber land within three-fourths of a mile, and the railroad runs through the timber land here for nine miles. It can be purchased for from three to fifteen dollars per acre. Cultivated farms are worth from $20 to $25 per acre.

This is a small but flourishing town on the Atchison and Pike's Peak R. R., almost exactly in the centre of the County. It is 14 miles west of Atchison on the head waters of the Stranger creek, and its location is beautiful and picturesque in the extreme, surrounded on all sides with streams and woodlands, and soil not exceeded in fruitfulness by any in the State. It has inducements for the consideration of settlers unqual to any locality within the borders of this or any other State. Locations of the beautiful and rich lands in its vicinity can be yet had on very moderate terms from speculators and others, and these at once in the midst of all the temporal and social conveniences of the East. Within town are two churches, a Lutheran and Methodist school house, with almost constant free school, and the prospect of a higher grade.

Salina.

A comparison of the present condition of this town with what it was six months and one year ago, speaks convincingly of the present and prospective prosperity of the place.

One year ago it was almost impossible for the traveler to find here accommodations for either "man or beast," the only house of entertainment of which we could boast being a log "adobe" house, about 16x20 feet, the stopping place of the overland stage coaches. We now have a new and good hotel, built at a cost of about $3,000, and finished only about a month since, which is capable of accommodating about fifty guests; also, a new and good hotel, erected at a cost of about $2,000, which will accommodate some twenty-five or thirty guests. Another hotel will be opened within a few days, in a large building recently used as a store, and now being fitted up for a hotel.

Six months ago we had in Salina, three dry goods and grocery stores, one grocery and hardware store, one saloon, one blacksmith shop and one feed stable, employing an aggregate capital of about $25,000. At that time there was no saw mill, where lumber for building purposes could be obtained, nearer than fifty miles. Early last fall, three saw-mills were put in operation—two on the bank of the Smoky Hill inside the town limits, and one on the bank of the Saline five miles north from town. As soon as these mills began to furnish the needed lumber, the town began to grow rapidly. Houses sprang up as if by magic. Previously, business men had come here, looked at the town and its surroundings, and were much pleased with the prospects; but the impossibility of procuring building materials without hauling on wagons so far as to make the transportation amount to three or four times the original cost, deterred them from investing, and sent them away again. But now that this difficulty has been in a measure removed, those who were here before are building, others are coming in and building, with a rapidity and energy we never saw equaled, and our town is increasing in size, business and population more rapidly than any other we know of anywhere. The excessive cold and stormy weather of a more than ordinary inclement winter has retarded but has not checked these building operations. The demand for more buildings here is imperative; they must be erected. We have seen carpenters standing in snow boot deep to frame and put up the frames of new buildings; we have seen stone-masons and plasterers at work when their mortar formed into solid cakes of ice beneath the trowel. City workmen will, perhaps, say that these buildings will not stand, and it may be that they will not be as durable as if put up in more favorable weather, but they will stand long enough to pay well, here in Salina, for the cost of constructing them. Where buildings can be rented readily for 50 to 100 per cent. on the entire cost, as is the case here, it does not take very long for one to pay for itself.

Now for the results, in figures, of this spirited enterprise. To-day we have in Salina, five dry goods and fancy stores, employing an aggregate capital of about $100,000, their aggregate sales averaging about $200 per day during the last ten days; three grocery stores with an aggregate capital of about $10,000, and daily sales amounting to about $150; two drug stores, employing an aggregute capital of about $3,000, and selling to amount of $60 per day; one stove, tin and hardware store, on a capital of about $3,000, and selling to amount of about $30 per day, two saddle and harness shops, with a capital of about 1,200, their sales averaging about $10 per day; one boot and shoe shop, on a capital of about $1,000 and selling to amount of $15 per day; one clothing store, with a capital of about $3000, and selling to amout of about $30 per day; one livery stable employing a capital of about $4,000, and doing a good business; one feed stable; two blacksmith shops; one furniture store; two bakeries; two butcher shops; two billiard saloons; eight liquor saloons, one shingle manufactory; one wagon shop; five carpenter shops; two steam saw mills and one grist mill. These, and all of these, are crowded with business and doing well, now in mid winter, when the older towns and cities east of us are complaining of dull times and a general stagnatian of business.

In Salina we have now three clergymen, three physicians three lawyers six notaries public and six real estate agents—all doing reasonably well.

The Presbyterians and Methodists each have organized societies,and hold service regulary. We have, as yet, no church edifices, but arrangements are made for the erection of two early in the coming season.

The school directors of the District are erecting a large, handsome and commodious school house on school park in town, at a cost of about five thousand dollars, in which a first class free school is to be opened in the spring.

Great and unexampled as has been the increase of business and of business houses in Salena, during the past three months, the business wants of the place and people are not yet supplied. We need and can afford remunerative patronage to many more energetic besiness men and good business houses. Some of the useful trades, arts and avocations are as yet unrepresented in Salina. We need and can give each and all of them remunerative patronage.

We need a good flouring mill. This is a fine wheat growing region, and a large flouring mill well managed, would pay not only well but very well.

A jobbing dry goods and variety house, stocked to supply the wants of the ranch men on the plains, and the retail dealers north, south and west of us, could do a very paying business.

We need one or two more brick-making machines. As yet, with the exception of one stone store, all the buildings in town have been constructed of wood, for the reason that no more bricks have been manufactured than barely sufficient for chimneys, flues, &c. That we have an excellent quality of brick clay in abundance, is fully proven. Many large business houses, to be built of brick early next spring, are already under contract. He who first brings a good brick machine to Salina, need have no fear but that he can sell, at full prices, all the bricks he can make.

We have, as yet, no tailor, and we need at least two, now; and will need more soon. A good tailor shop and gentlemen's furnishing store in Salina would pay better than any small business we know of.

We have no millinery store. The ladies say we need one badly, and that we must have one. The gentlemen, with a mental eye directed toward the probable figures near the lower right hand corner of inevitable long—very long—pages of pretty paper, neatly ruled, and handsomely ornamented with perpendicular red lines are not so sure about it. However, we will hazard the opinion that if some tasty practical milliner will bring to Salina a stock of "charming hats," "loves of bonnets," with all the appropriately accompanying "fal-derats," she will have no trouble in exchanging said articles for "greenbax" or "national currency."

Of the artizans, tradesmen and business houses we have here now, there are scarcely enough to supply the present demand, and nothing like what will be needed when the spring business fairly opens.

Oliver Twist like, we feel constrained to ask for more. We need more saw mills, more lumber yards, more merchants, more mechanics of all kinds, more working men in all the useful trades, occupations and avocations of life. Men who have the skill and disposition to work, can do well here in any and every branch of legitimate business. No such branch of business has been "overdone" yet, nor do we think it at all probable that any of them will be, especially while the town is so rapidly increasing in size and population.

Let those who are seeking or need to seek new homes in the Great West come to Salina and see these things—and more too, for "the half has not been told" yet—for themselves.

Topeka,

The State Capital of Kansas, is pleasantly and commandingly situated on the gently sloping hills of Shawnee county as they approach the Kaw or Kansas river on the south side of that stream. It has a descent to the north and east, from which the commanding eminence on which the town is situated, gently slopes into the fertile bottoms which skirt on the north and north-east. The place is substantially and well built, there being an abundance of the best rock and other material for permanent structures.

It is supposed that the State House will cost one-half a million dollars when it is completed.

The educational institutions and advantages of the place are of no small importance, being founded on a permanent basis, and being well managed and under the control of men of ability.

Taken all together Topeka is one of the most go-ahead and lively of the State Capitals west of the Mississippi. The place is situated 60 miles in a direct line west of the western boundary of the State of Missouri, and about on the same parallel as the mouth of the Illinois river. It is 64 miles south of the north line of the State, where it adjoins Nebraska, and 149 miles north of the southern part of the State, where it joins on the Indian Territory.

The place contains a population of about 4000.
